By-Pass Fatalities Reach 20

Most Anything At A Glance

BY ABIGAIL

It appears now that with the three inches of rain and the foot of snow we have received in recent days the drought has been at least abated. The water situation has been eased tremendously but this is no indication that we can again become careless in its use. We have no assurance we'll receive enough rain in the next month to completely fill all our reservoirs. All I can report at this time is that the picture appears a lot brighter. The precipitation most surely will be enough to get the spring crops off to a good start and come to think of it, spring isn't too far away. We should, by all means, continue with our plans to insure ourselves of adequate water reserves for future years.

It is a regrettable fact that we had to have 20 persons killed on the new by-pass before our State officials would sit up and take notice. Their actions in the past are really unexcusable but then a lot of good could develop when the group of State officials comes here Saturday to meet with spokesmen for the Town. At least we're getting some action while we are sitting at the conference table talking about the business at hand. Whether or not the by-pass will be closed temporarily is conjectural. If some sort of remedial action is not taken after this conference Saturday, then the National Safety Council should be consulted. Surely this shameful record of 20 deaths in a little over a year will not be tolerated any longer and it is regrettable that it was permitted to carry on so long. Both you and I know it is difficult to get any degree of satisfaction from some State bodies or bureaus. It has been an uphill fight all the way but somehow I now feel that we are reaching the crest of the hill and should see some good come from our action. There is no question about it that the State Roads Commission blundered in not overpassing State Route 97 and many of these deaths could have been averted. In many instances the intersections are devoid of the necessary safety devices and these should be corrected at once, regardless of the expense involved.

Candidates have started filing for County offices and it appears certain now that many of the incumbents will seek re-election. It is a bit early to discuss the merits of the candidates until we know that they all have filed. However, it is just about certain that the present three County Commissioners will seek return to office. Emmitsburgians haven't forgot that they have a score to settle with these three gentlemen and many of us are just biding our time. Speaking of elections, our own Town Election is just a two short months away, April, to be exact.

Appreciates Work Of Local Firemen

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:
 In Abigail's column of your good paper special thanks were given to all those who helped during the blizzard. Our local firemen should be given special thanks, too.

These young men worked all day and night, shoveling snow to keep those driveways open, they pushed cars, served coffee, secured blankets and cots, visited the different homes for tourists, and escorted them there.

All this was done out of the goodness in their hearts for which they receive no pay. They were just wonderful.

PTA TO MEET

The Emmitsburg Public School PTA meeting will be held on February 21, 1966 at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. John L. Carnochan will be the speaker of the evening. Teachers will be in their respective rooms at 7:30 with the business meeting at 8:00 p.m.

Governor To Inspect By-Pass Saturday

An enraged Emmitsburg citizenry has petitioned Governor Millard Tawes to close down the new Route 15 by-pass of Emmitsburg until such time as it can be made safe to travel. The petition was signed by over 700 persons here and presented to the Governor.

The petition developed as an aftermath of the most recent ghastly death of four Maryland residents which sent the death toll on the new two-mile stretch of road to 20 since it opened some 13 months ago. It has earned the reputation of being the most dangerous two-mile stretch in the United States.

The by-pass is intersected at four intervals during its two-mile duration and the numerous wrecks there has aroused the citizenry. Doctors, educators, housewives and children have been victims of tragic accidents. Sixteen persons have died on this highway in the past four months. None of the four intersections is lighted at night and a simple stop sign is all the warning motorists have at three of the intersections.

An appeal to Governor Tawes some months ago to act on the matter was turned over to the State Roads Commission which in turn, erected a blinking light system and rumble spots at one of the intersections. When the road was under construction two years ago many were of the belief that an overpass was the only solution and this line of thought is proving to be more right every day. Eight thousand cars travel Route 15 daily and 4000 travelling over State Rt. 97 must cross these intersections. Some school busses must negotiate the most dangerous of them all Rt. 15 and 97, eight times a day. This is extremely dangerous and hazardous on foggy days.

Last Saturday's tragic death of a doctor and three members of his family goaded Emmitsburgians into action and a local attorney, Patrick McGucken, with the assistance of other interested citizens, circulated a petition and in two days had over 700 signatures for presentation to Governor Tawes to close the by-pass until some safe plan could be mapped out or resolved. The petition was signed by the Town Council, officials at both St. Joseph and Mt. St. Mary's Colleges, heads of other schools, churches, business and individual citizens.

Governor Tawes has answered the petition by announcing that he will personally inspect the site and will bring along other State "top brass" to study the situation. Among those who will accompany the Governor to Emmitsburg Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock will be John B. Funk, chairman of the State Roads Commission, Colonel Carey Jarman, superintendent of the Maryland State Police and Thomas Finan, attorney-general of Maryland. They will meet with Rev. Robert S. Grace, Mt. St. Mary's College, Rev. W. Ronald Fearer, pastor, Elias Lutheran Church, Mrs. Jane Bollinger, co-chairman of the Emmitsburg Democratic Central Committee and C. Arthur Elder, editor of the Emmitsburg Chronicle.

The following statistics of accidents and fatalities has been compiled by the Chronicle:

Alumni Group Will Honor Dillon Saturday

Dr. John J. Dillon, professor of English and director of athletics at Mount Saint Mary's College, will be the guest of honor at a dinner-dance to be given Saturday, Feb. 19, by the Harrisburg Chapter of the National Alumni Association of the college at the Colonial County Club in Linglestown, Pa.

Among the guests who are expected to attend are Rt. Rev. Robert R. Kline, president of the college; Rev. Carl J. Fives, executive secretary of the National Alumni Association; Harold F. X. Schwartz, president of the Alumni Association; Donald P. Quinn, past president of the Alumni Association, and members of the clerical and lay faculty.

Dr. Dillon, a member of the faculty of the college since 1940, is being honored for his numerous contributions to the welfare of the school in the academic and sports world.

He is a member of the Modern Language Assn., the National Council of Teachers of English, College English Assn., Assn. for Asian Studies, and the American Assn. of University Professors. Recently he received a grant under the Ford International Studies Program for study and research in India on Indian literature, and he has participated in the Far Eastern Study Program sponsored by a six-college group in this area.

Professor Dillon has published book reviews in the Pittsburgh Press and the Baltimore Sun, and he wrote a weekly literary column in the Baltimore Catholic Review. He has been a visiting lecturer at Notre Dame College of Maryland and has lectured to various audiences on the American novel. He is listed in "Who's Who in the East" and "Directory of American Scholars."

Dr. Dillon has served on various committees of the Mason-Dixon Conference and is a member of the Basketball Writers of America and Sports Information Directors of America. Recently he was active in the annual meeting of the NCAA which drastically revised the rules for participation.

He was previously honored by the Washington Chapter of the National Alumni Assn. of Mt. St. Mary's College, and recently a scholarship in his honor was established at the school.

Miss Marshall Is Named Crocker Contest Winner

St. Joseph's High School's 1966 Betty Cocker Homemaker of Tomorrow is Margaret Marshall. She scored highest in a written knowledge and attitude examination taken by senior girls Dec. 7, 1965, and is now eligible for state and national scholarship awards. Miss Marshall has already earned a special award pin from the program's sponsor, General Mills.

Test papers of all school winners in the state are being judged, and a State Homemaker of Tomorrow and runner-up will be selected soon. The State Homemaker of Tomorrow will receive a $1,500 college scholarship, and her school will be awarded a complete set of the Encyclopedia Britannica by Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc. The second-ranking girl in the state will receive a $500 educational grant.

High School Bazaar Set For Saturday

A Mardi Gras theme Bazaar sponsored by the PTA of St. Joseph's High School will be held in the school auditorium Saturday, Feb. 19, starting at 1:00 p.m.

Carroll E. Frock, Jr., general chairman, announces there will be games and amusements for all ages. In addition, there will be exhibits, prizes, movies, surprises and an attractive door prize.

The event is being held to raise funds for extra curricular activities and improvements at the school, including a public address system now being installed. A highlight of the affair will be the serving of a delicious supper consisting of baked ham, potato salad, vegetable, etc., for the price of $1 for adults and 50c for children under 12 years of age.

On sale will be cakes, candy, etc. The usual stands where gifts and other items will be on sale will be on hand in the auditorium and as usual there will be an evening of games for the lovers of that famous entertainment.

