Most Anything At A Glance

- By Abigail -

There was more than frost on the pumpkin last Friday. As a matter of fact, I think the pumpkin was frozen. A fast cold spell came over this area early Friday morning and as thermometers were checked, the weather observer racked up a warm 16 degrees . . . And this is only October, folks. As we enter into November the weather is about average as daily temperatures rack up figures in the 40's and 50's. After another summer, as usual short of rainfall, although not too severe, the dry spell is beginning to have its effect on our water supplies and information has it that the main reservoir has dropped about five feet. We need good rains before any hard freezing sets in.

A great many of us haven't been "broken in" to the new time change which went into effect last Sunday morning. It really takes about a month for most of us to adjust to a change such as this. It seems so odd that darkness settles in on us around 5:30 in the evenings, but then I guess we'll get accustomed to it . . . we always do. As far as I am concerned, they could make Daylight Time effective the year around.

Those ardent trout fishermen will miss catching their string at Big Hunting Creek in Thurmont this year. No trout were stocked there this week as the annual stocking of area streams took place. The reason given by the Game and Fish Commission was that the silt and mud was so great that it was feared trout couldn't survive. This sediment has been caused by the construction of that large mountain lake and dam being constructed at Thurmont, the one that fishermen predicted would kill off the fish long before it was built, but the Dept. of Forests and Parks rammed their idea down the public's throat and went ahead with the million dollar project. Now there are practically no fish, and might never be any, in one of the State's most prized trout streams.

The present move by the Government to lower the budget by layoffs in military and other installations operated by the Government, doesn't seem to bother our Senators. In recent months they raised their salaries from $30,000 to $42,500 and as if that wasn't hoggish enough, they decided this week to vote themselves a nice fat increase of $23,000 in expenses. This certainly is incongruous with the Government's effort to cool off the economy in an attempt to halt inflation. Apparently the only fat that is going to be trimmed off is that of us, the taxpayers in the lower brackets. Anyway, it gives us something to talk about when these boys come up for re-election!

What's a person to eat these days is a question of paramount conversation. What with the ban on cyclamates and gluten-mates taking virtually hundreds of food products off the store shelves, one actually begins to wonder just what in the heck will be left for us to eat.

That old bugaboo barn-burning has hit the county once again. Several have gone up in flames recently and just this week two were burned to the ground in less than three days. In this day and age, a barn costs more to erect and equip than does a nice new home and it is hoped that this costly burning can be halted in no time flat.

VFW AMBULANCE

Mrs. Annie Humerick, Emmitsburg and Miss Anna Olson, Smiths-port, Pa., were transported this week to the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, via the VFW ambulance. Mrs. Grace Hauver, Thurmont, was transported from the hospital to the Western Maryland State Hospital, Hagerstown, via the vehicle. Drivers were Paul Humerick, Michael Boyle and James Kittinger.

Mr. Lawrence J. Elder, McKeesport, Pa., is visiting here this week with his mother, Mrs. Genevieve R. Elder.

Nuns Give Financial Backing To Day Care Center

That long hoped for day care center which will provide mothers with an inexpensive child sitting service while they work, will open here some time in November, thanks to the Sisters of Charity and the people of the community.

Two weeks ago, Sister Josephine O'Connell invited all of Emmitsburg to a "scrub-in" at the center. Students, seminarians, parents and townspeople pitched in to scrub floors, polish windows and get to know each other over Cokes and pizza. And more volunteers are still needed.

The mothers, Mrs. Godby continued, "were reluctant to leave their small children with neighbors or relatives who had enough of their own to care for."

The service will be housed in the former Mother Seton School which fell into disuse about four years ago when the Sisters of Charity learned that the cost of repairing the broken down furnace in the building and fixing the leaking roof would equal the cost of a new brick structure. The nuns decided to build a new school.

Since then the prefab school has seen little traffic stop at its door. Except for a pilgrimage office in one wing, the building has remained vacant.

In May, Sister Genevieve Kur-eth, psychologist in related fields of social work and children, met with Sister Jerome Nossel to decide the fate of the building. Sister Provincial Eleanor McNabb investigated local needs the building might serve.

According to a report in the Catholic Review, "Just as the meeting was ending, the phone rang. Sister Margaret Hughes, academic dean of St. Joseph College, called to say a social worker from the CAA was in her office. Could the old school be used as a day care center for children of working mothers?" she asked.

Mrs. Godby, the social worker, had been working with low income families in Emmitsburg for several months, helping mothers find ways to leave their homes and work. After much discussion, they decided that a day care center would be the solution to their problem.

Five of the mothers accompanied Mrs. Godby to Annapolis to visit centers there and returned home convinced that one should be started at Emmitsburg.

The town was searched for a possible site, when someone suggested that Mrs. Godby contact the sisters at Mother Seton School.

"The sisters pledged their help and the building doors began to open. The fence needed for licensing was donated by a company for one tenth of its cost. A church in town offered a year's supply of cookies or milk. Another donated money. The townspeople all chipped in," the Review said.

Financial problems arose after the initial attempts to organize the center. The fee that mothers would pay for the child care service, which would be scaled to their income, was not enough to fund the center.

The Children's Bureau was unable to help with funds because of the tight money situation. They suggested "wait a year."

