The news this week that a 12-year-old boy from Baltimore was struck and killed during a rain and electrical storm starts us back to the reality that such things can and do happen. It's been quit some time since we read of anything of this sort of human disaster because perhaps we have endured a five-year drought and rain or rain-storms have been few and far between. However, now that it has happened we should remember that during storms of this nature we should seek shelter and also instruct the younger element how to protect themselves. The lightning bolt hit four of the boys and killed one. For the next three months we can expect storms of this nature and should recall the training we had years ago how to protect ourselves against them.

Although still short many inches of rainfall so far this year, crops look in pretty fair shape throughout the state. Apparently what precipitation we have received has been statewide as reports around the state indicate most all sections showing good progress. We still have two crucial months ahead of us though. July and August are the months when we need the rainfall most desperately if we are to expect good yields from the plantings. At any rate, things should be a big improvement over the past five summers.

Work on the Mt. Manor swimming pool continues at a good pace and it is the hope of the management to have it in operation in time for most of the swimming season this summer. Even though the pool will be privately owned it will be a sight to behold as it is, or will be, the only one in or near Emmitsburg. It would be refreshing just to drive by and see the water. Then again, maybe we can swing a deal with the management!

Vandals hit the Yellow Springs schoolhouse this week and did extensive damage to classroom walls, books, movie projectors, etc., and broke out many windows. The damage was heavy and will result in a cost of many thousands of dollars to the taxpayers. This sort of wanton destruction irks me to no end. As a taxpayer, I donate just the same as thousands of you do each year. We spend millions building the best schools money can provide and what thanks do we receive? A kick in the teeth, literally speaking. We hope the culprits are apprehended and held responsible for the senseless damage they have done.

With the State trying to outpace the Federal Government in the taxation field one strives to retain a sane mind and to think calmly. It is a difficult task though and one that is getting tougher every year. Maryland has instituted a graduated income tax that can clip one to the extent of six per cent of his salary. Add another three per cent to this for sales tax and the State is taking a nine per cent bite out of the old paycheck. The lion's share of the tax gravy boat naturally goes to Uncle Sam who clips you anywhere from 20% on up. Add to this the many other taxes you pay, too numerous to mention, and you can come up with a figure which is consuming just about 40% of that ever shrinking paycheck. Now the Federal Government is considering whacking you for another six per cent. Unless we taxpayers stand up and be counted and make a united stand we are all going to be wards of the Government in the not too distant future.

Car Crash Kills Two Near Charnita Resort

An Ephrata, Pa., couple enroute home from a wedding in the Smithsburg, Md., area were fatally injured and four others injured in an auto accident Saturday night at 8:55 o'clock, three miles southwest of Fairfield on the Zora Road, near Charnita.

The Adams County coroner, Dr. C. G. Crist, said Mrs. Hettie E. Isenberg, 48, Ephrata R2, died instantly at the scene of the accident of a fractured skull and a crushed chest.

Her husband, Willard E. Isenberg, 51, an army veteran of World War II, died 45 minutes after being removed to the Warner Hospital. He suffered a crushed chest and abdomen, according to the coroner. Dr. Crist said he will conduct an inquest into the case.

State police said Mr. Isenberg was driver of a 1965 Swedish make car in which his wife and two teen-aged daughters were passengers.

The Isenberg car was headed toward Fairfield when, according to state police, a southwest bound auto driven by Margaret Ann West, 24, of Main St., Emmitsburg, crossed the center line at a sharp curve and the two vehicles met head on.

Two Gettysburg ambulances and the Emmitsburg VFW ambulance were summoned to the scene to remove the injured to the Warner hospital where all were admitted as patients.

At the hospital, Mrs. West, a divorcee, was listed as in a satisfactory condition. Also listed as satisfactory by hospital were Paul S. Creager, 49, Waynesboro, who had been a passenger in the West car and Phyllis Ann Isenberg, 14, a daughter of the fatally injured couple. Linda Mary Isenberg, 17, another daughter of the deceased Ephrata couple, remained in the intensive care unit of the hospital. Mrs. Isenberg was the niece of George J. Cool, Mrs. Gerald Ryder and Mrs. Walter Muench, all of Emmitsburg.

State police estimated damage to the West car at $2,000 and to the Isenberg vehicle at $1,200.

In addition to the two daughters injured in the accident, the couple also were parents of a son, Willard E. Isenberg, Jr., Rothsville, near Ephrata, and another daughter, Clara Susan, wife of Harold Shaffer, Ephrata R2. Also surviving is one grandchild.

Mrs. Isenberg was a native of the Smithsburg area, a daughter of the late Samuel and Clara (Ott) Cool. In addition to her children she is survived by three brothers and sisters: Oliver Cool, Smithsburg R1; Marci Cool, Smithsburg R1; Mrs. Upton Brown, Highfield; Mrs. Peter Zeigler, Smithsburg, and Murray Cool, Smithsburg R1.

Miss Linda Isenberg continues on the critical list at the Warner Hospital. She suffers from a fractured skull. Her sister Phyllis is suffering from a fractured pelvis and broken ribs.

Creager, who had lacerations of the forehead, was discharged from the hospital. Mrs. West continues as a patient with extensive lacerations of the face.

Bypass Is Scene Of Still Another Accident

Another accident on the two-year-old Emmitsburg by-pass occurred Sunday evening at about 7 o'clock at the intersection of Routes 15 and 97 in east Emmitsburg. Two couples and three children involved in the two-car crash were injured.