Chairman Frock extends an invitation to the general public to attend the bazaar and asks that as many parents as possible be on hand to assist the various committees with their work.

Last week the teen-agers of St. Joseph's High challenged the grown-ups of the Emmitsburg area to leave their TV sets and join them in conducting the bazaar. The youngsters claim the adults are not interested enough in the younger generation to leave the comfort of their living rooms and become acquainted with their growing sons and daughters in an environment of accomplishment. They, the adults, are willing to believe that the word "teen-ager" is synonymous with indecency, reckless behavior, disrespect, and lack of ambition. These beliefs, according to the teen-agers are the result of newspaper articles, news broadcasts, and TV programs, not first hand knowledge.

Carroll Frock, Jr., who has been selected chairman of the bazaar committee, has accepted the challenge of the teen-agers, on behalf of the adults of the Emmitsburg area. Quite a few volunteers have come forward already and offered their time and talents to prove the teen-agers wrong. The adults are organizing slowly but surely in an effort to show their interest and concern for the young men and women of our community. The parents hope to convince the youngsters that most adults are willing and anxious to join their children in a joint community effort.

Although the response has been encouraging, Mr. Frock indicates that many more of our people must participate if we are to convince the young people that we are on their side. For those who have not volunteered for a specific job, Mr. Frock suggests they show their willingness to support the younger generation by coming to the bazaar on February 19, 1966, at 1:00 p.m.

The teen-agers have made their challenge. The adults have accepted that challenge. What will be the outcome?

OBITUARIES

MELVIN F. STOUTER

Melvin F. Stouter, 58, died at his home, Emmitsburg R1, Tuesday evening at 6:10 o'clock after having been in ill health for some time.

He was a lifelong resident of Frederick County and was a son of Mrs. Martha (Ferguson) Stouter, Emmitsburg R1, and the late Joseph Stouter.

Surviving in addition to his mother are his widow, Carrie Turner Stouter, and these children, Wilbur, Robert, Sterling and Mrs. Ruby Hurley, all of Emmitsburg, R1. There are four grandchildren and two brothers, Bernard and Charles Stouter, Emmitsburg R1.

Mr. Stouter was a member of the Friend's Creek Church of God. Funeral services will be held this afternoon (Friday) at 2 o'clock at the Friend's Creek Church of God with the Rev. Duane Beck officiating. Interment will be in Friend's Creek Cemetery. Wilson Funeral Home, Emmitsburg, was in charge of arrangements.

Doctor, Wife And Two Children Killed On By-Pass

Pictured above is the station wagon operated by Dr. Vacca, Silver Spring, Md., following a fatal crash Saturday night at the Toll Gate Hill intersection to Rt. 15 by-pass. The vehicle was completely demolished and the doctor, his wife and two young children died in the crash.

The lives of a young Silver Spring doctor, his wife and two small children, were snuffed out in a ghastly accident at the Toll Gate intersection of the new by-pass at approximately 9:40 o'clock Saturday night.

Killed instantly by the impact were Dr. Aldo Vacca, 40; his wife, Paule Nelly, 41; son, Bruno, 9, and daughter, Francoise, 7. The accident occurred at the intersection about a mile south of Emmitsburg on a rain slicked highway and poor visibility. The Olds station wagon which the Vaccas occupied was completely demolished as it collided with a tractor-trailer driving north on Rt. 15 and driven by Roderick A. Hillis, 25, Hobart, N. Y. Vacca was apparently attempting to cross Route 15 when the collision occurred. The deaths of the Vaccas ran the total number of fatalities on the new by-pass to 20 in the 13 months since its opening on Dec. 11, 1964.

Dr. Vacca died of a fractured skull and crushed chest; his wife from a fractured skull; their son from a crushed chest, fractured skull, fractured legs and their daughter also from a fractured skull. The four were pronounced dead by Dr. B. O. Thomas, medical examiner of Frederick County.

The Vigilant Hose Co. was called to the scene of the accident to be alerted against the possibility of gasoline igniting. It had spread over the highway. The firemen aided State and local police in extricating the bodies from the wreckage. It took almost an hour to remove the bodies as crow bars and expanders were employed.

The Eilver Spring family was reportedly seeking a motel at the time of the accident after spending the day skiing at Charnita, near here. Three other Vacca children were at home with a babysitter when the tragedy occurred. The family is reported to have no relatives in the United States.

Hillis was transporting a truckload of cucumbers from Drakes Branch, Va., and had planned to spend the night in Gettysburg. He was admitted to the Warner Hospital for observation.

Trooper Paul C. Crutchley, who investigated the accident, said that there have been 15 fatalities in the last four months within a three-mile radius of the Route 15 Emmitsburg bypass.

The bodies were transferred from the Wilson Funeral Home, Emmitsburg, to a Takoma Park funeral home. Funeral services were held at the Sligo S.E.A. Church on Wednesday at 11 a.m., in Silver Spring, Md.

Another view of the fatal accident which occurred Saturday night when the 20th fatality on the new by-pass was recorded. Residents claim the by-pass to be the most dangerous two-mile stretch of highway in the United States.

Mountaineers Win Conference Title

Four consecutive victories in the past week were registered by Jim Phelan's Mt. St. Mary's Mountaineers as they polished off Hampden-Sydney, Loyola, Towson State and Western Maryland in that order. The Mounties are now leading the Mason-Dixon Conference Northern Division.

It took all the Blue and White could muster to down Hampden-Sydney Friday night on the home court as they edged the Virginians 90-82 in a last minute rally to snare the contest.

Paced by 6'3" Freshman Fred Carter, the Mounties snapped an 81-81 tie with just 2:30 remaining in the game. During the late mo-

Mount Gleemen Ready For Spring Program

The Mount Saint Mary's College Glee Club has announced a spring concert schedule which includes many area dates as well as an extensive southern tour which includes appearances in Florida and Puerto Rico.

The group of 40 male voices, under the direction of Rev. David W. Shaum, Ph.D., associate professor of music, will open the spring season in Shamokin, Pa., March 10, in the auditorium of the Shamokin Catholic High School with two concerts at 2:15 and 8:15 p.m.

As a highlight of the current season, two concerts have been scheduled for presentation with the young ladies of Molloy College for Women from Rockville Centre, L. I., N. Y., making their traveling debut. The joint concerts will be held on Saturday and Sunday, March 12th and 13th, in the Ballroom of the Francis Scott Key Hotel, Frederick.

The following month the group will fly from Baltimore to the sunshine of Florida and Puerto Rico. The tour includes a television appearance in Puerto Rico; a concert at the University and at the Church of San Lorge; and a final performance for U. S. servicemen at Fort Buchanan.

Upon their return the group will participate in a joint concert with the German Damenchor at the Alcazar in Baltimore, on April 24, at 7:30 p.m.

Other dates include: March 24, Lebanon Catholic High School, Lebanon, Pa.; Walkersville High School, Walkersville, Md., April 19; April 28, John Carroll High School, Belair, Md.; May 1, St. Joseph's High School, Emmitsburg, and the annual Parents Day Concert on campus; May 5, The Catholic High School for Girls in Baltimore, and Maryvale School, Brooklandville, Md.; May 10, Taneytown High School, Taneytown, Md.

Dates to be announced include concerts at Mount De Sales School, Baltimore; St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing, Baltimore; Sinai School of Nursing, Baltimore;

John Carroll High School, Washington, D. C.; and DeMatha High School, Hyattsville, Md.

Students Cited By Time Magazine

St. Joseph's High School has notified Time Magazine that Gerald Orosz, senior, has been named the local winner in Time's 30th annual Current Affairs Contest. Other high-scoring local students include Mary Patricia Hemler and Nancy Starner, both seniors at St. Joseph's High School.

Time's Current Affairs Test, given this year to more than one million college and high school students in the U. S. and Canada, consists of 100 questions on national and foreign affairs. Also included are such categories as business, sports, entertainment, science, religion, literature and the arts.

The test, created for the Time Education Program—an exclusive classroom service of Time magazine—has been taken by nearly 9,000,000 students since its inception 30 years ago.

Top scorers in each of the more than 5,000 classes enrolled in the Time Education Program receive a certificate from Bernhard M. Auer, Publisher of Time, The Weekly Newsmagazine.