Because the center had no federally dependent children, it was ineligible for help from the Maryland Social Service Department.

Relief came from the Provincial Superior who said the Sisters of Charity would help with a tentative budget of $10,000 for the first year of operation.

Sister Josephine O'Connell, director of Social Work at St. Joseph College, has become one of the center's most enthusiastic supporters.

Her vision carries her beyond the initial stage to see it developing into a "neighborhood house, an umbrella for many of the town's needs and activities."

This would include a mental hygiene clinic, medical clinic for mothers and children as well as a site for adult education classes.

Mrs. Godby is now signing up people who would like to help operate the center. She said that the response in the community has been wonderful. The mothers of low income families "are enthusiastic" and are "thinking about tomorrow instead of just worrying about today."

The center will open in November with fifteen 3-6 year-olds, and with additional help and money, it can eventually expand to 45 children.

Local Band Wins $100.00

The Emmitsburg Municipal Band, with its color guard and majorettes, marched up the streets of Gettysburg, 53 strong, to capture first prize in the Senior Band Division of the Gettysburg Halloween Parade, Tuesday evening. Congratulations to all members for a splendid turn-out and for a job well done.

This evening, the band will lead the annual Emmitsburg Halloween Parade which is sponsored by the American Legion Post 121. After the parade, the band will play a short concert at St. Joseph's Church Grove. All members are reminded that they may dress in costumes or any way they wish. Uniforms will not be worn. Assembly time is 6:15 at the Band Room.

Tomorrow morning (Saturday), the monthly food sale will be held in the Fire Hall, from 10 a.m. until 12 noon. All members are asked to contribute to this sale, and bring your items in early.

The band is selling chances on an Atlas-Warner 35mm color slide projector, donated by Myers' Radio and TV Shop. It is hoped that when the youngsters knock on your door, you will buy a few chances, and help your band.

Frederick County Backgrounds

By Samuel Carrick
The Fleming Family and Others

The last three or four columns have been part of a "moping-up" process—up one row of graves and down the next in Tom's Creek Presbyterian churchyard. Today that particular type of research is continued—this time in the east end of the cemetery.

The Fleming family at Tom's Creek might have had their origin in this country in the Scotch settlement at what is now Hunters-town, Adams County, Pennsylvania. There are early Fleming graves in the Great Conewago Presbyterian churchyard and members of the family intermarried with descendants of many of the pioneer settlers. In this way, or some other, Robert Fleming might have moved to the vicinity of Tom's Creek and thus became a member of that congregation. There are five Fleming graves in this burial ground and the inscriptions are as follows:

1. In memory of Robt. Fleming, Died August 26, 1818, Aged 7 years.

Note: Probably a son of Robert (1) and Mary Fleming for he is buried in their family plot at his mother's (?) side.

2. In memory of Mary Fleming, wife of Robert Fleming, Died June 5, 1846, Aged 60 years.

Note: The wife of the senior Robert Fleming—maiden name unknown—in fact—all data pertaining to Mary Fleming that is definitely known is contained in the inscription on her tombstone.

The marker at the grave of Robert Fleming's wife has fallen from its base and in addition the stone is broken. Unless needed repairs are made in the near future this particular tombstone will soon be a thing of the past.

3. In memory of Robert Fleming, Died June 17, 1834, Aged 69 years and 7 days.

Note: The husband of Mary Fleming and the presumably father of the little boy, Robert (2) Fleming, who was born in 1811 and died in the year 1818.

4. In memory of Robert Fleming, son of Robert and Mary Fleming, Died May 27, 1853, Aged 26 years.

Note: This son of Robert (1) and Mary Fleming was born some sixteen years after his older brother, the first son to be named Robert. The parents followed a custom fairly common in that day—they gave the same name to a younger son after the death of the elder.

5. Reuben Fleming, Born May 3, 1820, Died August 7, 1871.

Ellen Bruce Fleming, Born February 22, 1829, Died March 30, 1905.

Note: Reuben was undoubtedly a son of Robert (1) and Mary Fleming and he married into the Bruce family of the Bruceville area in Frederick County. Probably his wife was a descendant of General Normand Bruce, the founder of Bruceville, and one of the outstanding men of his day and generation.

It is interesting to note at this time that General Bruce and a few members of his immediate family are interred in a little, desecrated burial ground, located on high ground, west of the village. The stones marking their graves have long since disappeared.

Located near the Fleming family burial plot are the graves of members of the Sweeney clan.

Again it is necessary to go back to Pennsylvania to trace the origin of this family for the Sweenys were early settlers in the Marsh Creek Settlement, in what is now Adams County, and were members of the Upper Marsh Creek Presbyterian Church. Early Sweeney graves are to be found in the burial ground of that congregation. The inscriptions, at Tom's Creek, follow:

6. In memory of Christina Sweeney, wife of James Sweeney, Died March 26, 1854, Aged 42 years, 4 months and 22 days.

(Same stone). Also Amos T. Sweeney, son of James and C. Sweeney, Born March 16, 1854, Died July 4, 1854.

Note: From the above inscription it would appear that Christine Sweeney died as the result of childbirth for she lived for only ten days after the birth of her son, Amos Sweeney. The child lived for a little more than three months.