According to State Police, Mrs. Lillian Stinson, of R3, Reisters-town, had stopped the station wagon in which she and her husband were riding, at a stop sign at the intersection of U.S. route 15 and 97. She was waiting to gain entry onto Route 15 from Route 97, when drivers behind her began blowing their horns.

Police said that Mrs. Stinson pulled out onto Route 15 directly in the path of a car being driven by Mrs. Rebecca Hanna Spicer, of Frederick. Her husband, and their three children were passengers in the vehicle. All involved in the accident were taken to Annie Warner Hospital in Gettysburg, by the VFW ambulance, where they were treated for cuts and abrasions and released.

Police charged Mrs. Stinson with failing to yield the right-of-way.

Police Chief W. E. Law assisted the State Police in the investigation.

Miss Baumgardner Bride Of Stuart J. Sites

Miss Martha Grace Baumgardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Baumgardner, Emmitsburg R2, became the bride of Stuart James Sites, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart F. W. Sites, Fairfield, R1, in St. Rita's Catholic Church, Blue Ridge Summit, on June 17.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Daniel Mahoney, assisted by Rev. King Duncan.

The organist was a sister of the bride, Mrs. Donald Wanz. The soloist was a brother of the bride, Robert L. Baumgardner.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white organza, styled with a natural waistline, long sleeves and trimmed with matching re-embroidered lace. The sheath skirt was completed with a full sweeping detachable train. Her matching headpiece of organza was completed with a tiered veil of English illusion. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Glenn Hatzel, Seven Stars, was the matron of honor and Miss Virginia Lee Wanz, niece of the bride, was the flower girl.

Ray Adelsberger, Fairfield, was the best man. Usher were Richard Deardorff, Fairfield, and Paul D. Baumgardner, Emmitsburg, brother of the bride. Mark D. Baumgardner, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Fairfield Fire Hall.

For her honeymoon to Maine, the bride chose a pink A-line dress with white accessories. Upon their return they will reside at 55 Johns Ave., Gettysburg.

The bride is a graduate of Emmitsburg High School and Waynesboro Business School, and attended Gettysburg College. She is employed by the Bigham and Rafensperger law firm.

Mount Football School Draws Well From Area

Sixty-five high school students are participating in the second of three sessions of the Chesapeake Football Camp being conducted at Mount Saint Mary's College, under the directorship of Steve Belichick, U. S. Naval Academy, and Jack Cloud, former All-American fullback at William and Mary College and presently coach of Navy's 150 lb. football team.

The session which began June 25 and closes July 1, is designed to provide each participant with the fundamental and advanced skills of his position. In addition to instruction on the field, there will be classroom sessions with instructional and game films shown.

Members of the coaching staff include Ernie Jorge, line coach, University of Maryland; George Welsh, offensive backfield coach, Penn State University; Carl Schuette, defensive line coach, U. S. Naval Academy; Jim Royer, assistant coach, U. of Pittsburgh; Ralph Hawkins, assistant coach, University of Maryland; and Ed Henry, assistant coach, Virginia Military Institute; as well as other outstanding guest coaches from college and high school ranks.

The final session of the camp will be conducted with 150 footballers registered from July 30-August 5.

Hobbs Dominates Little League Pitching

Steve Hobbs, the powerful 6'11", 160-pound 12-year-old star of the Cardinals, put on quite a display for the fans as he fired a near perfect game in guiding his club to an 11-0 win over the Red Sox on the Little League diamond Monday evening.

Hobbs has had many good nights, but this was his finest ever. He retired the first five batters on strikeouts. The sixth man up was John Ott who worked Hobbs to a 3-2 count and finally drew a walk. However, this was the first and last man to reach base as Hobbs fanned the next 13 batters in order, just missing the most perfect game any pitcher can record.

As if this were not enough, the big hurler also showed his power at the plate by hitting a grand slam homerun in the second inning. He turned right around and clouted a two-run shot in the fifth. It was estimated that his first blow traveled approximately 320 feet in the air. The two four-baggers brings his career total to 23.

Jim Sanders pitched a fine game for the Red Sox as he fanned seven batters. His main problem was getting past Hobbs.

Represents College At Iowa Conference

Guy A. Baker, Jr., Registrar, Mount Saint Mary's College, attended the American College Testing Service Research Conference in Iowa City, Iowa, from June 26-27. The purpose of the two-day meeting was to teach participants how to interpret the results of student profile follow-up studies. Five types of analyses were examined: comparison of students enrolled and non-enrolled; analysis of questionnaire data; relationship between pre-college and freshmen year achievements; student growth and development; and how well do pre-college responses predict freshmen year responses.

Commissioners Approve New School Bid

The last obstacle in the construction of the new consolidated Thurmont High School apparently was removed this week when the Frederick County Commissioners approved a $2.7 million request for the construction of the new school which will accommodate students transferred from Emmitsburg High School when completed.

The commissioners approved a request from the school board for $2,389,436 for construction of the school, $66,764 for miscellaneous funds and $325,000 for equipment and furniture for the school.

The construction bid from the Frederick Construction Company was $614,454 less than the bid from the same company which the commissioners turned down last February.

During Monday's meeting Commissioner Wallace E. Hutton suggested that the commissioners discuss the new bid with the county attorney.

He said the cost per square foot and per pupil was higher under the new bid which eliminated study areas, a teaching station and provisions for the future addition of from six to eight classrooms.

The school board estimated that the school would cost $3,179,000 by the time it is completed. Dr. Carnochan said construction would begin as soon as possible.