Bloodmobile Scheduled Here

Francis X. Ligorano, B.S., Director of the Cogan Union at Mt. St. Mary's College, has announced that the Fourth Annual Red Cross Bloodmobile Day will be held in the Union on March 7 and 8 from 12:30 until 5 p.m. daily. An additional day has been scheduled this year, according to Mr. Ligorano, because of the large number of persons participating in the program last year.

A record of 235 pints of blood were donated last year during the visit with students, seminarians, faculty members, local citizens, and young ladies from nearby St. Joseph College turning out.

Mr. James Grove, Federick postmaster and American Red Cross Bloodmobile chairman, urges all local residents to participate in the program as the need for blood donors and the depletion of the supply of blood on hand continues to be urgent.

Play Try-Outs Given Students

In the past week, two days have been devoted to tryouts for parts in the Senior Class of Emmitsburg High School's production of "The Sound of Music". Singing tryouts were held Tuesday afternoon and speaking tryouts Thursday evening.

Instrumental music for the play will be furnished by the twenty-piece Frederick City Dance Band under the direction of Mr. Gary Smith.

In addition to the advertisers whose names appeared in last week's Chronicle, the business staff would also like to thank Mt. Manor Motel and Crouse's, for their support of the play.

Mounties Win Conference Title

(Continued from Page 1) The defense held up while Carter, aided by Bob Sutor, poured through nine points, enough to ice the verdict. Both teams had extreme difficulty handling the ball. Bad passes hampered the Mount from getting an offense moving. The same held true for the visitors. The seasaw battle saw the Mount cling to a slim 39-37 halftime lead. Throughout the remainder of the second half it was apparent that the team with the fewest mistakes would notch the decision. Carter was the big scoring gun with 32 points followed by Sutor's 29.

The Phelanmen encountered stiff opposition Saturday night, as usual, against a hard-fighting and determined Loyola from Baltimore on the Emmitsburg court. The final score was 99-95 in favor of the Mount, as they played to a capacity house of 2500.

A surge in the last three minutes of the first half which enabled them to lead 51-40 at intermission carried the Mountainers through with Loyola threatening only seriously near the finish.

Dick Dohler, 6'3" Mount Freshman, was chosen the most valuable player in the game. The selection is an annual affair for the game. Dohler enjoyed a brilliant performance and chalked up 22 points.

Throughout the first half the teams took turns in holding medium-size leads before the Mountainers put on their fast finish. Dohler broke a 36-36 tie with 2:34 left in the half. Jim Livelsberger sank a pair of fouls and followed with a fast break score to make it 42-36. Loyola's Bob Lister sank a shot and then Mike Lyons chalked up a three-point play and Sutor hit on a jump shot to complete the scoring for the half.

The Greyhounds trailed throughout the second half with the Mount enjoying a comfortable lead most of the way. Sharing scoring honors for the Mount with Dohler was Lyons with 22. Sutor and Livelsberger followed with 19 and 18. Pat Flynn swished 25 tallies for Loyola.

Following the two had-won victories Friday and Saturday nights, The Mounties ran into a breather as they romped roughshod over a helpless Towson State, 115-59 Tuesday. By virtue of this win the Mounties clinched the Northern Division championship of the Conference.

The Mounts, now 11-3 in league play and 17-5 against all opponents, opened up a 12-0 lead at the start, stretched their advantage to 56-23 at halftime and coasted the rest of the way.

John Carrell, Mount St. Mary's senior, provided the highlight of the runaway contest by passing the 1,000 point mark for his four-year varsity career.

The game was halted and Carrell was presented with the game ball when he passed the milestone early in the second half. He wound up with 18 points, one less than teammates Bob Sutor and Mike Lyons.

Wednesday's game with Western Maryland concluded the home season for the locals as they won 70-48.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

The Emmitsburg Chronicle, in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service, Baltimore District, will publish each week in this column, tax information that will enable taxpayers to become more familiar with the Federal income tax laws. Clip and save for future reference.

Questions And Answers

Q. How much can I deduct for state gas tax this year?

A. On page 9 of the 1040 instruction booklet you will find the amount that may be deducted for gasoline tax on a state-by-state basis.

Q. What's the law in estimated tax? Who has to file a declaration?

A. In general terms, taxpayers are required to file a Declaration of Estimated Income Tax, Form 1040ES, and make quarterly payments of estimated tax when their tax liability is expected to exceed their withholding by $40 or more. See page 6 of the 1040 instructions for further information.

Q. My income last year was just over $6,000 with about $200 of it coming from dividends and interest. My wife earned nearly $1,000 doing survey work and a little commission selling. What would be best for us—a joint return or separate ones?

A. This sort of question usually can't be answered on the basis of income information alone. The amount of your deductible expenses has to be considered. Generally a joint return is most advantageous for married couples. However, you should figure your tax both ways and then file the way that results in the lower tax.

Q. I got a letter from your office asking me to come in for an audit on last year's return. My neighbor, who helped me to prepare it, says he is not permitted to appear with me. What should I do?

A. Anyone who helped prepare your return or who has knowledge of the facts reported in it can appear with you when your return is audited.

However, if the audit leads to a proposed change in your tax liability and you disagree with this finding then anyone who acts as an advocate in your behalf must be enrolled to practice, or if he is a CPA or a lawyer, file the required certificate.

Q. Are Social Security taxes deductible?

A. No, they are not deductible by the employee. The employer may deduct his share as a business expense, however.

Q. I am entitled to alimony. Do I have to pay tax on it?

A. Yes you do. Alimony is taxable income to the recipient and a deductible item for the payer. Child support payments, however, are neither taxable nor deductible.

Q. Are the dividends I received on my G. I. insurance taxable?

A. No, these are exempt from taxation. Any interest earned on these dividends left on deposit with the V.A. is taxable.

Q. Is it true that if you have a capital loss you can carry it over as long as you want? In other words, if I don't use it this year will I lose it?

A. Previous to the Revenue Act of 1964, capital losses could only be carried over 5 years. The 1964 law changed that and capital losses can be carried over indefinitely until absorbed. These losses retain their original character so that a short term loss remains a short loss and a long term loss remains a long term loss.

The answer to your question, therefore, is yes. You may carry a loss without losing it until it is used up.

Now Is Time To Apply Lime To Lawn

February is a good month for applying lime to the lawn, according to the Maryland Nurseryman's Association.

Contrary to the thinking of many, lime is not a fertilizer. It is a soil conditioner, and, as such, does not replace plant food. However, it does perform in such a manner as to permit lawn fertilizers to go to work. The need for lime on the lawn is tied directly to the pH level.

What is a pH level? Briefly, soils are either acid, neutral, or alkaline. By using a scale of 0 to 14, with 7 as neutral, relative acidity is expressed in a proportional way by numbers less than 7. That is, soil with a pH of 5 is more acid than soil with a pH of 6.

Lawn grasses seem to thrive best at a pH reading of about 6.3. This means that plant food in the soil is more likely to be absorbed and used by the lawn if the pH is in the vicinity of 6.3.

Without lime, most soils in the Maryland-Delaware-District of Columbia area tend to become more acid than this preferred level, thereby impeding lawn development. Three consecutive years of below normal precipitation have also tended to increase acidity of soils in this area.

There are several kinds of lime available. The local county agricultural agent, plant food dealer, or nurseryman can advise on which is best for a given locality. Sometimes in problem areas, they will recommend professional soil testing before determining which type to use. Generally speaking, either hydrated lime or ground limestone can be used in this area. On sandy loams a normal application will be 50 pounds per 1000 square feet every two or three years. If the soil is heavy, the amount may be reduced by one-half; if it is extremely sandy, the application of lime should be increased by one-third.

March is a good time to apply lawn food. But the lawn food is a poor investment if the turf has not been conditioned ahead of time.

Route #1,
Gettysburg, Pennsylvania

ORDER OF PUBLICATION
The object of this Bill of Complaint is to procure a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII by the Complainant, Richard H. Summers, from the Defendant, Arvilla H. Summers.

The Bill states in substance that the Complainant, Richard H. Summers, is a resident of Frederick County, State of Maryland, where he has resided for more than one year last past; that the Defendant, Arvilla H. Summers, is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and when last heard from was residing c/o Dennis Baker, Route #1, Gettysburg, Pennsylvania.