7. In memory of Columbia Alice Sweeney, daughter of James and C. Sweeney, Died April 26, 1865, Aged 14 years, 7 months and 1 day.

Note: Another child of James and Christine Sweeney—a daughter—who died approximately eleven years after her mother and brother.

There is a James Sweeney (or Sweeney) buried in Black's graveyard (Upper Marsh Creek) who could have been an ancestor of the Sweenys buried at Tom's Creek.

The Davidson family are represented by two graves in this churchyard—the inscriptions are as follows:

8. In memory of Margaret Davidson, wife of Jesse Davidson, Died April 10, 1830, Aged 30 years and 5 months.

9. In memory of Thomas Davidson, son of Thomas and Margaret Davidson. (No further inscription).

Note: Nothing is known, at this time, pertaining to the Davidson family. If the husband and father is interred near his wife and son the grave is unmarked. As Margaret Davidson died rather young the husband and father probably remarried and in the course of time "moved on."

Robertson, another good Scotch name can boast of only one marked grave at Tom's Creek and that one is a "government stone"—one provided by the federal authorities to designate the last resting place of a veteran.

10. G. W. Robertson, Company C—6th Maryland Infantry, Born May 10, 1824, Aged 57 years, 5 months and 15 days.

Note: For some reason or other the date of the soldier's death is not given on his grave marker—only the date of birth and his age.

There could be and probably are other Robertson graves in this graveyard—but if so they were never marked or the stones have long since disappeared.

The historical and genealogical study of Tom's Creek Presbyterian churchyard will be continued in this series next week.

Man Faces Morals Charge

Raymond B. Williams, 21, Fairfield R2, has been charged with a statutory offense by Cumberland Twp. Police Chief Bernard V. Miller in connection with the "disappearance" of 14- and 15-year-old sisters from their home last week.

The charge was brought against Williams after he, along with his companion, David L. Stull, Fairfield R2, had been apprehended by Chief Miller and charged with corrupting the morals and contributing to the delinquency of minors after the Emmitsburg area sisters were found on an unoccupied farm property near Sprigg's garage, off the Route 15 bypass two miles north of Emmitsburg.

Both men are in jail, Williams in default of $4,000 bail on the two counts and Stull in lieu of $2,500 bail on the one charge pending a hearing before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder.

Chief Miller had received an anonymous tip that the girls were at the vacant farm buildings. Upon arrival Miller found the two sisters and one of the men. After questioning, the other man was arrested while working in an orchard. Both Stull and Williams were committed to jail while the sisters were released in the custody of their parents.

Chief Miller was assisted by Pennsylvania State Police in the investigation.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

In the late fall when cool nights drop the water temperatures into the 60s, bass often bunch up back into the roughest, hardest to reach, cover in the lake. These back behind, impossible-to-cast-to spots are known as the "boondocks."

Let's run through the "where's and how's" of boondocking. They just might add up to a heavy stringer or two for you.

Tackle: Because of the rugged spots you get into, and the need to manhandle a roughneck bass, a 20-pound-test line, a sturdy rod with a flippant tip, and a reel with a drag you can lock, if need be are recommended.

And, be sure your stringer, if you use one, is strong, preferably with locking snaps. You'll be dragging your fish over logs, deadfalls, and limbs.

When you leave home, gear for the day. This means packing a lunch, taking foul weather clothing, etc. Some fishermen prefer an ice chest for cold drinks, as well as a place to keep the fish fresh.

One final item. The use of a golf glove on your noncasting hand is worth trying. You're going to hang lures in places you can't get to, and you'll simply have to break the line. The glove will save cuts and abrasions that can get sore as blazes, especially if you handle many bass during your day out.

The boat should be large enough for two men, but no larger. And it should boast a fairly shallow draft. An electric fishing motor is ideal, but be sure it has a rugged prop.

Flooded timber is one of the prime spots for boondocking. It takes experience to learn to recognize bass hangouts. Here are some to watch for: clusters of trees, short pockets, lily pads, duckweed, and outback water—overflow areas where water is found outside the normal body of the lake.

According to Homer Circle, Angling Editor of Sports Afield Magazine, when a big bass paws your lure over a log or deadfall, you've got to do a number of things fast. Hit him, hard, with a low rod tip and a full sweep upward, with all the muscle you can muster. This, hopefully, buries the barb. Then, you reel like mad, lifting with your rod tip, to get that bass's head pointed up.

There's not time or place for being sporty. Like playing the fish and watching it jump. You've got to work on that booger fast, hard, and rough to get it into the open—out of the snaggy cover.

And contrary to what many of you will accept as sporting, if you want bass on the stringer, big bass, there is no room for netting or for playing the bass until it turns belly up.

You get it headed toward your boat, and when it is near enough you hoist it into the air, grab the line just above its mouth, and ease it into the boat. Give a bass, a big one, time to cavort around in the boondocks, and you'll lose not only bass, but also the lures in their mouths as they break lines on snags.

CORRECTION

In last week's write-up of the Chamber of Commerce stating it was erroneously stated that the Chamber sought funds for a swimming pool from the 1970 budget of the Frederick County Parks and Recreation Commission. The story should have said funds were being asked for other recreational facilities here, but not for a pool.