Controversy over the north county high school has not yet ended, however, since the commissioners and school board did not reach a final decision on a method for providing water for the school's sprinkler system.

The construction bid approved by the commissioners included $45,675 for a pump and swimming pool shell for storing water for the sprinkler system.

Dr. Carnochan suggested at the meeting that the commissioners, Thurmont town officials and Board of Education meet to try to find an alternate to the pool shell for storing water.

He said that although the shell was included in the request so that the complete contract could be awarded at one time, it could be removed if a better method of storing water was found.

The Frederick Construction Company bid to the school board included the pool shell as an alternate to a full fledged swimming pool, which could also serve for storage of water for the sprinkler system.

The school board voted against the additional $36,000 for the swimming pool at a joint meeting with the commissioners last week.

The sprinkler system is required by state fire protection laws.

The state fire marshal, J. C. Robertson has told the school board that 250 gallons of water a minute which the town of Thurmont could supply for the sprinkler system would not be adequate.

Postmaster Reports On Convention

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle: Last week's Postmaster Convention in Ocean City, which was attended by Mrs. Rosensteel and me, was very interesting and informative. Many prominent officials were present, including our Washington Regional Director, Mr. Alvin Webb, who gave their respective departmental reports, and advice to the Postmasters, in the interests of improved mail service. Among the reports was that of our Regional Customer Relations Officer who stated that the Zip Code system is making fine progress, and that the majority of our patrons are using Zip Code on all classes of mail, which is so important, for faster mail handling. Our Chief Inspector and several of his top staff were on hand to report on security measures to be taken, and other overall procedures needing attention. Seminars were held, morning and afternoon, for all Postmasters, whether large or small offices, in which questions we had were answered by the officials present. We were honored, at our banquet the last evening, by Senator and Mrs. Brewster. The Senator gave a very encouraging speech, which concerned many Postmasters.

OUR LIBRARY

Now that the children are home for the summer maybe some of our mothers can turn some of the chores over to the children and get down to some reading along with the children. Some interesting selections are given below:

"The Corner Shop," by Elizabeth Cadell. Problems surrounding an inheritance lead Lucille Abbey to unexpected solutions in the byways of Paris. Lucille, the vivacious young director of a secretarial agency, decides to inquire into the dismissal of three of her most efficient secretaries by the absent-minded Professor Hallam. Her investigation takes her to the professor's country home where he is involved in taking an inventory of his deceased mother's effects. This apparently innocent occupation proves to be the cover for an intriguing plot in which the professor is victimized and his mother's seemingly worthless paintings are stolen.

In Paris on holiday, Lucille discovers that the professor's affairs and aspects of her own past are related. This and a chain of events concerning the theft of the paintings provide suspense, romance and adventure for the Cadell audience.

"The Eighth Day," by Thornton Wilder. The story of the Eighth day begins in Coalton, Ill., in 1902, with Breckenridge Lansing's murder and John Ashley's trial, conviction, death sentence and inexplicable escape. This is Wilder's first novel since the Idea of March, which was published in 1948.

"The Silent Spire Speaks," by Rev. M. Raymond, O.C.S.O. The Silent Spire Speaks, a book length dialogue between Father Raymond—a Trappist monk—and a college student visiting him at the Trappist Monastery in Kentucky, is a spirited and engaging defense of the contemplative life.

"Madame Sarah," by Cornelia Otis Skinner. Here, by the author uniquely equipped to write, it is a magnificent biography of Sarah Bernhardt, the tempestuous French woman many consider to be the greatest actress who ever lived.

Mr. John E. Patton, a local spokesman for the DCRC club, said that a large registration of contestants is expected and that both days of the contest will be fully scheduled with flying activity. The competition for trophies is strong and the precision of these beautifully built, colorful little planes as they are guided through their acrobatics provide excitement and fun for the spectators and contestants alike.

The Frederick Civil Air Patrol squadron will assist the modelers again this year by providing cadets for traffic control, first aid facilities, generator power, a water sprinkling system for dust control, and a stand-by aircraft to search for lost models. The CAP squadron will also operate a food concession on the field for spectators and contestants. The proceeds from the food stand will be used for the purchase and maintenance of search and rescue equipment and to buy classroom aids for the cadet aerospace education program.

There will be plenty of free parking on the field and there is no admission fee for spectators. The public is invited to spend an hour or a day at the Frederick Airport this weekend to enjoy all or part of the contest.

Disaster Riding The Skies
Are the several dozen satellites which the Soviet Union has blasted into near-earth orbit in recent months carrying H-bomb warheads capable of controlled release upon the United States — with cataclysmic damage? This isn't an alarmist question. The Communist satellites are up there. Our nation's tracking facilities are charting their course — most of them circling the earth on a significantly low perigee. Our space authorities believe some of them to be spy satellites. But more than a dozen have characteristics that suggest they may be nuclear weapons carriers. They could be prototypes or they could be the real thing, awaiting only the moment when the Kremlin strategists are convinced they can so paralyze the U.S.A. that our resistance and retaliation would be futile. U.S. space-probing vehicles have recorded no evidence of nuclear warheads on the Russian satellites, we are informed, but photographs indicate they have the conformation of "carriers" of H-bomb missiles. The Nike-X Controversy

When we consider this scapling reality along with the fact that the United States has no defensive armament against nuclear missiles, while the Soviet Union does have and is rapidly deploying its anti-ballistic-missile network, it gives frightening proportions to the ABM dispute in the Pentagon—whether we should deploy our Nike-X and Nike-Zeus protective shields which have demonstrated, according to our military leaders, they can "kill" H-bomb missiles launched against us before they reach their targets, our great cities and our offensive missile launching pads.