The Bill further states that the Complainant and the Defendant were married on October 14, 1949, at Columbus, South Carolina, by a regularly ordained Minister of the Gospel; that as a result of the said marriage, three children were born, namely, Evon H. Summers, aged 15 years, Diane M. Summers, aged 14 years, and Richard E. Summers, aged 12 years, all of whom are in the care and custody of the Complainant; that the Complainant and the Defendant have voluntarily lived separate and apart, without cohabitation for more than 18 consecutive months prior to the filing of this Bill of Complaint; and that the said separation is beyond any reasonable hope or expectation of reconciliation. The Bill prays that the Defendant, Richard H. Summers, may be divorced A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Arvilla H. Summers, and that the Complainant may be granted such other and further relief as the nature of his case may require.

ORDER OF THE COURT

It is thereupon ORDERED by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Maryland, on this 11th day of February, 1966, that the Complainant, Richard H. Summers, by Order of Publication of this Court to be inserted in some newspaper published in Frederick County, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks on or before the 19th day of March, 1966, give notice to the said Defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning him to be and appear in this Court, in person or by Solicitor, on or before the 19th day of April, 1966, and show cause, if any she has, why the Decree should not be passed as prayed therein.

March of Dimes Aids Two Children In Same Family with PKU Defect

In many small ways, Billy Joe Gray, who is only 2 years old, is protective toward his sister, Terry, who is almost twice his age. You see it when they're frolicking with their pointer, Fritzie, for example.

Billy Joe only dimly understands why he feels protective toward his older sister. All that he knows for sure is that Terry doesn't always act like other youngsters.

Billy Joe's instincts are sound. Terry doesn't always act like other little girls on the block. She's mentally retarded.

Terry's tragedy stems from an inherited disorder called phenylketonuria, or PKU, for short. What is singular about this story is that Billy Joe also has PKU; but, unlike his pretty sister, he's as bright as a button.

The answer to the puzzle of why a brother and sister both with PKU are so dissimilar mentally comes when you ask about their medical histories at the March of Dimes Birth Defects Center at Boston (Mass.) City Hospital.

There it's disclosed that PKU was not detected in Terry until she was 17 months old. Her mother, Mrs. Jeanne Gray, of Cochituate, Mass., had given birth to a normal boy and girl before Terry was born. In very early infancy Terry also seemed normal. Then, after Terry was about six months of age, her mother wondered why the baby never talked and was unable to roll over by herself.

PKU remained undetected in Terry until soon after Billy Joe came along, at which time his sister was 17 months old. Billy Joe was two months premature and at birth weighed only 3 lbs., 14 ounces. When Billy Joe, at the age of 23 days, failed to do as well as he should, he was tested at Boston City Hospital for PKU, an examination that had then become routine at that hospital. The results showed he had PKU.

At this point, of course, the doctors immediately suspected what might be the source of Terry's physical and mental slowness. Suspicion became certainty when Terry, after her test, also was shown to be a victim of PKU.

The PKU test was developed by Dr. Robert Guthrie of the University of New York at Buffalo with the aid of March of Dimes grants and other assistance.

Once the PKU diagnoses were made, Terry and Billy Joe were immediately placed on a special diet low in phenylalanine. This is an amino acid which builds up in the bodies of PKU victims to cause brain damage.

But, tragically, PKU inflicts its brain damage during the first few months of life. At the age of 17 months, Terry was already afflicted though she is by no means as retarded as some other children in similar circumstances. Billy Joe is thriving.

Tax Talk And Budget Blues

Washington is wishing it knew what to do about Vietnam. Although the war itself takes only a small token of the nation's economic strength, perhaps 2 per cent, a step-up in the war would mean a requirement of several billions more.

At best, the estimators say, defense expenditures are likely to continue toward the $60 billion mark, war or no war. With the U. S. manning the ramparts around the world in defense of freedom and our allies less interested in helping, American taxpayers are going to bear the costs. Both blood and treasure, it seems, are required of those who would remain free. And you can be sure that the debate about Vietnam will be stepped-up if a tax increase is

Money, Money

Spending, War or Peace

The tax cut, we were told by the Kennedy administration, was required for prosperity. But it was President Johnson who pushed it through Congress, for he viewed it as necessary for his election. Now, firmly entrenched and with a majority in Congress that will do his bidding, can he convince Congress as well as the people that higher taxes will be needed not only to support the war in Vietnam but to siphon off excess money as an anti-inflation device? If he undertakes this, we shall commend his forthrightness.

Labor Secretary Writz has been telling the convention circuit that domestic spending, comprising the federal battle for education, against poverty, to assure welfare, etc., is just as important as the fighting going on in South Vietnam, maybe more so. Mr. Johnson, having also shown much determination in pursuing the great society, wants no let-up in domestic spending. Nevertheless, something may have to go.

Money, Money

Congress last year authorized or appropriated expenditures of nearly $111 billions. Some of this is to be spread out through several years, but estimates of federal spending for the fiscal year to end in mid-1966 are shy of that amount by only $4 or $5 billion. Over the next five years, a billion will be spent in Appalachia and at least $7 billion in federal aid to education. Another $7 billion for housing and urban renewal. The poverty war will cost, in all its ramifications, at least $5 billion. And nobody hardly dares estimate the future price tag on our souped-up welfare and security programs. Many, many billions.

The cash spending picture, which includes social security and other programs not in the budget, will see outlays this year, according to U. S. News & World Report, of $132 billion, up nearly $10 billion from the year before. In the next fiscal year, it will be up by $11.5 billion to $143.5 billion, they say. Welfare spending, in other words, is about to catch up with defense expenditures. Interest on the public debt amounts to $12 billion a year, and the cash outlay for that is the third largest item on the government spending list.

Fighting Two Wars

It was hardly expected, considering habits of the federal government, that the President would keep his new budget from spilling over the $100 billion mark for the first time. His predicted budget of $112.8 billion and expected revenue of $111 billion, with a deficit of $1.8 billion, simply mean that he is expecting to spend at home and abroad on the strength of the boom economy. No major tax raises are being requested now, but there is to be more spending to rout poverty, as well as a more determined effort in South Vietnam. The political pitfalls are ominous.

And so, also, is a tax boost in an election year. With millions of voters still wondering what relief the 1964 and 1965 tax cuts brought them, politicians in the hustings this summer and fall are going to be hesitant to bring the subject, particularly if they're running for re-election. Nevertheless, we long for the kind of statesman, in or out of office, who will assure the public that whatever the government does for the people will have to be paid for by the people. A whopping tax increase, if anybody had the courage to suggest it, would carry home the point.

Your Personal Health

The Vanishing Birthmark

Every mother remembers her first inspection of her newborn baby. And the held breath and pounding heart that went with it. Some of those mothers recall, too, their sinking feeling at the discovery of a red, raised area in a conspicuous spot.

Most of the unhappy mothers found out later, though, that their dismay was unnecessary. These birthmarks are quite common in infants. But, for the most part, they disappear completely during childhood. So says Dr. Victor H. Witten in a recent issue of Today's Health.

What are these vanishing birthmarks? Hemangiomas, as they are called, are small masses of blood vessels, reddish or purplish in color. Nobody knows what causes them, they serve no purpose. They are benign—they are not and do not become cancerous.

The raised, soft strawberry mark is one of three kinds of hemangiomas. It usually appears within the first few months of life and grows rather quickly for six months to a year and a half. It may increase by several times its size during this period, then stay put for awhile, then slowly begin to shrink and fade. It disappears completely in 7 out of 10 cases by the age of seven. And among those that don't disappear completely, only about 6 per cent are so unsightly as to call for treatment.

If you or your child has a hemangioma, you should consult a doctor, of course. If it's close to the eye or some other vulnerable spot, treatment may be necessary.

For the most part, though, nature does the job unaided. Don't be frightened by a strawberry mark. Like many other undesirable things in life, it's probably on the way out.

Vaccination—now a common preventive against many diseases—dates back to 1796, according to World Book Encyclopedia. Edward Jenner developed a vaccine against smallpox in that year, giving the first vaccination to an eight-year-old boy named James Phipps.

Does Your Town Smile Or Frown?

A plan for a simple feature at the entrance to a town is given for your inspiration.

Have you ever taken a good look at the entrances to your town or city? Do they look like entrances to a place you'd like to live and work or are they just a continuation of road and buildings? Or is there, perhaps, a sign that indicates a change of place but nothing else? In other words, does your town smile or frown? Wouldn't your home and your business benefit from an entrance that looks as if someone cared about the municipality and was proud to live or work there? The simple plan above emanates a sense of well-being and of pride in the surroundings.