Cars Must Stop For School Buses

Every day of the school year school buses in Frederick County travel almost 6500 miles. A bit of quick arithmetic reveals that this amounts to almost a million and a half miles per school year. These are the miles that are traveled with students aboard and do not take into consideration the "empty" miles traveled by the buses. When these mileages are considered, it becomes quite obvious that school bus safety must be a full time concern of all motor vehicle operators.

It has been reported, however, by some school bus drivers that operators of other motor vehicles are failing to stop while buses with the prescribed flashing red light signals are loading or unloading children. Mr. James Masood, Supervisor of Transportation for the local school system, says this problem seems to be particularly prevalent within the city limits. According to Masood, people who fail to stop for the school buses are probably not otherwise reckless and careless drivers, but perhaps do not realize that there is both a state law and a Frederick City code dealing with this situation.

Maryland State Law states that when meeting or overtaking a school bus that has stopped to receive or discharge children, the car shall come to a full stop at least 10 feet from the bus. It emphasizes that drivers must stop in both directions.

Accidents in which children were injured have occurred because some driver did not take the time to obey this law. "Let's keep our children safe, stop when the school bus is flashing its red lights," concluded Masood.

The man who never loafs is not always the man who does the most work.

A man's wisdom makes his face shine. (Eccles. 8:1).

All of us have a need to understand, assimilate and to remember. Courses, teachers, books are priceless. We gain the most from their help, however, if we go first to the source of all wisdom the God-Mind in us. As we become attuned to God-Mind, we see, we understand, and we remember. Working from this starting point we grasp facts, retain knowledge, make sound judgments, and express ourselves early.

If the Shoe Fits

Why can't I find cheap play shoes that fit as well as good shoes?

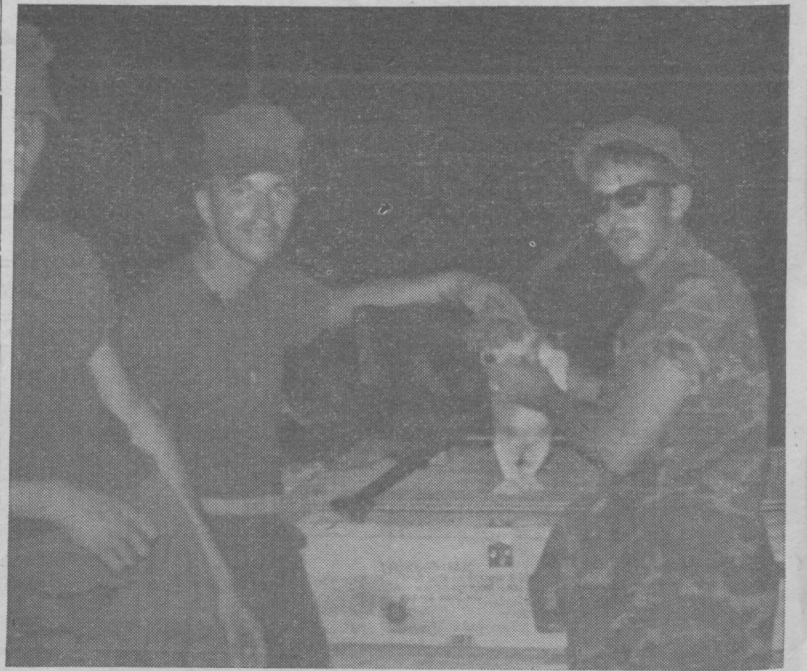

There are several good answers to this question, but let me first ask a question—why cheap shoes for play?

Many men and women who work in industry have long since given up the practice of buying cheap work shoes. Good work shoes mean more to a person whose work requires standing than a comfortable car means to a travelling man.

We parents hate to see a good pair of shoes made to look old in a few days of hard play but the abuse taken by the shoes should indicate to us that good shoes are much more important for hard play than they are for sitting in school or in front of a television. (More on the subject next week.)

First Lady Greet Poster Child

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, honorary chairman of Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, gives a warm reception to MDAA's ambassador-at-large, national poster child Holly Schmidt. The little girl from Saginaw, Michigan—whose elfin charm captivated the First Lady, as it does everybody who meets her—represents the tens of thousands of children doomed, like her, to increasing disability by the progressively crippling disorders of the neuromuscular system. MDAA is seeking the medical solution for these disorders through its worldwide research program, financed by contributions to the March Against Muscular Dystrophy.

BABSON'S POINT OF VIEW

The CPI And Inflation

By Babson's Reports Incorporated, Wellesley Hills, Mass., October 30, 1969 — "Index of change in prices of goods and services purchased by city wage-earner and clerical-worker families to maintain their standard of living." This is the definition of the Consumer Price Index—the CPI—the economic indicator that best displays how the inflationary trend directly affects the consumer. We all know that it costs more to live today than it did ten years ago or even one year ago, but do we know which segments of our spending dollar are increasing the fastest and why?

Sharp Increases In Past Year

From August 1968 through August 1969 the Consumer Price Index rose by 5.6%. Cost of meats, poultry, fish, home ownership, and insurance and financial service—all of which rose by more than 9.5%—showed the fastest advance during this period. There are some areas that have not increased as fast as the index itself, but none has shown a decline during this time frame. The slowest gains were in fruits and vegetables, fuels, utilities, and new cars.

