The college recess which begins this week for the Christmas holidays brings to mind that just a year ago the colleges were asked by the Town to begin an early recess due to the shortage of water in our reservoirs. The situation was at that time serious. What a difference time can make. Despite the worst drought in half a century this summer, sufficient rains have fallen to lift the water ban and erase any shortage threat at this time. In a sense, right now we have water to burn. We should not let our guard down though and plans for a new dam should continue to be worked on.

Our second snow of the early winter descended on our area Tuesday and indications are that from eight to ten inches fell here. The white stuff caused little trouble to most though, and the State, County and Town equipment kept things pretty well under control, so well in fact, that the kiddies didn't even get a day off school. All sidewalks were pretty well taken care of by noon Wednesday. Postoffice patrons rising early, may have experienced a little difficulty, but by noon most sidewalks were bare. The wind cooperated and there was little, if any drifting, and highways and secondary roads were made operable almost immediately.

Another daring escape from the Frederick Jail was made this week and it is about time some responsible group investigated what is going on there. This is the fifth escape since last August, a period of about three months. No other county or state would tolerate such a condition and it ought to be looked into. When the February term of court begins I think it would be advisable for the grand jury to look in on the situation down there in Frederick and see that corrective remedial action is taken.

It's skiing time at Charnita once again folks and the weather seems prepared to cooperate after last Sunday's warm weekend. The big snow Tuesday laid a fine base and the snow-making equipment has followed up. Those little sports cars are buzzing merrily through town once more and we hope the local resort has a bountiful season.

George Henry Brown, 50, Emmitsburg painter, was found dead in his car last Saturday near Martinsburg, W. Va.

West Virginia State Police said the body was found in a car parked along a dirt road near the Falling Waters District with a garden hose extending from the car's exhaust pipe through a window.

Acting Coroner C. P. Dingler ruled the death a suicide by carbon monoxide poisoning, police added.

Police said nearly $4,000 was found inside the car and that it was believed to be the money taken from a liquor store holdup at Thurmont Friday.

The deceased was a native of Washington, D. C., a son of the late James F. and Lily (Orem) Brown, and a veteran of the Korean War. He had served 1½ years in the U. S. Army before his discharge in 1953.

Chrismons Part of Church Decoration Theme

Chrismons, graphic reproductions of ancient symbols for Christ, were used by the Lutheran Church Women to trim two fifteen foot Christmas trees in Elias Lutheran Church.

Chrismons are monograms of Christ that are made of white styrofoam, gold sequins, gold beads, festooning, etc., which depict events and doctrine surrounding the Lord. All the designs of Chrismons have been passed down through the centuries of Christian history. They are intended to make more meaningful the celebration of Christmas, with emphasis upon God's great gift to the world; The Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. The trees have been placed in the Chancel of the Church, where they will remain through January 8th. The public is invited to see the annual display daily from 9:00 a.m. until 9:00 p.m.

Despite the inclement weather on Tuesday evening, the members of the Lutheran Church Women of Elias Church met in the Parish House for their December meeting. Mrs. Lewis Smith conducted the Devotional Period which included Advent and Christmas hymns. Following the Devotions, Mrs. Smith gave an illustrated talk on "Christmas Cards and Their Messages". Many Christmas cards were displayed and interesting comments regarding their messages were given by Mrs. Smith. LCW members were urged to choose carefully the Christmas cards they send to others so that the "true meaning of Christmas" may be reflected in their greetings.

Miss Mary J. Zimmerman conducted the second part of the program and gave an informative talk on the "meanings of the Chrismons" which have been made by the LCW members at Elias Church. This is the second year that Chrismons have been used at Elias Church on the Yule trees. Miss Zimmerman has served as Chairman of the committee that has made more than eighty Chrismons or Christian symbols.

A gift table, attractively covered with a purple cloth and having an Advent wreath and candles, provided the focal point for the gifts to be sent to the National Lutheran Home in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Hazel Caldwell, President, conducted the business meeting, after which holiday refreshments were served by Mrs. Charles A. Harner. The LCW members enjoyed a fellowship period as they gathered around a table that had an arrangement of pine cones and greens surrounding three large red Christmas candles.