In his recent book, written as a warning to the American people, General Nathan F. Twining (Ret.), past chairman Joint Chiefs of Staff, expressed the fear that Soviet Russia "might attack" our nation when and if "they are convinced that they had achieved a clear strategic ascendancy and could strike with acceptable losses to themselves." He considers our present official policy — lagging in arms and striking force development and refusal to deploy an ABM system—as "a blueprint for national suicide."

The Soviet's Multiple Threat
There is something evolving out of the mystery surrounding the flock of new Soviet satellites that particularly bothers our military leaders—who must carry the final responsibility for safeguarding our nation. Some of the satellites are similar to vehicles with which the Soviets are known to be working in an effort to achieve fantastic space-floored military dominance—single mammoth rockets in orbit which carry not one but 15 or 20 H-bomb warheads, each with its own delivery vehicle. U. S. intelligence long has reported that the Soviets have a great advantage in thrust capacity for their rockets and missiles, and they have developed titanic nuclear warheads many times more destructive than our biggest. The U. S. policy under Defense Secretary McNamara has been to produce more smaller missiles requiring less thrusting power—on the theory that one H-bomb is sufficient to knock out any target, and why waste time and money making bigger ones? But now with their new development in multiple-warhead space vehicles, the Soviets could conceivably close the gap in deliverable H-bombs—shooting 10 at once to our one per missile.

Reconsideration Needed
Under these circumstances, our defensive capability (now based primarily on offensive retaliation) becomes a much more important factor in survival. The recent Soviet emphasis on military space technology, evidenced by the new Communist space vehicles making constant passes across the U.S.A., coupled with their deployment of ABM networks, capable (they think) of "killing" our attacking missiles, should bring a reconsideration of the whole question of America's defense.

Mr. McNamara's argument to the public and press against deploying our ABM system to intercept incoming Soviet missiles is that we don't need it, that we are ahead of Russia in offensive capability. But one of America's most knowledgeable newsmen, M. Stanton Evans of the Indianapolis News, says "the real reason it is not being deployed is that the Soviet Union would not like it if we undertook to defend our country from their strategic attack." He means that our diplomatic policy is to "build bridges" to the Soviet dictators (with appeasement) and they will be grateful and not attack us. On the record of recent history, this trust would seem to be both illogical and immeasurably dangerous.

Ocean Downs Track Set For Opening

With opening night, Friday, July 14, only two weeks away, Ocean Downs Raceway is rapidly being readied for its nineteenth racing season. All stables have been repainted and about 75 horses are now on the grounds and going through their workout miles. Approximately $250,000 in purse money will be awarded during the 42 nights of racing which will end September 2. Last year the track had 36 nights and $220,000 in loot the horse owners carried away. Johnny Amato, Harrington, Del., who was the leading driver last year and who toted home the $1,000 check as king of the drivers, will be back at Ocean Downs to defend his title and try for another big wad of money. Runner-up Rodney Warren from the Eastern Shore of Virginia, is headed for Ocean Downs. He is now racing at Buffalo Raceway, Hamburg, N. Y., and will have 12 horses in his string. Racing director, Dick Case, said there would be about a dozen new drivers at the Downs this year. Several are coming in from Toledo, Ohio, and others from New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York. Ed Gorman, the regular announcer at Liberty Bell Park, Philadelphia, has been hired to be the race caller for the meeting and Gordon Wagar, Akron, Ohio, will be the starter. The best test for good manners is putting up with bad ones.—Forum, Eldon, Ia.

Holiday Racing Programs Scheduled At Shenandoah Downs

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va. — Area thoroughbred racing will be centered here this weekend as Shenandoah Downs offers four holiday weekend programs headed by the July 4 doubleheader.

The night track will run 10 races Friday, Saturday and Monday, and 18 on Tuesday.

The July Fourth twin bill lists two complete nine-race cards, beginning at 2 and 7 p.m. There will be daily double and twin double betting on each half.

As is the tradition for Shenandoah doubleheaders, only one admission will be charged for both programs. Box picnic suppers will be available on the grounds for fans taking in the entire schedule.

Shenandoah Downs introduced the holiday doubleheader in 1959, and two West Virginia records have been set at them. A record 14,074 fans turned out on Labor Day 1963 and a high handle of $1,068,845 was put through the machines on Labor Day 1965.

Wildlife Belongs In The Wild

This is where all wildlife should stay too. The Maryland Department of Game and Inland Fish is again making its annual plea to those well intentioned but not as wise people not to pick up young wild creatures and take them home. Wild creatures rarely abandon their young, but some people want to believe otherwise and these self appointed guardians of the wild create quite a problem.

to live a life normal to their species. Remember, no one is as well equipped to take care of these young as the natural mother. It's not only cruel to remove these young from their natural home but it is also a violation of the law and penalties can be imposed on persons violating this law.

Hand-Reared Mallard Release Program

The Department of Game and Inland Fish in cooperation with the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife and the Max McGraw Wildlife Foundation has initiated an experimental hand-reared mallard release program. An evaluation study of several different strains of mallards used in this pilot project will be to determine the contribution of hand-reared mallards to the local waterfowl production. The effect hand-reared mallard releases will have on the annual harvest of waterfowl by hunters in Maryland and the costs of increasing the mallard harvest through this release program. In the initial study, the Department will release 2500 to 3000 birds during 1967. This will afford an opportunity to work out certain problems that might arise and appraise the relative merits of this type of program before actuating any extensive long range program.