Food Prices Increase The Most

The inflationary trend, as reflected by the Consumer Price Index, increased at a faster rate during the first eight months of 1969 than it did during the same period last year. The figures are 4% for that span of this year, as opposed to 3.1% for the same part of 1968. The area of the sharpest rise during this period was food. As a matter of fact, if it were not for the unadjusted 12% climb in food prices since May of this year, the Consumer Price Index for this period would have increased at a slower rate than during the same period last year. During this time beef prices slackened somewhat, but the increase in other meats resulted in overall higher prices.

Areas of increased prices during the most recent month of record were charges for consumer services, property taxes, mortgage rates, residential gas, and electricity. Women's apparel declined somewhat during this period, but increase occurred in men's and boys' clothing, and footwear. Some other commodity prices, including alcoholic beverages, gasoline, and house-keeping supplies, also moved substantially higher.

Prospects Dim For Early Downturn

Recent price increases in autos, tires, major appliances, wholesale ground coffee, heating and air conditioning units, and health insurance would indicate a continuation of the rise in the Consumer Price Index over the near term. However, the index tends to be a lagging indicator, and for the longer pull it would appear a slower growth rate is likely. The industrial raw materials price index, which is usually a leading indicator of the inflation cycle, has shown some signs—although slight—that the inflation syndrome is slowing down. The rate of advance for this index has decreased from 25.6% between December and April to 8.6% between June and July. Any further loss of momentum would be a significant symptom of the success of the Administration's efforts to curb inflation. Another signal of a potential slow down in the Consumer Price Index is the decline in farm products prices that began early this summer.

Business Slowdown To Help

Other factors to be considered include a general business softening, with more evidences of slackening in consumer demand. During this sharp climb in the index, the wage earner has experienced a rise in income. Workers as a whole have seen their incomes rise faster than has the CPI. However, those who can least afford to have been hurt most seriously. This is particularly true of the elderly who are on fixed incomes and the poor.

The wage demands made by the service sector of the economy, which has traditionally been underpaid, and the continued lively consumer market for goods and services will result in further increases in the Consumer Price Index. Until inflation itself has slowed to acceptable levels, meaning a slowdown in wage increases as well as prices, the CPI will continue to rise at, or close to, current rates.

Counties Under Cholera Quarantine

The eastern part of Wicomico County, the northeast part of Somerset County, and nearly all of Worcester County have been placed under a Hog Cholera quarantine by the Livestock Sanitary Service (LSS), State Board of Agriculture.

Movement of swine, except hogs for immediate slaughter, is prohibited within, into, or out of the area east of U. S. Route 13 from Delaware to Virginia.

Also, the Feeder Pig Sale scheduled for October 27 at Elden was cancelled, because the sale site was too close to the quarantine area of known infection.

East Wicomico County has been under quarantine since the first of the month. Expansion of the quarantine area follows confirmation this week of two positive cases of the highly infectious swine virus in central Worcester County.

However, LSS Director Dr. T. A. Ladson, said "we have not been able to connect these two cases with the persisting infection in Wicomico County. Rather, we believe they may have resulted from feeding table scraps, and do not represent a spread of the disease from Wicomico County."

"However," Dr. Ladson adds, "we have a very threatening situation, and we must take every precaution to prevent any spread from these new cases as well as from the area of known infection in Wicomico County."

In a related action, Delaware has issued orders prohibiting import of any swine, including slaughter hogs, from all of both Wicomico and Worcester counties.

Dr. Ladson cautions owners against feeding any table scraps to swine. Scraps from the owner's or his neighbor's table can very well carry the virus, which affects only swine.

"We know what causes Hog Cholera, we know how to control it, and we can eradicate it—but everyone involved must DO those things we know to be necessary, including:

Observe LSS regulations, never feed table scraps, keep swine isolated, avoid visiting hog lots or allowing visitors on hog lots, be alert for symptoms and report immediately any illness in swine."

Unemployment Rate Drops

The September unemployment rate in Maryland, was 2.7 per cent, and 2.5 per cent in the Baltimore Metropolitan Area, according to Osborne P. Beall, Executive Director of the Department of Employment Security.

George J. Widman, Director of the Agency's Research and Analysis Division, said that the drop from the August rate of 3.1 for the State and 3.0 for the Baltimore Metropolitan Area was closely related to the reopening of schools, as students left the labor force and the ranks of the unemployed and school workers returned to their jobs.

Widman labeled the unemployment as a characteristic of the month of September in Maryland when compared to August.

In following the usual pattern of a drop below the August figures, Maryland differed this year from the nation as a whole. A September nation-wide unemployment rate of 4 per cent, 0.5 above the August national rate of 3.5 per cent, was reported earlier this month by the U. S. Department of Labor.

The September unemployment rates this year for the State and the Baltimore Area were slightly lower than in the corresponding period last year.

Water Pollution

During these very difficult days, we read in our newspapers, hear on our radios, and see on our televisions that Americans are being killed every day in Southeast Asia. We know that our housewives suffer a new shock each time they visit their grocery and find that their dollar buys less than it did on the last visit. And we find that the public is preoccupied, as perennially it is, with the World Series. But in spite of all these concerns which capture the attention of the media and the public, there is work going on in Washington which is important in the advancing story of American self-government.