MIAMI DOWNS MOUNTIES; FIRST DEFEAT

Jim Phelan's Mt. St. Mary's College cagers were bounced out of the ranks of the unbeaten as they absorbed their first defeat last Thursday night when Miami U. of Florida, measured them 86-83 in a real sizzler played at the Civic Center, Baltimore, in the second game of a twin bill.

A total of 2,800 fans turned out for the doubleheader which was highlighted by a brawl among players, spectators, officials and police with 6:43 minutes remaining in the Mount-Hurricane game.

The Mountaineers led early in the game 3-2 on a tap-in by Bob Sutor and foul by Fred Carter but thereafter were forced to play catch-up ball as Miami surged ahead 10-4. The local outfit pulled to within 37-36 with 1:44 left in the first half but a pair of goals by Junior Gee and a long toss by Rich Jones, who was awarded a trophy as the outstanding player in the twin bill, gave the Hurricanes a 43-36 bulge at halftime.

A trio of goals by Pete Johnston pulled the Mount to within 44-42 early in the second half but then Miami reeled off 8 straight points for a 52-42 advantage. That was the pattern of the game the rest of the way, as the Mount would pull to within dangerous quarters only to have the Hurricanes put on a flurry which unpped their margins to about 10 points. With a little over three minutes remaining a goal by Sutor slashed the Miami lead to 76-74 but a pair of fouls by Jones, a steal for a goal and two free tosses by Gee made it 82-74.

Jones collected 26 points for the winners on nine goals and eight of 11 fouls and served as his team's field general. Gee, another classy performer, added 20 for the Floridians.

Carter was high man for the evening with 29 points on 10 goals and nine of 12 charity tosses. He also captured 13 rebounds. Sutor had 19 points and snared 16 rebounds.

The Mount outscored Miami from the field 31-29. From the foul line the Mountaineers made good on 21 of 32 tries while the Hurricanes looped 28 out of 37. Mt. St. Mary's also led in rebounding, 44-34.

Christmas Trees Can Be Fire Hazards

"Fire Never Takes a Holiday". The Vigilant Hose Co. and the National Fire Protection Assn. offer the following suggestions for keeping home fire hazards at a minimum this Christmas.

1—When selecting your Christmas tree, choose a fresh one. Saw it off at a sharp angle, at least an inch above the original cut. Stand the tree in water from the time you buy it until you dispose of it. Don't rely on do-it-yourself "flameproofing" treatments. Place the tree well away from radiators and fireplaces and locate it out of the escape path.

If you choose an artificial tree be sure it is marked as being made of slow-burning materials. If it has a built-in lighting system, it should carry the Underwriter's Laboratories (UL) label. Metal trees will conduct electricity, so use only indirect lighting on them; strings of lights on a metal tree can create a dangerous shock hazard.

2—Decorative lighting requires the utmost care. Before using, check strings of lights for frayed wires, loose connections and broken sockets. Never use wax candles on or near the tree, or with polystyrene foam candle holders or decorations. Turn off all tree and other holiday lighting before leaving the house or retiring. For outdoor lighting, use only sets listed for outdoor use by Underwriters' Laboratories.

3—Use noncombustible decorating materials—metal, glass, asbestos, etc.—as far as possible. If materials which burn easily cannot be avoided—such as cotton batting, flock and paper—be sure they receive "flameproof" treatment.

4—Dispose of gift wrappings, promptly and safely. Never try to burn them in an indoor fireplace.

5—Be extra careful about smoking near decorations.

Most important, plan in advance the escape measures and exit routes needed for the fire safety of your family in case fire should strike.

Parents' Middle-Escence Complicates Adolescence
WASHINGTON, D. C. — At the very moment that adolescents are struggling to achieve their adult identity—with all the heartache that entails for them and their families—their parents are living through a struggle just as shattering: Facing the fact that their youth is over, that middle-age is overtaking them.

These two struggles, and not just the onerousness of youth, often lie at the heart of the conflict between adolescents and their parents, according to observations made at a recent medical meeting here by Dr. Edward J. Hornick, associate professor of psychiatry at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York City.

Dr. Hornick pointed out that parents going through the 'prime of life crisis' are forced to realize that they are not going to achieve their youthful dreams. Without being aware of it, they sometimes try to make their children fulfill their frustrated ambitions. Conflicts result.

Burgeoning Sexuality Threatening

Then, too, just as the adolescent boy or girl is reaching the peak of physical development, the parents have to acknowledge their own thickening middles, lined faces. Envy and jealousy may then affect the relationship of parents and adolescent, Dr. Hornick warned.