It is not only simple, it is inexpensive to construct. A concrete block rectangle provides place for the name of the town, sites of interest to the visitor and coming events as well as the symbols of the service clubs that make it their home. Isn't this far more effective than numerous small, individual signs?

A paved area features a corner for a flagpole flaunting Old Glory and provides a bench for the resident and stranger alike with brilliant color. These annuals can be grown from seeds cheaply and easily so that any garden club, even one of junior citizens, a 4-H club or service club can raise funds to provide the flowers or, in fact, the entire friendly entrance.

MID YEAR DITHERS
By Margie Blake, Carnation Teen Committee

There are people who don't worry about exams. They don't even study; they just walk in, write out their answers, turn in their papers, and wait for the inevitable "A".

There are also people like us, who can use a bit of review (at least) and know it. The trouble is, it looks like a stupendous task to retrace four months' work between now and the day of the examination. How do you decide where to start—and where to stop?

The thing to do is play a trick on yourself, and soon. When the job looks formidable, there's a tendency to procrastinate (Margie knows) till the time has run out. The trick is to make a date with yourself for a not-study session. Take an hour to find out whether you need hard study, and, if so, on what.

During this appointment, go over class notes, graded papers, tests, and the textbook. If your materials aren't in order, arranging them will help. It will show you the areas that need attention. List them in order of urgency. Add references to notes, papers, and the text. Make suggestions to yourself on how to shore up: should you re-read and digest the material, or drill yourself with problems, or take a fresh look at whole units of material?

Probably you'll find things aren't as bad as you thought. After you've decided what you need to do in each subject in which you must take an examination, the next problem is how best to do it. Make a second date for that. It may be that a visit or two to the library will help; perhaps you can arrange a study session with a class-mate. Maybe you work best alone.

A couple of hints: if your own textbook doesn't get you on certain points, try a different one, for a new slant. For vocabulary drill, as in foreign language study, make tickets with words on one side, meanings on the other. Test yourself by drawing them out of a hat.

During study sessions, take a break from time to time, and walk the family dog, listen to music, or have a snack while the facts sink in. For the snack, Tuna Toast-wiches are good brain food, quickly made with velvitized Carnation milk.

To make three Toastwiches, drain and flake 1 6 1/2-ounce can tuna. Mix in a bowl with 1/2 cup (1/2 pound) grated process American cheese, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons chopped sweet pickles, and 1 1/2 teaspoons grated onion. Spread 3 slices bread with prepared mustard, if desired; spoon tunafish on the bread and spread evenly. Top with 3 other bread slices and cut sandwiches diagonally. In a pie plate, beat 1 egg lightly; blend in 1/2 cup undiluted Carnation evaporated milk. Dip both sides of sandwiches into egg-milk mixture. Place on cookie sheet. Broil in pre-heated broiler, 5 to 7 inches from heat. Turn. Allow about 5 to 7 minutes for browning both sides of sandwich. Serve hot.

And back to work!—early enough to leave time for plenty of sleep, so that by E-Day you'll be bright-eyed and alert.

A final tip: when the course is over and the grade's in, don't discard class notes. The examinations you take for college entrance will include the subjects of your early-high school days, and your own notes are the best source material you'll find.

The Carnation Teen Committee, made up of teens in schools across the country, makes suggestions for this column. If you have an idea or want a Teen Party Idea Booklet, write to CTC, 777 Third Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10017.

Highway Deer Kill Up

A total of 1,131 deer were killed by motor vehicles in the state of Maryland during the year 1965, according to the Maryland Dept. of Game and Inland Fish.

All twenty-three counties reported deer fatalities which represented a low kill of 14 in Howard County and a high kill of 109 in Charles County, followed by 105 in Kent County and 97 in Alle-gany County.

During the year 1964, 1006 deer were killed by motorists on Maryland highways. This represents an increase of 125 animals killed in car-deer collisions.

In addition to the car kill of 1,131 deer, 202 animals met their death from other causes such as entanglement with fences, farm machinery, railroad trains, fighting with one another and dogs.

Records on Farm and Mart

Soybean production in 1965 was an all-time record, 844,000,000 bushels, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This harvest scene is in the heart of the Midwest soybean belt—Decatur, Illinois.

Here's what all the shouting in the pit is about. The lowly bean is shown in a man's hand, giving an idea of its size—about that of a small green pea.

Soybeans set a record on the Chicago Board of Trade last year with 17.8 billion bushels traded. This scene in the soybean pit was made on a recent day at the height of trading.

These figure are minimal, representing only the instances known to the Department of Game and Inland Fish. An undetermined number of animals will survive the impact of a vehicle long enough to drag themselves off the highway and then die unnoticed.

Vehicle damage is heavy, too. The average repair bill to a car after one of these collisions is between $260 and $300. Hospitalization of human victims is not uncommon but 1965 did not produce any deaths known to the Department.

Motorists are warned to drive slowly and carefully on approach and passing through DEER CROSSING AREAS.

Aerial Inventory of Waterfowl The just completed annual mid-winter inventory of waterfowl wintering in the Chesapeake Bay produced over 791,000 birds, the Department of Game and Inland Fish reported.

The aerial inventory was made between January 4 and 7 in cooperation with the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service as part of a count made along the entire Atlantic Coast.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Skill in landing fresh-water fish is the mark of a true (and successful) fisherman. Netting is the safest and most-convenient method. Hold the front of your net down under the surface and lead the fish head first well into it before you raise the net or move it at all. Any attempt to jab at him with the net, or scoop with it, is very likely to lose him. You'll notice that if you touch a fish's tail with the net frame, he'll almost invariably make a sudden surge forward—which, of course, is all right when you're doing things properly and that only drives him into the back meshes of the net.

You can boat a bass by thrusting your thumb into his mouth and lifting him by the lower jaw. Bending that jaw so as to hold his mouth wide open seems, for some reason, usually to paralyze him so that he won't do any flopping to speak of. However, there's some danger in this method, especially when you're using multiple-hook lures.

A walleye has both long, sharp teeth that could raise a hob with a thumb stuck into his mouth and sharp spines on his back.

How about the pike? Some recommend landing this fish by placing a thumb and forefinger in his eye sockets. "This, however, may cause blindness in a fish you mean to liberate," warns Jason Lucas, Angling Editor of Sports Afield Magazine.

If you have on a larger trout, you'll almost invariably work him into a comparatively quiet pool before trying to net him—head first, of course.

To carry a net hanging from your neck by the customary round elastic cord can mean setting up a booby trap. You're forcing your way through high brush along the bank; the net hangs on it until the elastic cord is extended about as far as it will go. Then the net suddenly releases and the butt of the net handle catches a clout on the back of the neck.

If you don't wear a creel, with harness, here's a tip: buy a plain key ring, attach it to your fishing jacket with a strong safety pin at whatever spot suits you and clip the snap of your net onto it.

Monkeys—Mosquitoes—Men Is Viet Malaria Cycle

The new strain of simian malaria causing many casualties in the jungles and paddies of Viet Nam is transmitted from monkeys to mosquitoes to man and is much more virulent than previous strains, reports Dr. James R. Cox, Jr., a Georgia Tech organic chemist. The strain has been termed "malignant malaria" because of the very high fevers it causes, the extreme weakening effects it has on the body and the much higher percentage of deaths resulting from it.

Potentially explosive mixtures of air and propane are eliminated when propane tanks are started up or shut down for repairs by inerting the vessels with carbon dioxide, says Cardox, Chicago. The tanks are inerted by removing liquid propane and diluting residual propane vapor with carbon dioxide so that the admission of air will not create a combustible mixture.

Butterflies That You Can Grow

Open throats instead of the usual "dragon's jaws" characterize these new-type snapdragons. Bright Butterflies is the name of a fine mixture of colors.

You need no longer watch for the occasional visit of a butterfly to your garden. Instead you can grow Bright Butterflies. For this is the name of a new mixture of snapdragon colors that has won an All-America Selections award for 1966.

These differ from the snapdragons with which you are familiar because they have lost their "dragon's jaws" and have open, trumpet-shaped throats. They bloom in clear, beautiful colors; yellow, rose, pink, crimson, orange, apricot and white. Some flowers have light-colored throats which contrast with the ground color of the petals.