One of these stories, which though small is also very important in its way, is the story of the bill which was adopted in the Senate to combat oil spills and pollution which are destroying the environment of America. It's a bill which—if it reaches its full potential, if it is executed by the government—will go a long way toward insuring that our children and grandchildren will be able to swim in the rivers and streams of America, and that they can have the kind of environment in which they want to live.

Coming from the Senate Committee which had originally drafted it, this bill had, I thought, one major flaw. It looked entirely to bureaucratic action for its operation. It looked only to officials, official agencies, official offices, to provide the fresh water, the pure water which America needs for the future and it gave very little opportunity to people to be heard.

Specifically, this bill goes to the question of oil spills of which we've heard a great deal in recent years, pollution from ships which is important to the Chesapeake Bay and Potomac areas, acid mine drainage which is important in Western Maryland where the acid mine water has polluted many of the clear mountain streams of the region, thermal pollution which is a danger industry is trying to avoid but which creeps in as new kinds of energy are being tested and used.

As a Government agency or private industry make application for some new license or some new use of water, which is drawn from the public domain and held in trust by the people of America, there was no opportunity for ordinary people to be heard. Those who lived in an area to be affected by a license under consideration, those whose homes might be vitally influenced, even destroyed by a new use of water in that area, had no opportunity to put their views on the record, to perhaps suggest alternatives which could mitigate the damage or the harm in their area.

And so, I proposed an amendment which was adopted by the Senate to insure the public the right to be heard in this important question of water quality standards for the various states. Now, I believe that the thrust of this bill is such that it's going to be one of the significant things we have done in Congress this year, because water is vital to life itself and therefore, it's vital to everybody. Everybody has a stake in it, everybody has a right to be heard in connection with its use and, therefore, I am particularly happy that the amendment which I proposed is now a part of this forward-looking legislation.

WOMEN'S HEALTH

By Elizabeth Stewart
Women's Medical News Service
Nausea's Silver Lining
OAKLAND, Calif.—Difficult as it may be for an expectant mother to credit, morning sickness may be a good luck omen. The silver lining in all that misery, according to Dr. Joseph Brandes of the Kaiser Foundation Research Institute, is that her pregnancy is likely to be healthier in the long run. Nauseated women have significantly fewer premature deliveries, miscarriages, and low-birth-weight babies. In fact, after analyzing the records of 7,000 women, Dr. Brandes would label as a "high-risk patient" the expectant mother who can cheerfully face breakfast during the early months of her pregnancy.

Male Reactions To The Pill
DUSSELDORF, Germany—Women swallow oral contraceptives but some men exhibit psychological side effects, suggests a German professor of obstetrics at the University here. In an article in a medical journal, Dr. H. Molinsky says that a psychologically mature man has a favorable response to the pill's removal of the fear of an unwanted pregnancy. His wife's "greater security and independence can lead to an enrichment of love." But, says the physician, neurotic men may condemn birth control pills for devious reasons. A fearful husband may feel more secure if his wife is constantly pregnant. A resentful husband may wish to punish his wife by making her pregnant. A man who needs to prove his potency may find his sexual interest lessening because he needs the hazard of pregnancy to stimulate him. It is not that the oral contraceptives themselves are harmful," Dr. Molinsky believes, "but that they mobilize the fears which are already present in a psychically damaged personality. These deviations cause oral contraception to be viewed unrealistically."

County Firemen Hold Meeting

Delegates of the Frederick County Volunteer Firemen's Association approved committees named by the president and voted unanimously in favor of an annual banquet at the regular fall quarterly meeting held recently at the Rocky Ridge Fire Co. hall.

James E. Fitzgerald, president of the association who also heads the Vigilant Hose Co. in Emmitsburg, presided at the meeting which was also the opening of the Muscular Dystrophy Campaign for 1969 in Frederick County by the firemen.

Remarks on the campaign were made by Robert L. Smith, long time county executive of muscular dystrophy activities.

The meeting opened with invocation by Charles E. Brauer, chaplain of the host company, and reports of the secretary, William M. Moore of the Uniteds, and Philip H. Beard, treasurer, from Walkersville, were given.

Next meeting was set for the Junior Fire Hall on Jan. 15, and refreshments were served by the host company.

Emmitsburg members named to committees were: constitution and by-laws, John J. Hollinger, chairman; Civil Defense, Guy R. McClaughlin; topics and statistics, Arthur Damuth; fire prevention: Thomas White; radio committee, John S. Hollinger.

LIGHT makes a difference
Residential Lighting Specialist

Graceful fabric valances concealing fluorescent tubes behind them demonstrate how easily today's lighting ideas can be adapted to any design period. Table lamps are well scaled and properly located for reading in bed.

Most of us will spend at least a third of our lives in our bedrooms and in terms of decoration and lighting, these rooms are among the most commonly overlooked.

Probably this is because darkness is so necessary for restful and relaxing sleep, but well-planned lighting is equally important for other activities such as dressing, studying, grooming and reading.