Rabbits Get Health Check-Up

The Wildlife Management Division of the Department of Game and Inland Fish in conjunction with the Southeastern Cooperative Wildlife Disease Study Group, has completed the first phase of a rabbit disease and parasite study. Phase 1 included the collection of specimens from various areas of the state and immediate examination for exterior parasites. Results of this preliminary examination revealed no new parasites alien to the area were found on the specimens collected.

Phase 2 will be an extensive laboratory examination of the animals collected to check for diseases and internal parasites. Results of this examination will not be available for several weeks but all preliminary exams indicated

Maryland's rabbit crop to be in excellent health.

Wild Turkeys

The Florida wild turkeys released on the Eastern Shore in 1966 are showing signs of reproduction. A brood of 9 poults has been seen recently near the release site.

Although it is too early to determine the extent of reproduction the first sighting is always a good sign that additional hens may bring off broods at a later date.

Hunter Survey Recently the Wildlife Management Division of the Department of Game and Inland Fish sent a questionnaire to a group of hunters selected at random from the 1966 hunting license file. Earl Hodli, Biologist, in charge of the survey, requests that those receiving the questionnaires read the instructions carefully and fill out the forms completely, and return the completed forms as soon as possible.

It is imperative that those selected cooperate to the fullest. Through the information compiled, Earl and his staff will be in a much better position to evaluate present management practices and formulate new concepts in wildlife management indigenous to the various areas of Maryland.

MAKE IT A SAFE FOURTH OF JULY

The Fourth of July still marks our independence as a Nation and for many of us it means celebrations with picnics, parades and patriotism. However, for an increasing number of people each year, the Fourth means grief and tragedy as well, warns Paul E. Burke, Executive Director of The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission. Traffic accidents take a heavy toll of life during this festive holiday and, instead of enjoyment, there is much pain and unhappiness from this insidious killer.

Last year in Maryland, 557 people were killed or injured on our streets and highways during the three-day holiday period. The victims were people like you, your family and neighbors. They were enjoying a trip, a drive in the country, or a family outing. Enjoying it, that is, until the accident, when a moment of carelessness, of inattention, or indifference took all the fun out of their "Fourth."

This year, let's try to keep the fun in the "Fourth" for everyone, the Executive Director pleaded. With the Fourth falling on a Tuesday, the holiday weekend this year may be one day longer than usual for many of us.

If you will plan ahead now you will find that your Fourth of July will be much more rewarding. Once on your way, remember to take it easy all the way. Drive sensibly and legally. City, County and State Police will be on the roads in force to cope with drivers who don't.

BABSON

Writes . . .

Babson's Point Of View On: Business Failures

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 29—More people are going broke . . . faster, and for more money. Bigwig government economists are keeping close tabs on this disquieting trend. What is behind it . . . and where are we headed?

Number And Liability
Through the first quarter of 1967, U. S. failures totaled 3,623. This compares with 3,256 for the corresponding 1966 period—an increase of 11.8%. Even if this still mild uptrend should not be accelerated during the remainder of the year, as we fear it may be, the number of business failures in 1967—figured at around 14,500—would still be cause for concern.

Dollar liability of business failures for the first three months of 1967 totaled $340,944,000—up 12.8% from $302, 182,000 in the first quarter of 1966. If this pace should continue, failure liabilities this year could well run to a total approximating $1,500,000,000.

Business Cycle Still Lives
Ordinarily during the early and middle stages of a business recovery, the number of failures is small and does not seem very much from month to month, or even from year to year. At such times, consumer demand is going up faster than goods are being made, and sellers are firmly astride the driver's seat.

It is only in the latter stages of an economic upthrust—when output is catching up with demand, or has already caught up with it—that failures begin to climb. Then they tend to multiply in close relationship to the rate of slide-off in general business.

Get-Big And Get-Rich Bug
However, it is not business slumps that trigger skyrocketing failures. In most instances it is poor management practices which lead to the tragedy of failure. Unwise expansion during a boom—especially on borrowed funds—is a leading cause of business fatalities. Many businessmen, bitten by the get-big and get-rich bug, go ahead with sharp boosts in manufacturing or sales quotas. They fail to find out how far they can prudently branch out, or whether they should branch out at all.

And in the cast of relatively new businesses which fall by the wayside when the going gets rough, it is estimated that a very large number run into difficulties when they are faced with the necessity of going out and doing a real selling job. In the lush times of a soaring sellers' market, little effort is needed to move goods. But it is far different when supply catches up with demand and inflated volume begins to shrink.

Word Of Caution
Demand for all sorts of things is now lagging. That is the main factor behind the increase in failures. Hopefully, things will get better as we move into the second half of this year . . . so that by autumn over-all economic activity in the U. S. may again be on an uptick.

But even if industrial production, Gross National Product, retail sales—and other indicators of economic progress—do turn upward this autumn, businessmen must still be wary. For the cost of doing business will increase substantially between now and year's end, reflecting anticipated higher taxes and expanding wage and salary payments as well as inflated prices for materials. This means that profits will shrink further and the profit margin squeeze will intensify. Of such stuff are failures made. So, whatever the size of your business, keep a tight control on costs and avoid going too deeply into debt.

Cleaning nickel stainless steel is as easy as washing china or glassware. Soap or detergent in warm water will clean the metal effectively.