Plants grow 2 to 3 feet high, branching freely from the base. Hybrid vigor produces sturdy growth. They bloom in early mid-summer, before the older Rocket type, and will bear a second and even a third crop of bloom during the season if old flowers are kept cut.

You'll be surprised to see how many blooms are produced in each crop. This is because Bright Butterflies do not set seeds as freely as other snapdragons. Try these novel flowers in your garden this year. They grow easily from seeds sown indoors or out.

Methods and instruments to obtain more accurate temperature measurement of turbulent hot gases are being sought by a Northwestern University astrophysicist. Turbulence in very hot gases—like those in the sun and in rocket exhausts—causes errors as large as 2,000 to 3,000 degrees F. when temperatures are measured by conventional spectroscopic methods, explains Dr. Jay Burns. He favors a refined technique called time-resolved spectroscopy in which intensities of different wave lengths (colors) of light radiated by a hot gas are compared during extremely short lengths of time.

The shortage of competent anesthesiologists is creating a serious bottleneck in modern surgery, reports Dr. E. M. Papper, professor of anesthesiology at Columbia University. The shortage is compounded by complex operations that often require as many as three anesthesiologists, confining them to one operation for a period in which, normally, they could work with several patients.

OUTDOOR SPORTING TIPS

Cardboard Fire Starter

Take a strip of corrugated cardboard two by ten inches. On it lay a strip of wool yarn. Soak the whole in melted paraffin. Wrap in wax paper when cool. Now you've got a fire starter that will burn long (15 minutes) and hot enough to catch stubbornest wet wood.

Plastic Slicker

Use those big plastic clothes bags as slickers. Cut a hole for your head. Cheap enough to throw away after use.

Wet Watch

You'll never get your watch wet with an unexpected fall if you wrap it several times in plastic and stow it in your pocket. And clear plastic lets you see what time it is.

Wet Boots

Here's another way to dry wet boots. Stick your hand warmers in them.

Ice Fishing

Fill a pound coffee can with burning charcoal and sit it next to your ice fishing hole. It will keep it from freezing.

Heater

And an inexpensive heater can be made with a roll of tissue paper in a bucket. Fill bottom with alcohol. Cheap anti-freeze will do. It will burn for hours.

Stopped Jack

Stop a rabbit in his tracks with a blast on a high-pitched dog whistle. Why it stops them, nobody knows. But it does.

Live Bait

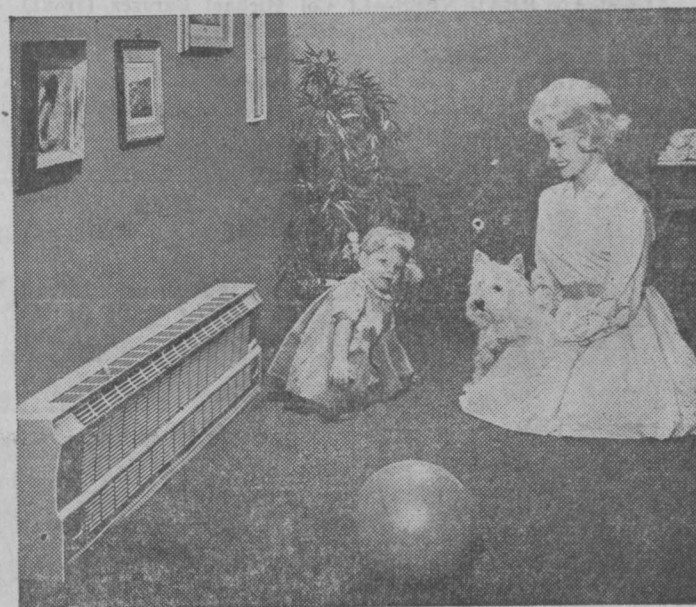

Trout fishing, carry a tube of fast-drying cement. If you catch a grasshopper or big moth, put a spot of glue on him and hold on hook until dry. Can't be beat for natural action and look.

How to save money you've never even seen

Sound impossible? Far from it. Just put that invisible cash to work with United States Savings Bonds. Here's how it works:

Next time you get a raise—no matter how small—just have your paymaster set aside a certain amount toward the purchase of Savings Bonds.

Presto. It's done. The Payroll Savings Plan takes care of the details. Collects the money, buys your bonds. And you won't miss the money. You've never seen it.

By the time you get used to that little glow of pride in your first Bond, your second one is already on its way. And that first one is already earning money for you—at 3 1/2% interest when held to maturity.

Millions of Americans are saving money this effortless way—and helping their country at the same time. You can, too. Just sign your name to the application. The Payroll Savings Plan will do the rest.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson's Point Of View On: Emotions And the Stock Market BABSON PARK, Mass., Feb. 17—Last June 10 in this column we stuck our neck out and predicted that the Dow-Jones Industrial Average would "reach at least 1,000 in 1965." Furthermore, we then forecast that the May 1965 high of 939 on the Dow would be exceeded by Christmas. We were "right as rain" about new highs before Christmas. But we missed the puncturing of 1,000 by a hair's breadth. However, we still stick by that forecast that the Dow Industrials will soon record a closing figure above 1,000.

ALASKAN READINESS—Lt. Col. Michael Barszcz (front) outlines a communications problem to Captain Dale J. Bickert in a combat readiness evaluation at Fort Richardson, Alaska. The white stocking hats worn by the officers are considered more comfortable and practical than the "pile cap" normally worn in the Arctic.

Pessimism Rampant Last June
In June when we took our optimistic stand, pessimism was thicker than a London fog. Stocks were being heavily sold and the averages tumbled almost daily. Between mid-May and late June the Dow Industrial Average crashed roughly 100 points. Many professional analysts turned bearish. Followers of the ancient "Dow Theory" method of projecting the course of stocks proclaimed that we had entered a "bear" market.

The country last June was going through a real case of war jitters. Many columnists were full of dire foreboding as to what would happen to our soldiers in Vietnam when they were attacked by the wily Reds under cover of the torrential Monsoon rains. Fears of what the Russians and Chinese might do were heard everywhere. There was a growing disposition to write off our war effort before it had really begun.

Mind Over Matter
Since that great wave of gloom in June, almost every statistical indicator of our economy's health has soared to new heights. And, after some wobbling in July, the stock market climbed almost straight up to new all-time peaks. Those who felt back then that the tumble in securities was predicting a recession have lost a lot of faith in the market as a prophet for the economy.

The really big lesson to be learned from what happened in the late spring of 1965 is the overpowering part that emotion plays in determining the actions of businessmen and investors. Last June the prospects of jungle fighting stirred great fears. Within a very few months, however, expectations of an even bigger war aroused deep worries over inflation; and the people who had dumped stocks six months earlier rushed to buy them as a shield against inflation. Then, the emotion of greed took over. Buyers flocked into the market to get some of the profits others were piling up in stocks.

After 1,000, What?
Although we are convinced that the 1,000 mark will be scaled by a wide margin before long, we are even more certain that sometime this year an event will occur that will once more sharply change the emotions of stockholders. Of course, we are not saying that stock prices are governed by emotions alone. We realize that any big drop in profits would see stocks going much lower. What we have in mind today are those sudden "out-of-the-blue" breaks such as we experienced last June and in 1962.

Actually, it makes no difference to the owner of stocks whether the decline is caused by a business slump, or by panicky fear unloading. The dollars lost hurt just as much. As we look into the future, our minds are likely to be influenced by our most recent experiences. Right now, it is natural to think of any future market break as being caused by some new war-like development. However, the next stampede out of stocks could just as well be touched off by Russia's successfully establishing a huge space platform visible to millions on earth.

Keep Investment Feet On Ground
Whatever the cause for the next shift in emotions, be sure of one thing . . . it will come suddenly and unexpectedly. Hence, when the Dow soars above 1,000, don't be carried away by the wave of rejoicing. Keep your investment feet on the ground and a good reserve of quality bonds and savings books in your safe deposit box. Years of ever-climbing markets have made for carelessness in investing habits. For those owning stocks, there is still no substitute for a soundly conceived and well-balanced financial program.

Participates In Training Exercise

Army Pfc John G. Ohler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy R. Ohler, R2, Taneytown, Md. took part in Exercise Marne Mauler, an 11-day field training exercise in Germany which ended February 7.

Ohler's unit, the 556th Medical Company, participated with the 3d Infantry Division during the exercise, which was held to provide intensive training in tactical procedures against an aggressor force, and to further train the division to support itself logistically.