Today's combination of smaller bedrooms and larger beds requires lighting that will "push back" the walls and make the rooms appear larger. Simple, but effective, wall illumination will do this as well as provide general, overall lighting.

If you have a draped window, consider installing a lighted cornice or valance for adding drama and beauty to the room.

Several solutions are available for reading. Individual, swing-away lamps can be mounted on either side of the bed to provide light for reading in conjunction with general room lighting.

Lighted fluorescent wall brackets mounted on the wall behind the headboard can produce the same effect and can provide light on the wall and ceiling. Remember to specify Deluxe Warm White whenever buying fluorescent lamps.

Many teen-agers use their bedrooms for study areas. These should have portable table lamps, advisedly those recommended by the Better Light Better Sight Bureau. They are designed to provide light over a generous area, while eliminating the harsh transition from a very dark to a very well-lighted area, a common cause of eye strain. General room illumination used in conjunction with study lamps will also help avoid harsh "pools" of light.

Shielded fluorescent lamps can be installed underneath shelves to provide illumination on a work surface. To avoid having the light reflect directly into the eyes of the person seated at the study area, mount the tubes at the front of the shelf — not against the wall.

For dressers or dressing tables use a pair of portable lamps — one for each side of the face. The lamps should be tall enough so the center of the shades are even with your cheeks. Highly translucent white shades are a "must" to insure ample light of the right color for make-up.

Want to know more about lighting the bedroom? Write for "Light Makes the Difference, Bedroom", a colorful, well-illustrated booklet filled with lighting tips and suggestions. Single copies are available from the Inquiry Bureau, 230-5524, General Electric Company, Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio 44112.

Walking The Dog

NEW YORK—For a lonely, elderly person, a dog may be much more than an affectionate, last-ditch companion. Surprisingly often, says a psychologist, he perks up his owner's health and rekindles his will to live.

Dr. Boris Levinson of Yeshiva University points out that the responsibility of a pet insures that his owner feels needed, just as that wagging tale and eager greeting assures him that he is loved. Since the dog must be walked, his owner gets regular daily exercise. Since the dog must be fed, his owner may even find his own waning appetite stimulated. Getting out with the dog is also likely to lead to pleasant encounters with other dog-walkers.

All in all, it seems that a dog and the lethargy that afflicts so many ailing, retired people cannot co-exist.

For someone too ill to get out, Dr. Levinson suggests an aquarium since "watching fish can be very amusing and relaxing."

Had Kingston, a son of Spendthrift foaled in 1884, been running in recent years his earnings would no doubt top those of turfdom's nine equine millionaires, the busiest of whom was Native Diver who ran 81 times winning 37 races and $1,026,500. Kingston started 138 times, won 89 races and earned a mere $138,917.

Pint-Sized Whirlwind Leads March of Dimes Campaign

By ANN FORER

Meet Martin Mim Mack, 1970 National March of Dimes Poster Boy! Marty is a cheerful, healthy eight-year-old with all the zest of a typical American boy for sports, games, hamburgers, camping trips, and not taking baths. He is a bright lad and does well in school, thanks to parents who make sure he studies hard, and a well-developed ability to concentrate.

Marty sounds like a normal kid and in most ways he is. Once you've spent a few hours with him, you get used to the things that make him different. But you never really forget them, for every time you look at Marty the differences are obvious. Once you get past the big brown eyes and the Huck Finn grin, you are looking at a little boy who has no arms.

He has artificial arms that he wears all day at school. With them, Marty can feed himself, paint pictures, type on a regular electric typewriter, and even play the recorder. Three days a week of physical and occupational therapy have done that for Marty.

Or you could say Marty has done it for himself. He is dead set on being self-sufficient.

Struggle To Walk
Being born without arms isn't Marty's only problem. He was also born with a hip defect that makes his left leg three inches shorter than his right. As a baby, he couldn't crawl around the house breaking things and driving his mother nuts. He couldn't, because his legs were in casts first and later in braces. Other uncomfortable gadgetry was also tried to help him walk some day—maybe.

Over the years, that "maybe" has become a yes. Today Marty walks. In fact he runs. With some coaching from his five healthy older brothers, he has become a pretty good soccer player. In 1967 he had a bone graft operation on his left foot, which straightened and strengthened it. And he no longer wears his leg braces

SUNDAY SAILORS. Marty Mim Mack and his father, Bill, relax aboard "My Six Sons." Quiet moments are rare for Marty, who keeps the grownups hopping to keep pace with him. The energetic youngster will be stirring up activity all over the country during the January March of Dimes campaign.

during the day. He will always have to wear a built-up shoe, however, just as he'll always have to use prosthetic arms.

Still, Marty Mim Mack is doing all right, compared with many other kids in this country. A quarter of a million babies are born with significant birth defects each year in the United States. Many of them are in worse shape than Marty. Some die within the first few years of life because their defects are so overwhelming that doctors can't save them.

Others are mentally retarded and don't have Marty's brain power to help them fight for a productive, happy life. Some are blind or deaf, or both. Some are paralyzed. An American baby with one or more defects is born every two minutes.

Knowing the facts about birth defects, Marty and his family believe that things could be much worse. So, they support the fight to prevent birth defects from striking other families. Today they work with The National Foundation-March of Dimes, the voluntary health organization which, following its smashing victory over polio, has been in the forefront of the birth defects struggle.