Promoting Safe Fourth Of July

Lifelong blindness is a high price to pay for a Fourth of July thrill. Home fireworks celebrations were the cause of eight eye injuries reported in Maryland last year, and estimates place the national total at more than 250.

The Maryland State Department of Health, the Maryland Society for the Prevention of Blindness, the Baltimore Safety Council, and the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office are combining their efforts this year to promote a safe and sane holiday observance.

Although Maryland law prohibits the sale or use of fireworks without a permit, professional bootleggers make street sales to children, and even parents who apparently wish to relieve their childhood excitement over rockets and Roman candles. On one of those "good old days" before home fireworks were made illegal, nearly 500 people were killed and unknown thousands injured throughout the nation, a spokesman for the agencies remarked.

Eye injuries are not the only bodily damage caused by fireworks, he pointed out. Fingers are often lost or permanently mutilated when a firecracker or cherry bomb explodes prematurely, and serious burns can occur on any part of the body.

"Many parents who conscientiously teach their children the danger of playing with matches think nothing of handing a child a sparkler burning at approximately 1650° Fahrenheit," he continued. "Light summer clothing can burst instantly into flame, and what started out as a gay occasion can end tragically in a hospital emergency room."

"Fortunately, we can still enjoy the thrill of fireworks," the spokesman added. "Most communities have displays which are far more lavish, more exciting, and more expensive than the average individual can afford." These are well supervised by local police and fire departments, and often include rides for the children, he commented.

Parents are urged to warn children of the dangers of playing with fireworks and to report any illegal sales to the police department or fire marshal's office.

How to Combat Crime and Delinquency

By stronger laws, some will say. By stricter enforcement. By better education. By stamping out poverty. By enlarging economic opportunity. By improving race relations.

These undoubtedly are steps in the right direction. But do they really offer a solution to the critical social problems of our times? Is a trained mind, a full dinner pail and financial security any guarantee of moral citizenship?

We already have the finest body of law ever devised to meet the demands of human justice. Our people are better informed and better educated than ever before. Wages are higher, unemployment lower, leisure time more plentiful. Private charity and public aid provide unprecedented help for the poor and under-privileged.

Yet crime and delinquency reach new highs. Divorce, with its tragic consequence of broken homes, is increasingly prevalent. Promoters of commercial gambling are in the upper income tax brackets. Traffickers in lewd and pornographic books and films promote to their own financial gain, an inordinate preoccupation with the immoral aspects of sex.

The need continues, of course, for a sociological approach to these grievous problems. But the moral principles on which our society is founded have their origin and roots in religious principles. And if the challenge of crime and delinquency is to be successfully met, it must be through a renewed application of these principles to all the social problems of our day.

If these problems shock and trouble you, as they surely must, we invite you to read a new pocket-size pamphlet entitled "The Religious Approach to Social Problems." It offers enlightening statistics on the causative factors in crime and delinquency . . . the relation of individual responsibility to the public morality . . . and the ways in which we can personally help to preserve a moral society.

Write today. Ask for Pamphlet No. KC-15. We'll send it free upon your request—without obligation. And nobody will call on you.

Newman School Session Concluded

The eleventh annual Newman School of Catholic Thought was held at Mount Saint Mary's College from Friday, June 9 until Wednesday, June 14, with nearly seventy students in attendance. The school, which is under the auspices of the Middle Atlantic Province of the National Newman Federation of the United States, is the oldest such program in the nation. This year's program was under the direction of Rev. Conan Gallagher, M.S., S.S.T., S.T.D., of Holy Trinity Mission Seminary, Silver Spring, Md., conducted by the Trinity Missionaries.

Other faculty members included Rev. Stephen Duffy, S.T.L., Notre Dame Seminary, New Orleans and Brother Brice Cummings, M.S., S.S.T., Silver Spring, Md.; two seminarians from St. Paul's College, Washington, D. C., and one seminarian from Divine Seminary, Lanham, Md. Six sisters; one, St. Joseph order from Indiana University of Penna.; one, Mercy, from Towson State College; one Dominican from Akron University; two Missionary Servants of the Most Blessed Trinity, Philadelphia; and one Sister of Providence, Immaculata College.

In addition to a full program of education, religious and recreational activities for the collegians, a special workshop was conducted for twenty chaplains, June 13 and 14, dealing with Contemporary Trends in Scriptural Studies.

Reports Indicate No Wheat Surplus

There's no wheat surplus in sight for 1967 even though this year's wheat crop is forecast at a record level, James M. Voss, Chairman, Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said this week. According to the June 1 crop estimate, winter wheat production this year will be about 17 per cent above last year, and 28 per cent above average. Estimated spring wheat production is up about 23 per cent above a year ago.

The Chairman pointed out that even though production of wheat for 1967 will total about 1.5 billion bushels, estimates indicate that domestic and export use will be at about the same level.

Not only does this mean there should be no appreciable buildup of carry-over supplies beyond current levels, but there should be no drop in market prices, the Chairman emphasized.

The market could break, particularly for some kinds of wheat, Mr. Voss warned, if instead of withholding wheat and marketing it in an orderly manner, farmers flood the markets at harvesttime.

Wheat producers should consider taking advantage of price-support loans on wheat as a means of exercising control over market supplies and prices. Most producers in the major wheat areas are eligible for price-support loans. Loans give farmers cash at harvest and at the same time permit farmers to retain control of their wheat so they can market it at a later date as they choose, the Chairman explained.