The burgeoning sexuality of the adolescent, compared to the diminishing sexuality of the parents, may be exceedingly distressing to the latter. When parents set limits for their adolescent children are they doing so for the benefit of the adolescent? Or, the doctor asked, are they a projection of the parents' own sexual fears?

The father who is defeated at tennis for the first time, by his gangling 18-year-old may react harshly to his son's request to borrow the family car. Similarly, the mother beset by menopausal fears even as she admires her daughter's ripening figure, may be outraged by her daughter's request for a new dress. What are the causes of the parents' emotion? The adolescents' demands — or something else the parents can't face?

Examples of parents suffering mental or physical breakdowns when their children leave the family nest are numerous, Dr. Horn-ick observed. Mothers frequently experience depression serious enough to require medical attention when their sons go off to college. Fathers sometimes have heart attacks soon after their daughters move into their own apartment.

All this is not to say, Dr. Hornick pointed out, that adolescence is not a stormy, difficult period in our society. It is. But parents who come to terms gracefully with their own middle-escence are apt to be able to enjoy (and bear) their children's adolescence.

State Checking On Illegal Beverages

State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein stated today that during the Holiday Season, when sales of alcoholic beverages reach their peak, the Maryland Alcohol Tax Enforcement Unit of the Alcoholic Beverages Division will make an all out effort to enforce the law against the unlawful importation, transportation or possession of alcoholic beverages into and within the State of Maryland. Comptroller Goldstein said he wanted all residents of Maryland to be familiar with the importation section of the Alcoholic Beverages Laws and the applicable penalties in order that they be fully aware of the lasting embarrassment and painful regret that accompany criminal prosecution which follows arrest.

The Comptroller went on to say: "The Maryland statute provides that a consumer, twenty-one years of age or over, may personally bring into the State (for personal consumption only) one (1) quart of legally manufactured alcoholic beverages at any one time, but no more than two (2) quarts during any one calendar month. Any alcoholic beverages which are brought into Maryland under this provision of law may not be brought in for another person's use, be bartered, sold or exchanged within this State. No one, may at any one time, possess within the State more than (4) quarts of such alcoholic beverages. The law of Maryland provides for arrest and for the confiscation of alcoholic beverages unlawfully possessed or transported and upon conviction a penalty of not more than $1,000 fine or two years imprisonment, or both fine and imprisonment."

Comptroller Goldstein also stated that the revenues collected from the sale of alcoholic beverages in Maryland are shared with its twenty-three counties and Baltimore City, thereby benefiting all residents of this great State with the essential services such revenues provide.

The Comptroller stated it is his fond hope that full compliance with the law will result and understanding and good-will will prevail.

To Mr. Smith, this is Mrs. Smith

You really can't blame Mr. Smith if he gets a quick mental picture of Mrs. Smith every time he sees a telephone.

Not that she looks one little bit like a phone, even in curlers. It's just that she's on the line so much, running her home, getting things done.

For example, rainy day shopping's a snap with the phone. So is fixing a flat tire. Or arranging a night out with family friends. Or making an appointment with the doctor, dentist or hairdresser. Or keeping in touch with Aunt Martha and her arthritis back home. Fact is, if it can't be done by phone, it can hardly be done.

So whatever you need, whomever you miss, across the street, the state, or the country, take a tip from Mrs. Smith—

Just pick up the phone.

No question about it. For staying close to people, for getting things done or making them a bit more fun, it's hard to beat the phone.

And the satisfaction we get from providing a service that does so much for people makes our job hard to beat.

ica's leading journalists, George Schuyler, a Negro who lived for years in Harlem, site of some of the worst rioting, rejects such factors and labels them as self-serving. The primary cause of the rioting, he says, are agitation and incitement, and he blames in part the "leaders" of "non-violent" marches.

In a recently-published autobiography, entitled Black and Conservative (Arlington House, New Rochelle, N. Y.), Mr. Schuyler, columnist of the Pittsburgh Courier, biggest circulation Negro newspaper in America, tells about an "in depth survey of actual conditions in the Harlem area" which he personally conducted in another period when similar propaganda had made the largely Negro-populated district in upper Manhattan "the most maligned community in the United States."