American, German and French air and ground forces also took part in the exercise as friendly and aggressor forces. Marne Mauler is part of the year-round program the 3d Infantry Division conducts to maintain its combat proficiency. The 23-year-old soldier, a mechanic in the 556th Medical Company near Heilbronn, entered the Army in September 1964. He completed basic training at Fort Gordon, Ga., and was last assigned at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. Ohler, a 1959 graduate of Emmitsburg High School, was employed by the Cambridge Rubber Co., Taneytown, before entering the Army.

The word "vaccination" comes from the Latin word "vacca," meaning cow, according to World Book Encyclopedia. The term originally referred only to the injection of cowpox virus into the body to prevent smallpox.

SMOOTH SELLING
by George N. Kahn, Marketing Consultant
YOU ARE A GOODWILL SALESMAN, TOO
Copyright—George N. Kahn

Goodwill is the most elusive element in salesmanship. You can't wrap it, carry it, order it, service it, ship it or store it. Yet, it is one of the salesman's most precious assets. The goodwill of a business is a commonly accepted asset that may be worth millions of dollars when the company is sold. A salesman's goodwill is just as important and also carries a dollars and cents value. The amount of goodwill you carry into your selling will often determine whether you are a $10,000 or $50,000 a year man. Creating goodwill should be built into the selling process. You cannot operate effectively without it.

Full Time Job
Building goodwill is a full-time job. It isn't something you turn off when the sale is closed. Goodwill continues throughout your entire connection with the customer. If you're in doubt about the importance of goodwill, look around you. It manifests itself in all kinds of human endeavor. International diplomacy depends largely on goodwill among nations. Politicians run on the strength of the goodwill they have established with voters. Your company and thousands of other firms spend millions of dollars to create goodwill among customers, the public and stockholders. Corporations buy uniforms for the school band, contribute to local charities, supply speakers for various events and offer their facilities for community use.

The barber seeks goodwill by giving junior a lollipop and the corner supermarket by loaning umbrellas to customers on rainy days.

Customer's Interest First
For the salesman, goodwill can be spelled out in three ways:
1. Putting the customer's interests first.
2. Working with the customer.
3. Remembering to do little things that make the customer remember you.
First off you must impress on the buyer that you have his interest uppermost in mind. You are in a service occupation. It's not the same as sitting behind a desk a time clock. The customer must be your constant pre-occupation to the point that you think of him during off hours as well as on calls.

Personal Touch
Goodwill is doing favors for customers, but it's also a lot of other things. It's sending the customer a card when he's sick, had a baby or on holidays.

It's admiring that stuffed marlin on his wall.

It's a congratulatory note when he's passed a business milestone. It's small talk about his golf game or bowling score. Some salesmen hurry in and out of a buyer's office as if it were on fire. Even if you don't get an order, don't scamper for the door. Chat with the prospect for a while. The time you spend with him may one day net you a fat commission.

Sympathize with his special problems, comment on his new suit. Let him know that sale or no sale you stand ready to serve him at all times. Treat the non-buyer with the same respect and deference that you would a customer who dumps a $100,000 order into your lap.

Word of Goodwill Spreads
Goodwill is a quality that will precede the salesman who practices it.

Take the case of Andy Derren. He was transferred from an eastern to a southwestern territory in a complex company shuffle.

Andy has commanded a loyal band of customers in his old district and he was downhearted and bitter about leaving it. He almost quit. But he stayed on and was glad he did. During his first week in the new territory he was pleasantly surprised to find that several prospects and customers knew him by reputation and were ready to do business with him.

"One man," Andy recalled, "actually promised to line up other customers for me. That really gave me a good feeling." This did not happen by accident. He had earned it through the goodwill he had created over the years.

Don't Hit and Run
The salesman who hits and runs is destroying any goodwill his company may have created. Selling the merchandise is only the first step. You must follow through to make sure the product was delivered on schedule, that the billing was correct and that the customer is entirely satisfied. If you are selling electronic equipment or mechanical gear, work with the buyer until you're sure he thoroughly understands its operation.

Customer Confidence
Keep a scrapbook of the stuff you gather. It makes a fine reference source to call on when you need it most. This can be studied before going on call, at lunch, or while you're waiting in reception rooms. Time is precious to a salesman. Don't waste it. You also cement goodwill by respecting a customer's confidence, being truthful with him, displaying tact and courtesy with recalcitrant buyers and conducting yourself at all times like a gentleman.

Another exercise in futility is to make bum excuses for a job not well done. If deliveries fail to arrive on schedule or goods are damaged, admit the fumble and take the blame—even if you are blameless. You may lose a customer; that's the risk you take. But there is a better than even chance you'll command his admiration and respect for evermore. Bad breaks and accidents can happen and a customer knows it. But, he won't forgive a salesman trying to weasel out of a bad situation with tired, unconvincing stories.

Have you ever wondered what kind of a goodwill purveyor you are. Here's a little exercise to help you find out. Answer nine or more "yes" and your goodwill capacity is pretty high.

- 5. Do I agree with customers when they have a legitimate gripe? Yes No
- 6. Do I study references that may give me helpful hints for customers? Yes No
- 7. Do I try to see the customer's situation as he sees it? Yes No
- 8. If a customer's son graduated from college, would I write or wire him congratulations? Yes No
- 9. Do I use company sales aids to build goodwill? Yes No
- 10. Do I refrain from knocking competition? Yes No
- 11. Do I avoid weak excuses for poor performance? Yes No
- 12. Do I make absolutely sure the prospect understands the proposition and product? Yes No

Lions Club To Hear County Agent

President William H. Kelz presided over the regular meeting of the Emmitsburg Lions Club held Monday evening in Mt Manor Restaurant.

The president announced the annual district convention would be held in Atlantic City May 25-28 and asked for volunteers to attend the event. The club discussed a birthday calendar project and approved four individuals for membership.

The club agreed to donate to an honorarium for the retiring District Governor. Also discussed was the possible purchasing and operation of the Mountain View Cemetery as a civic project. Additional information on this project is being sought and will be discussed further at future meetings. It was announced that the assistant county agriculture agent would be the guest speaker at the next meeting. Lion Ralph Tabler will introduce the agent.

Chimney Fire

The Vigilant Hose Co. responded to a chimney fire alarm at the Robert Wetzel property on Kelbaugh Road last Saturday at 4 p.m. No damage was reported by Fire Chief Guy R. McLaughlin. The Chief also reported that the firemen had pumped out of four local basements during the heavy rains Saturday night and Sunday.

Security Office Open On Holiday

W. S. King, District Manager, Social Security Office, located at 59 North Cannon Avenue, Hagerstown, announced this week that the social security office will be open to the public on February 22, 1966. King said normally that all federal offices are closed on George Washington's birthday; however, the social security office is remaining open to assist Washington and Frederick County residents in filing for social security and Medicare benefit. The office will also be open every Saturday morning from 9:00 until 12:00 through March. Mr. King emphasized that it is important to remember that a person 65 or over must make a decision on Medicare by March 31.

22 Die On State Roads In Week

Twenty-two persons were killed on Maryland highways last week according to the weekly review published by the Maryland State Police. Ten of those killed were drivers; six were passengers and six were pedestrians. Alcohol was a contributing factor in six of the deaths; speed in six; and "driver error" was present in seventeen of other fatalities.

"Of the 696 persons killed on Maryland highways last year, 292—42%—were drivers," commented Col. Carey Jarman, superintendent of the Maryland State Police. "It is reliably estimated that half of this number, 146, were under the influence of a substantial amount of alcohol."

"Think of it," continued Col. Jarman, "146 drivers under the influence of alcohol killed in one year, to say nothing of the innocent victims of their negligence.

Weekend visitors at the home of Mrs. Clarence Sanders included Mr. and Mrs. James Brady and family, Lakewood, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. James Sanders, Bethesda. They also visited with Mrs. Sanders' daughter, Sister Patricia, at St. Joseph's Province House.

Kiwanis Club To Show Film

Cecilia Rhode, veteran Alaskan wildlife photographer brings the latest Wally Taber Safari Show to the Gettysburg Jr. High Auditorium, Wed., March 2, 8 p.m., under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club of Historic Gettysburg. Above the well-known sportsman-photographer holds a 47-pound lake trout taken while documenting one of his two living-color high-adventure films to be shown.