Catholic Charity Exceeds Goal

The 1967 Catholic Charity Appeal has exceeded its minimum goal with a record $1,307,020, Fr. William F. Dumps, executive secretary reported this week.

Final figures showed that $294,389 was raised from business donations, $761,104 from parish solicitations, and $251,526 from special gifts.

The total amount raised in the last campaign in 1965 was $1,270,029. This year's goal was increased to $1.3 million because of the increased costs of operating Associated Catholic Charities.

Commenting on this year's record amount, Cardinal Shehan said, "The 1967 Catholic Charity Appeal brought to the attention of all the story of daily needs. We are very pleased to see that the story has a happy ending."

"In the name of the infants, orphaned, youth and elderly, I wish to extend my deepest gratitude to all who have supported this year's Appeal—to the members of our parishes and their neighbors, to our business and industrial leaders and to our loyal corps of volunteers.

"It is a source of deep satisfaction to see the generous and enthusiastic response to the needs of others. May the blessings promised by God to the compassionate descend upon all who have helped make the Appeal so successful."

Nicholas F. Mueller, general Appeal chairman, and Father Dumps also expressed thanks to volunteers who participated in the Appeal.

Father Dumps said he was especially pleased with the final results of the Appeal since the pledge payment period of the Cardinal's Campaign is still in effect. This year's funds will support the extensive operations of Associated Catholic Charities, Stella Maris Hospice, the Christ Child Society and the Catholic Youth Organization.

Associated Catholic Charities provides services to adoptive couples, husbands and wives with marital problems, and helpless infants. It also assists unwed mothers, dependent children in foster homes and institutions, and conducts a child guidance clinic.

Stella Maris is a home for the aged which is open to men and women, without regard to race, religion or national origin.

The Christ Child Society distributes complete layettes to needy infants while the Catholic Youth Organization conducts social, religious, cultural and athletic programs for young people between nine and 25 years old.

Prof. and Mrs. John L. Williams and Dr. and Mrs. George Morningstar entertained members of the college faculties and friends at a Maryland crabfeast at the Williams' Catocin Furnace home on Saturday evening.

ANXIOUS FOR BRANDYWINE
RETURN—Cardigan Bay and his trainer-driver Stanley Dancer are anxious for a Brandywine Raceway free-for-all pace to preview the $25,000 General "Mad" Anthony Invitational Pace. Cardy, hailed by Dancer as the greatest pacer he has ever driven, ranks with the all-time great free-for-allers and his historic duel with the retired Bret Hanover at Brandywine will be remembered as one of the Delaware Valley's greatest races. The 11-year-old Anzac import has been in the money in eight of his nine starts this year and among his four current season wins is a 1:58.3 clocking at Liberty Bell. His lifetime record is 1:57.2. Cardigan Bay was second to Romeo Hanover in the $100,000 International Pace at Yonkers Raceway. Such a free-for-all pace at Brandywine would pit Cardy against the nation's top campaigners as Romeo Hanover, Adio Vic, True Duane and Good Time Boy, local hero, among others.

Citizen Brant Raises Objection To Tax Measure

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle:

I stood under a sweltering 90° temperature and watched the Maryland State Legislature come to order in special session for the sole purpose of amending (H.B. 378), an antiquated income tax bill that needs more than its face lifted to make it acceptable. This is the same old income tax bill that has been floating around Annapolis for at least the last two governor's terms.

The first time this bill came up it was called the "Mort Bill", the second time around it was named "Decision #66", the third time out (which was last year) this bill was known as the "Cooper-Hughes Bill", and our brand new champion for this dog eared, old shop worn socialist piece of legislation is our brand new Governor—Mr. Spiro T. Agnew.

However Mr. Agnew, was haunted by his past yesterday when one of the many concerned Maryland groups, present to view the proceeding, passed out copies of the statement made by Mr. Agnew, in Bethesda, Md., in 1965, before he announced he would throw his hat in the political ring for the governorship, (which needless to say) it had a great deal to do with a large portion of the votes he received as a candidate for the governor's office—I now quote that leaflet—"While Governor Spiro T. Agnew, is providing leadership for passage of this bill, here is what he told Maryland Republicans, as reported by the Bethesda Tribune of October 1, 1965," "... that the equalization of government services proposed by the Cooper Commission is a 'step along the road to socialism.'" "... (he) termed the concept a "dangerous departure from tradition" which would result in "frivolous spending contests among local governments". When he "voiced this harsh criticism," Spiro T. Agnew was "Baltimore County Executive."

For those of you who have been too busy to familiarize yourself with the term SOCIALISM, I offer the following, and I quote from Webster's Dictionary, "a theory of social organization based on government ownership, management, or control of the means of production and the distribution and exchange of goods".

It is now appropriate to mention a second group, obviously employees of one of our large Maryland industrial companies that passed out a pamphlet expressing their feeling on the Agnew-Hughes-Lee Tax Bill. I now quote from their pamphlet, "Under the present Agnew-Hughes-Lee Tax Bill, Marylanders will pay a tax increase of from 50% to 100%—Retroactive for Six Months to January 1, 1967, to be collected in the six month period of July-December, 1967".

"Dickey Mills, Black & Decker, Westinghouse, Londontown, Swift & Co, are just a few of the firms that are either halting expansion or leaving Maryland completely due to the Agnew-Hughes-Lee Tax Bill. As they go . . . jobs go with them".