How Propaganda Started
"The data we uncovered was, most interesting," he reports in his book. "We found, for instance, that far from being more congested, Harlem, in 1948, was less congested (by 100,000) than in 1910 when it was largely populated by white. The ill-famed central Harlem area had only 10,000 more inhabitants than it had 40 years before, but there were now thousands more dwelling units and more schools. There were more schools. There were more owner-occupied dwellings than in any other district in Manhattan, not excluding the midtown East and West sides."

"Since Harlem was clearly less congested than it had ever been when its inhabitants were overwhelmingly white people. I wondered how the fiction of over-crowding came into being despite all statistics to the contrary. Its genesis arose partly from a picture in LOOK showing buildings on the west side of Lenox Avenue between West 135th and West 136th sts. with the windows and even the roofs crowded with Negroes. There was no mention of the fact that the photograph was taken in 1919 when the 369th Infantry, the first allied unit to cross the Rhine, returned triumphantly from France after having been in the trenches longer than any other regiment. The photograph was used endlessly as "proof" of Harlem's congestion.

Furthering Sordid Picture
"Similar pictures could have been taken on midtown Fifth Avenue during great military parades, proving the 'congestion' of that silk-stocking, high rental area. When swarms of sociologists and anthropologists descended on Harlem to find 'proof' of degeneration and deterioration, they sought out and photographed the worst blocks and alley to be found; something they rarely did for the Lower East Side of Manhattan, Hell's Kitchen on the midtown West Side or the slums of Greenwich Village."

"If any district or city on earth depicted only its seamy side and failed to show anything else, the tourist business would rapidly decline and the city's reputation would greatly suffer. This has been the case with Harlem. I have had on several occasions to take newspaper and magazine editors to task for carrying whole pages of pictorial displays of a Harlem which most of its residents do not recognize because they live on blocks comparable to the best in Manhattan, attend some of the largest churches on earth, maintain all sorts of charities, and have never run afoul of the law." The Harlem riots of 1965, he said, were created by agitators, and "the loudest of these agitators were known Communists."

A Challenge To All
The Negro journalist, who has written in the Courier for 35 years, for a nationwide Negro readership, has constantly admonished Negroes to work for improving themselves and their acceptability. He found in 1948 the Association for Toleration in America, dedicated to the purpose of enlightening Americans on the "positive" assets in the Negro community and the good attributes of Negroes as fellow citizens. Its literature challenged Negroes to "live up" to the ideal presented by ATA. Addressing Negroes directly in his

ATA work, George Schuyler said:

"Race relations are being worsened by public discourtesy, boorishness, uncleanness, obscene language, garish display, and drunkenness of a small minority of Negroes — and the whole group is judged by the uncivilized behavior of a few. It is felt that tolerance is not only furthered by educating the white masses, as the Association does with its bus and car cards, but by education the colored masses also."

Mr. Schuyler's book, we might add, is as great a challenge to the white population as to the Negroes whom he seeks to inspire to greater self-achievement.

Freezer Bags

Hate to get your hands dirty? A lot of jobs can be accomplished with your hands in a freezer bag. Shining shoes, cleaning game, baiting a hook. How many can you name?

Storing Trout

Here's a new wrinkle on keeping trout. Trick is to clean and soak in salt water for a half hour. Then put in pan of fresh water and freeze solid. When you melt them clear, they taste like they just jumped out of an icy mountain brook. (Well, almost.)

Cracked Guide

A hair-line crack in a guide can wear line and lose a fish. Fix it like this: Wrap a section on line carefully all around guide. Weaving it around and around and laying it up smooth. Then lash to supporting arms. Will work for several days.

Cheese Salmon Eggs

Salmon eggs are good trout bait but hard to keep on a hook. Roll a small ball of orange-colored cheese and put it on the hook. Stays on like glue and trout will take it almost as readily.

BABSON

Writes . . .

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson's Point Of View On:
Free-World Crisis In Education
BABSON PARK, Mass., Dec.
15 — The poverty and hunger that grip so many of the free nations of the world cannot be permanently allayed without sufficient education. It is important not only for children to be taught their letters and their sums, but youngsters must also be kept in school long enough to learn discipline and valuable skills.