Rain Eases Drought Here

Recent rains plus melting snow have done much to alleviate Emmitsburg's water dilemma.

"The recent snowfall will help the water situation but we can't tell how much the water supply will be increased because most of the snow near the town reservoir hasn't melted," reported Emmitsburg Mayor Ralph Irelan last week.

Mrs. Paul Beale, Emmitsburg

area weather observer, reported a total rainfall over last weekend of 2.30 inches. In addition to this boost, rain again descended upon the area Tuesday night and Wednesday and it was noticed that Rainbow Lake had begun to rise. Water Commissioner Norman Flax reported earlier in the week that the three smaller reservoirs had filled, but to his knowledge, the water ban was still in existence.

Irelan, who appeared confident that Tom's Creek emergency pumping operation would suffice until rain has been received by the community, said that the town reservoir is 479 feet above the level of the town and colder temperatures restrict melting. The reservoir, according to Irelan, has been widened and deepened recently in preparation for spring rainfalls. A three-day downpour last February caused the reservoir to overflow. However, a couple of weeks' rain is needed this year to bring the supply back to normal, he said.

The town is presently pumping eight hours a day from Tom's Creek, which amounts to approximately 75,000 gallons per day. The mayor reported that no bans have been put on the town or the two colleges, but residents are conserving water voluntarily.

Mayor Irelan said that the town hasn't received any definite word from the application for federal aid through the federal housing administration. Irelan added, "The federal housing administration is guiding Emmitsburg as to what decisions to make next and nothing definite will be known until its report is made." A permanent pumping station for Tom's Creek would guard against future water shortages, he says. The cost of a permanent system would have to be estimated by engineers. However, he said, the federal engineers might decide that Tom's Creek is not the best location for a year-round station. This decision to make Tom's Creek the year-round pumping station was made by the town commissioners, not federal authorities, he reminded.

The spillway of the town reservoir also is being raised a foot in preparation for future shortages. The water being pumped from Tom's Creek is chlorinated but not filtered, but a water rating received Thursday from the State Health Department was one of the best ever, according to town officials.

The mayor concluded, "Local wells are showing an increase in level, the reservoir has increased approximately two inches and the general situation in encouraging at this time."

Relief Fund Appeal Planned

The 20th annual Bishops' Overseas Relief Fund Appeal, in behalf of the needy throughout the world, will be conducted in the Archdiocese of Baltimore from March 13 to 20, according to Msgr. Thomas J. Mardaga, archdiocesan director. Monsignor Mardaga said that Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of Washington, chairman of the Administrative Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, has set this period for the appeal to be conducted throughout the United States in the more than 17,000 Catholic churches.

In a letter to the bishops of the United States, Archbishop O'Boyle wrote, "Last year, the Bishops' Overseas Relief Fund collection made it possible for us to maintain a program that had a value of almost $173 million. This aid reached 40 million people in 80 countries all over the world, entirely on the basis of need, without regard to race, color or religion."

The annual Bishops' Overseas Relief Fund Appeal supports the world-wide programs of Catholic Relief Services—NCWC, overseas aid agency of the American bishops and laity.

The Bishops' Appeal will officially open on Ash Wednesday, February 23, with Pope Paul's annual radio message to American Catholic elementary and high school students. They will be asked to participate in a special and separate 40-day Lenten campaign by making personal contributions for the less fortunate children overseas.

Included in the world-wide activities of Catholic Relief Services is the agency's emergency program in Vietnam for victims of the war there.

Last year, in response to direct appeals from Pope Paul and President Johnson, Catholic Relief Services sharply increased its overall aid program in Vietnam to assist over one million refugees, orphans, widows and other war victims. Since mid-1965, Catholic Relief Services quadrupled its shipments of food, clothing and medicines to Vietnam and sent a special five-man emergency team to Saigon to help implement the increased aid program.

During the last 12 months, the Bishops' Overseas Relief Fund agency dispatched from U. S. ports to overseas ports of entry in 80 countries a total of 2,139 shipments of relief supplies—an average of one every four hours around the clock every day of the year. Increased emphasis was also given to long-range developmental programs, such as self-help, urban renewal and rural education projects, designed to improve the socio-economic conditions in the underdeveloped nations of Africa, Asia and Latin America.

Since its founding in 1943, the Bishops' Overseas Relief Fund agency has distributed over seven million tons of food, clothing, medicines and other relief supplies to the poverty-afflicted throughout the world.

Chronicle Will Publish Local Babies' Pictures

It is an undisputed fact that the responsibilities of tomorrow's world, our Nation and Community, will rest upon the shoulders of the children of today. Since this is true, the publishers of this newspaper would like to give you a good look at these future "World Builders."

The only way we can do this is by publishing pictures of them in a feature series. To assure the latest and best reproduction pictures they must be all of uniform size and quality.

An expert, children's photographer with all the necessary equipment for this specialized work will be here Monday, Feb. 28. Pictures will be taken at the VFW Annex, Emmitsburg between 2:30 and 7:00 p. m.

No Charge To Parents

There is no charge to the parents. There are absolutely no strings to this invitation. It is bonafide in every sense of the word. Parents do not have to be subscribers, nor even readers of this newspaper to take advantage of this feature. Neither are they obligated to purchase pictures after they are taken. Those who want some additional prints may obtain them by arrangement with the studio representative when they select the post they want printed in the paper. It is entirely up to them.

The More Pictures, The Better

The Chronicle simply wants pictures of all the youngsters and the more, the better. Children who have been photographed for this feature in previous years are especially invited to return so that we may see how they have grown. So the mothers and fathers of the community in which this newspaper circulates should remember the date, Monday, February 28, at the VFW Annex, and not fail to bring their children to the photographer.

You will be mighty glad afterwards, if you did, and very, very sorry, if you do not permit your children to participate in this event. The kiddies will have much fun and both mother and dad—and the youngsters, too—will be very proud to see their pictures in print later. No appointment is necessary and there is no age limit.

You may come at any time during studio hours. All children must be accompanied by a parent or guardian. Photography will be handled by the Dansville, N. Y. office of Woltz Studios of Des Moines.

Firemen's Feast Sunday

The Vigilant Hose Co. will hold its annual winter oyster and shrimp feast in the Fire Hall Sunday afternoon starting at 2 o'clock.

Members only will be admitted at $1 per person. President Jeff Fitzgerald announced that this will be the last opportunity for members to pay their annual dues and must show their paid-up membership card to be admitted. Dues may be paid at the door prior to admittance.

World Day Of Prayer Set

Church members in Emmitsburg will join their counterparts across the nation and around the world February 25, 1966 in the annual observance of World Day of Prayer.

The World Day of Prayer committee has invited all interested persons in the area to attend this special service in the Emmitsburg Presbyterian Church at 7:30 p.m.

Now 80 years old, World Day of Prayer is observed in 125 countries and on six continents around the globe. It is sponsored by United Church Women—the national cooperative fellowship of Protestant and Eastern Orthodox women's agencies, which is a department of the National Council of Churches' Division of Christian Unity.

Observed each year on the first Friday in Lent, World Day of Prayer is truly world-wide in character. The same order of service, translated into many different languages, is used in all parts of the globe. This provides a unique opportunity for a deep experience of Christian unity in prayer with Christians all over the world.

Each year's order of service is designed by an individual or committee in a different country. The 1966 service, based on the international theme: "You Are My Witness" (Isaiah 43:10), was prepared by women of the World Day of Prayer committee of Scotland. This year's service stresses the idea that ordinary church members can change the world by their daily actions. It also reflects the ancient traditions of the Scottish church.

For 80 years this unique day of prayer for peace and brotherhood has united women across personal, national and racial barriers in a solemn act of rededication to their common mission throughout the world.

Local participating churches are: Elias Ev. Lutheran, Emmitsburg Presbyterian, Incarnation United Church of Christ, Tom's Creek Methodist and Trinity Methodist.

Mrs. Bernard Neiderer, Abbotstown, spent the weekend with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keepers and family. Dr. and Mrs. Edward Henry, Doylestown, Pa., spent the weekend with Mrs. Henry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wastler.

Mrs. Nora Wetzel is recuperating at her home following pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. James Topper and daughter, Baltimore, visited during the weekend in town.

The first man to fly an airplane poles was Admiral Richard E. Byrd over both the North and South.