This among numerous other colorful events in opposition to the very old concept of a graduated income tax took place yesterday as many concerned native Marylanders viewed the outcome of yesterday's special session. Speaking of natives there was a play on the famous "Boston Tea Party" in front of the Capitol Building as one individual dressed as a Indian, beating a Tom Tom and displaying a sign which stated "We Need A Tea Party". This was only one of many objections to the bill, all of which seem to be in vain.

Representing the news media yesterday were all of the old standard TV and Radio stations cluttering up the Capitol Hallways, as they seemed to be screening the people's viewpoint on the bill before turning the camera on, —at least that's the way it seemed to me!

There seemed to be no effort on the news media's part to talk to anyone of the three major groups who were there in force to offer their objections to this archaic piece of socialism, (or to quote Mr. Agnew) "a step along the road to socialism".

Yesterday morning at the Md. General Assembly opened to patch the holes that the Court had torn in the tired old, (or) I should say the ancient piece of Socialistic Legislature, there were three well organized petition committees that filed suit against the tired old bill to bring it back to court.

The organizations filing suit were, "Committee on Sane Tax Structure, P.O. Box 9024, Baltimore, Maryland"; "Fighting Taxpayers Association, 715 National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C."; and "The Freestate Voters, 1014 Hartmont Road, Baltimore, Maryland". Representing the three organizations and filing the suit to bring the case to court was the head of the "Fighting Taxpayers Association", Mr. Courtland D. Ferguson, and his staff of attorneys.

Somehow this just didn't seem to be news to our Great Free, so-called News Medias.

I have only this to say to the free press who choose to hide one side of a story,—you can hide the fire but what are you going to do with the smoke?

I leave you with this question —do we need a Tea Party?

Sincerely an interested Marylander,

Famous Homestead Now Open For Visitations

The famous Union Mills Homestead at Union Mills, Md., opened for the season recently. Residents of the Emmitsburg area are invited to see the new exhibits in the Mill Museum and to tour the delightful home which contains nearly two centuries of domestic and business Americana.

Located on the Westminster-to-Littlestown Pike (U. S. Route 140) it is six miles northwest of Westminster and fifteen miles southeast of Gettysburg. The home and mill are open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sundays from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Now operated by The Union Mills Homestead Foundation, Inc., and a member of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, the Homestead is maintained by memberships and contributions of the non-profit Foundation and by small fees paid by visitors to the home and mill.

Considered unique among American homes by virtue of the fact that it has been lived in continuously by one family for more than 175 years, The Homestead is rich in Americana treasured by the family through the Post-Revolutionary, Federalist, Civil War, Victorian and Gay Nineties periods. The resulting blend of furniture and furnishings delights both men and women (and children too!) interested in American history. Particularly fascinating is the Homestead's Civil War associations.

Having served, in its day, as a wayside tavern, a community post office, an office for the dispensation of local justice, as well as a political haven — its furnishings and memorabilia are associated with all these activities—providing one of the most unusual collections of authentic relics available in the area.

Large groups which may require special accommodation are asked to call in advance of their coming to (301) 346-7126, to make sure that their visit can be expedited without inconvenience.

Activities Galore At Playground

The first week at the playground was successful with approximately 20 children in attendance each day. Thursday's scavenger hunt was exciting with the girls winning over the boys team.

Meanwhile the best in appearance of dolls along with the oldest and biggest doll prizes was won by Sherri Topper. Her entry was a 70-year-old doll with a glass face loaned other by her grandmother. Beth Miller had the second biggest doll. Other awards went to the smallest, Michelle Boyle; the prettiest, Cindy Sanders; the saddest, Jackie Miller. and the most different looking dolls, Caron Ann Boyle.

This week's activities have included dodge ball, relays and a variety of games.

On Tuesday a hat contest was held and many unusual and clever hats were judged by Mrs. John White and Mrs. Joseph Sanders. Winners included the grand cham-

George Street. This is a ten story building, an integrated public housing project for lower income persons. It contains a cluster of apartments on each floor for elderly persons, a group of rooms used for the Center, men's and Women's clubs and other center activities.

IMPACT Group Has Busy Month

The month of June has been very busy for Impact, the community youth group. On the first Saturday of the month a bake sale was held which proved to be a financial success. On Tuesday, of the week of the carnival, they decided to put a float in the parade. The theme was "God Creates . . . Man Rebels . . . God Saves . . . Man Called to Respond." Colleen Hewitt and Paul Baumgardner portrayed Adam and Eve, also Edward Myers and Bonnie Fuss completed the setting. They won first place and would like to give special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Swomley, Jr., for their support.

On June 18 a party was held at Mrs. George Martin's farm. Everyone had an enjoyable evening with games and refreshments. Then plans were made for the trip to Mandokin camp. The following week on June 23 thirty-two members of Impact arrived at Mandokin for the weekend. Reverend Duncan taught "In His Steps," the theme of the retreat. While there, they hiked, played games, and saw a movie. Sunday, they attended Camp Hill Methodist Church. This ended their stay at camp. They would like to thank Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Staub, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wisner and Rev. Duncan for making this trip possible, by being their chaperones.

During the summer months the group will be inactive because of a shortage of advisors. If anyone could assist please inform Rev. Duncan.

Senior Citizens Learn Spanish

The Spanish class which has been meeting Wednesdays at the Senior Citizens Center under the capable instruction of Dr. Irma Gonzalez, St. Joseph College, was invited to a luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Nester, Harney Road, recently.

The hour before the luncheon was spent studying with much effort on the part of the class members to absorb as much of the Spanish language as possible. After the delicious meal the group enjoyed listening to records of Spanish music.

Many thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Nester for their generous hospitality.