School Problems Here At Home

Many authorities on education are disturbed by the lack of progress made in the United States toward bringing equal and adequate education to all of our boys and girls. Earlier this year, Congress was sufficiently impressed to pass legislation providing new aids to education. The drop-out problem has been carefully studied, and the fact emphasized that drop-outs make far less when they go to work than do graduates . . . and that their learning power, motivation, and adaptability are likely to be sadly lacking.

But we in the U. S. are at least sharply aware of the value of basic education, and we are determined to do all that we can to better our schools and universities. This country spent some $39 billion on education last year, recognizing that only through training our young can we assure cultural, social, and economic advancement for all our citizens. And we are not likely to permit outlays for defense or space projects or foreign aid to slow our expansion of educational plant and teaching manpower.

Tragic Comparisons Abroad

The statistics on developing free nations make our worries appear trivial, until we realize that peace and liberty will be ensured for all of us only if our brothers in those countries learn to provide for themselves and keep themselves free. Education is the essential lever for this. Yet it is estimated that more than a quarter of a billion children from 5 to 14 years of age in the developing nations of Asia, Africa, and Latin America will not have gone to school at all in 1966. Add to this the bitter fact that about half the adult population in these non-Communist parts of the earth—amounting to nearly 750 million—cannot read or write.

Reports from the United Nations indicate that there has been an increase of approximately 200 million in the total of the world's illiterates in the past six years, probably due mostly to population growth. Even this figure is considered by demographic experts to be optimistic. They point out that struggling countries want to make their educational picture look as bright as possible,—so many of the estimates may well be below the actual totals.

Long, Hard Road Ahead

Some idea as to the desperation of the school situation, even in some of the more ambitious free nations, may be gathered from the fact that India expended only the equivalent of $17.6 million on education during the latest year of record. Compare that with our own $39 billion in 1965. For the Indian child, this means a per-pupil outlay of perhaps 32¢ annually—barely money enough to pay for books and teachers for the few children who actually do get to school!

Statistics show too that about 132 million young Indians are not getting any formal education at all. And, all the time, India's population is soaring upward by at least 12 million annually. Some idea of the enormity of the problem may be gained from the knowledge that India's gross national income in 1963 was only $32 billion, less than the United States lays out for education alone.

Knowledge Key To World Future

Now that swift transportation and instant communication have made us One World, whether we like it or not, education for the Free World becomes practically as important to the United States as education for our own people. For what is now "crisis in the developing nations" can become "catastrophe for the Free World" if more fortunately situated countries do not work to raise the knowledge, skills, and hope of peoples caught in ignorance, want, and despair.

Winter Sunburn

Why talk about sunburn in mid-winter?

Because outdoor winter sports, especially skiing, sometimes are accompanied by sunburn fully as severe as that of swimmers at the seashore in midsummer.

Of course, the winter sunburn is confined to face and neck, rather than most of the body, but it can be just as painful on the exposed parts of the body as summer sunburn.

Today's Health, the family magazine of the American Medical Association, points out that the sun-burning effect of sunshine is due in large part to the ultraviolet radiation that accompanies the visible light.

These ultraviolet wave lengths, intense in outer space, are partially filtered by the atmosphere as they reach the earth. In the higher altitudes, the sunlight does not pass through so deep a layer of atmosphere, and so the burning effect is more intense. And another factor is reflected radiation bouncing off the bright snow cover.

Since overexposure to sunlight is, in general, injurious and hastens the aging of skin, purposeful exposure should be avoided. Protective clothing should be and usually is worn in winter, except in the heat of spring skiing.

There are a number of sun-screening agents which are helpful when applied to the skin. These include preparations containing benzophenones and preparations consisting of 15 per cent para-aminobenzoic acid (PABA) in a cream base, as well as preparations containing physical sunscreens such as zinc oxide and titanium dioxide.

In general, the protective agents must be applied frequently because perspiration, rubbing and accidental falls into the snow will remove them.

Experienced skiers already have learned to beware of winter sunburn. Those heading for the slopes for the first time this season are cautioned to guard against burning.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars is in its 68th year of service to America and its veterans. The organization was formed in 1899 by men returning from the Spanish-American War, the first major U. S. war fought to protect the freedom of others.

VFW Home Cares For Orphan Children

Because of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, a lot of fatherless children will be "home" for Christmas, according to Commander William L. Topper of Post 6658.

He was referring to the VFW National Home for orphans at Eaton Rapids, Mich. Around 200 children of deceased or disabled members of the VFW live at the National Home. They live in family units of eight children and one housemother in attractive, modern houses, either ranch style or two-story.

The National Home is supported entirely by the VFW, mostly through the sale of Christmas seals and Buddy Poppies.

The 36 houses in which the children live were each built with funds raised by a different state.

In addition to the 36 cottages, his model child village has 16 other buildings, including a hospital, a day nursery, a community center with gym, theater and pool, farm buildings, a dairy, chapel, library and guest lodge. There are also an athletic field, tennis courts and a lake for fishing.

The VFW National Home was begun in 1925 and more than 1000 children have lived there for periods ranging from a few weeks to many years. They usually stay until their graduation from the Eaton Rapids High School, at which time they are encouraged to continue their education and training, often with the help of VFW-sponsored scholarships.

the month of November 1966, amounted to $2,009,934 resulting from the sale of 35,262,000 stamps.

The collections exceeded those for the same month last year by $36,081, an increase of 1.83%.

Eight of the 10 largest cities in the country lost population between 1950 and 1960.

Each Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars has a service officer who can assist servicemen, veterans or their families in obtaining the benefits due them.

St. Joseph's Record Kept Intact At 4-0

St. Joseph High School continued its winning ways by capturing a pair of basketball victories last week to up the Trojan's record to 4-0.

On Thursday the Trojans dumped previously unbeaten St. Anselm of Washington, 47-46, on a dramatic shot by John Sherwin with six seconds left in the game. The Trojans trailed throughout the game but rallied in the last quarter to outscore the Washingtonians 18-12 and set the stage for Sherwin's clincher. Ray Baker and Marty Williams led the scoring with 13 points apiece while Sherwin netted 10.

On Friday, St. Joe's downed Fairfield 93-60, as Sherwin with 23 points and Baker's 23 points and 23 rebounds, led the way. Williams chipped in with 22 points and a strong defensive game, while Ed Adelsberger added 17.

In the JV game, St. Joe's chalked up their second straight victory by a score of 61-29 as Mark Gelwicks led the winners with 15, and Mike Smith, Bob Adelsberger, and Lee Koontz added 11.

This Friday, St. Joe's plays Ascension Academy of Washington on the Mt. St. Mary's floor, to open its home season. Starting time for the games will be 6:45 for the JV's, with the Varsity game to follow at 8 o'clock.

In the first four games, the Trojans have been averaging 80.5 points per game, while holding their opponents to 55.6 points per game.

Coach Little has announced that the game with St. John's of Westminster, scheduled for this Sunday, has been postponed until January 15, and the game with Taneytown, scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 22, has been cancelled, and the game with St. Maria of Hagerstown has been moved from Dec. 28 to Dec. 29.

A Viewpoint

By Thomas C. Callahan

The Green Bay game last Saturday showed something. Not fortitude, desire, guts, or any of that literary bilge; but a point that has eluded this writer all season—The Green Bay Packers have a better football team than the Baltimore Colts.

The Pack took the field sans-shoulder pads and jogglingly warmed up, emitting so much confidence it was insulting. When you think about it, they had a right to those contented expressions. They knew that they would have to lose three straight games in order to blow the Western Division championship. Well, they didn't lose even one straight and the crown is again theirs. Baltimore actually outplayed Green Bay in the statistics, but there are lies, damn lies, and statistics. 14-10 Packers.

Over twelve thousand people came dressed as seats for the Mount's first of four Civic Center appearances, and I, for one, would have preferred playing this one "home". 2800 is quite measly even considering the card that was presented. Towson State College dropped the opener of the double-header to the University of Baltimore "Bees" in a game reminiscent of a contest between Hood and Smith for the Amelia H. Grosschoke gym cup. It was pitiful. The few fans that were there really appreciated Miami and the Mount when it was finally their turn.

The Hurricanes got the tap and raced off to what first appeared to be a "laugher" for the team that produced last year's N.B.A. "rookie-of-the-year", Rick Barry. Hobbled Bob Sutor started and asked no sympathy as he popped the first two Saint Mary's field goals on a hook and short jumper. Sutor was assigned the task of stopping 6'8" Bill Soens and couldn't have succeeded with any more effectiveness even with competent officials. Not only did Soens not score (a puny 4 points the first half) but he had registered three fouls with only 9:58 gone in the half. Bill finished with 16, canning mucho-taps while Sutor sat in foul trouble the second half. Exactly like the Loyola game in Memorial gym last year, Sutor left the floor at half with but one personal and returned eager to catch up. He collected three more at 19:40, 18:40, and 17:30 to go.

Fred Carter was his old self, at times electrifyingly stupendous, other times so phony it was embarrassing. Civic Center fans must be getting used to his once-a-game device for reclaiming lagging attention, that is, feigning injury. Poor Fred slumped to the floor beneath the Mount hoop with six minutes gone in the game, but nobody noticed. The chagrined sophomore didn't know whether to get up or darn well wait till somebody worried. The decision was made for him by a quick Mount rebound and a full court pass. Carter sprang to his feet and canned the sno-bird. Freddy finished with 39 and except for frequent failure to get back on the defense in time, played a rather sound ball game.

Scuttlebutt had it that this Miami outfit was strictly offensive. This rumor must have been started by coach Bruce Hale. A frustrated Dick Dohler can certainly attest to this, for at times it seemed that Dick and his defender were wearing the same shirt. Dohler only had three hoops all night and didn't get off a clean jumper before twenty-five minutes of playing time had elapsed. Pete Johnston experienced the same difficulty, and the rest didn't force their men to play defense.

With 6:43 to run in the ball game and Miami up 70-64, M.V.P. of the night, Rick Jones, blew his top after being fouled by Carter, and triggered a battle that threatened to erupt into a riot. Immediately aware that he may be booted out, Jones took a slight tap on the chin and sat down for the duration, explaining to each passer by: "I got hit!" When the dust cleared, Johnston and Rusty Parker (Miami) were clothed in soot from the sideline, a fan was carried out unconscious, and a Miami substitute was ejected. The Mount came alive, but a minute and ten seconds later, Johnston fouled out, and the momentum began to dwindle, recharged too late after a 4-point play by Junior Gee by a 12 foot corner swish by Lyons. Novey and Sarmir chipped in with last minute lay-ups to pull the Mount to within three at the buzzer—86-83.

Father DePauw's Status Clarified

A two-paragraph communique published this week by L'osservatore, Vatican newspaper, said that the transfer to Italian jurisdiction of a controversial priest, Rev. Gommar DePauw, has been ruled invalid.

The priest challenged the Vatican ruling.

A communique said the Rev. Gommar DePauw, Belgian-Baltimore priest who founded the American Catholic Traditionalist movement to oppose certain Vatican Ecumenical Council reforms, was judged still bound by canon law to the Baltimore Archdiocese.

A special commission appointed by the Vatican's Congregation of the Council, which has had charge of Roman Catholic diocesan affairs since the 1963 Council of Trent made the decision.

In New York, Father DePauw said the Vatican ruling was "illegal and immoral."

The priest said the special commission, according to canon law, was not competent to deal with his case. He claimed it should either be handled by Pope Paul VI or the Roman Rota.

Lawrence Cardinal Shehan, archbishop of Baltimore, had rebuked Father DePauw last year for public opposition to worship changes worked out by the Ecumenical Council, especially the replacing of Latin in parts of the Mass with modern languages.

In Baltimore, Cardinal Shehan was not available for comment.

Father DePauw, a teacher at Mount St. Mary's Seminary, arranged for detachment from the Baltimore Archdiocese to be placed in name only under the Bishop of Tivoli, near Rome.

That would have left him free from any direct jurisdiction in the United States, where he planned to remain. Bishop Luigi Faveri of Tivoli had first agreed to the transfer on paper because, said the Italian bishop, he thought Cardinal Shehan was in accord. He changed his mind when he learned that the cardinal had not given his consent.

The communique Tuesday night said word of the September ruling had been sent to Cardinal Shehan, Bishop Faveri, Father DePauw and Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York. It said Cardinal Spellman was informed because "It is in his jurisdiction that DePauw is currently carrying on his activities."

Half the world is hungry —
Will you help, for today and tomorrow?

Unless we help the hungry feed and support themselves, their need can never end. CARE does more than feed people. It also uses food to help educate children, to nourish preschool youngsters to full growth, or as pay while villagers build schools, roads, water systems. It adds self-help seeds and farm tools, trade tools, construction materials, school supplies. It sends doctors and nurses to heal the sick and train medical personnel. In all these ways, the money you give saves lives and makes those lives worth living. Mail your check.