This year, Marty has been named the 1970 National Poster Child for the March of Dimes. He and his mother will tour the country during January on behalf of the voluntary health organization.

The March of Dimes supports year-round programs for patient and community services, education, research, and 111 March of Dimes Birth Defects Centers which provide diagnosis and treatment for children like Marty.

Goal Is Prevention
Then there are the scientists whose work is supported by National Foundation grants. These investigators are studying hereditary and environmental factors and their effects on the developing embryo. They are finding out how to diagnose birth defects earlier and how to treat them more effectively, and ultimately how to prevent them from happening in the first place.

All this isn't going to grow Marty a pair of arms. But Marty isn't complaining. He just thinks it would be a real good idea to prevent birth defects. And so does the March of Dimes.

works devastatingly against the best interests of the Negro race throughout the world as well as the whole edifice of religion.

There is nothing for the Negro masses in Communism except slavery with the rest of its victims in a total prison from which nobody can walk away to freedom but must on the contrary stake his life on the mere chance to escape. This fact is reported in newspapers every day. Yet, James Forman, in the "Manifesto" and in publicly identified Communist publications, has declared himself and the "Movement" he is mobilizing to be: (1) allied with World Communism, (2) working for a victory for Communists in Vietnam and wherever Communist "Wars of Liberation" are waged, and (3) mobilizing and training skillfully agitated Negroes to become the "Vanguard" of armed revolution to overthrow the United States.

"We call for the total disruption of selected church sponsored agencies operating anywhere in the U. S. and the world. Black workers, black women, black students and the black unemployed are encouraged to seize the offices, telephones, and printing apparatus of all church sponsored agencies and to hold those in trusteeship until our demands are met."

"We say (to all blacks) think in terms of total control of the U. S. Prepare ourselves to seize State power. Do not hedge, for time is short and all around the world the forces of liberation are directing their attacks against the U. S."

From Marx Manifesto
"We must commit ourselves to a society where the total means of production are taken from the rich people and placed into the hands of the State for the welfare of all the people." This is a Communist propagandist statement right out of the Communist Manifesto of Karl Marx. He goes on to say that "black people" must seize control of "everything that exists" in the United States.

NO. 22,569 EQUITY IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR FREDERICK COUNTY, MARYLAND
HOPE HENRY MILLER, JR.
BEQ, Fort Detrick

Forman, with his ridiculous "Manifesto" demanding $3 billion from American churches is carrying out a phase of the Communist strategy to disrupt and create strife within our nation as it is being set-up for takeover. He is linked to the "United Front" apparatus set up at Oakland, California last July for the mobilization of an "Army of Liberation" to take over the U. S. We have the taped recordings of Forman's comrades at Oakland echoing what he has said repeatedly in the last two years: "We are a part of a revolutionary force which will take over the government of the United States by force of arms." The Black Panthers, the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), Mexican-American revolutionaries, the subversive American Servicemen Union and 300 other organizations are being welded into the "Liberation" army allied with World Communism.

Of these forces, J. Edgar Hoover, FBI Director, says: "Their goal is the destruction of 'U. S. Imperialism' and the achievement of a classless society through international communism." Yet, incredibly, a major American church group is contributing $200,000 which is expected to go to forces involved in the achievement of this goal—the overthrow of the United States by armed revolution!

missioners for a request to install an additional "modesty shower" at the Thurmont Middle School. The shower will be constructed in an enclosed area in the girls' locker room and will add $2,486.32 to the contract cost of the locker room.

An extension of time granted for completion of construction at Waverly School until Aug. 26 was approved by the commissioners. Since no additional money was involved in this request the commissioners were not required to act on the request at an earlier time. The school was opened for use last month.

Need-To-Know About Drug Abuse:

LSD: Will It Turn You On Or Will It Turn You Off?
 No drug has caused more controversy, with the possible exception of marihuana, than the strange compound known as LSD.
 Is LSD dangerous?

Definitely yes, says the National Institute of Mental Health, Federal agency focus of a new nationwide attack on the abuse of dangerous drugs and narcotics.
 Hospital and other medical studies show that LSD can cause panic, paranoia, and accidental death. Reactions to taking LSD range from worry, panics, and depression to severe mental derangement.

 Days, weeks, even months after a dose of LSD has been taken, the things the user thought that he saw and felt may recur in his mind and make him fear he is going insane.

The physical effects of LSD can produce are far from pretty. Eye pupils dilate, hands and feet shake and tremble uncontrollably, palms turn cold and sweaty, the body shivers and turns chilly, goose pimples pop out, breathing is irregular. There is loss of appetite and nausea; and the pulse and heart rate rise, as does blood pressure.
 LSD is short for lysergic acid diethylamide. A man-made chemical first produced in 1938, it was accidentally discovered in 1943 to produce bizarre effects on the mind when a Swiss chemist swallowed some LSD while working in his laboratory. He had strange sensations and felt as if he were flying.
 Despite this soaring start, LSD was little explored in following years as far as definitive pharmacological studies in man were concerned. The weird compound lay around, studied by some drug researchers but ignored by most. Then the wave of far-out experience seekers washed up a few years ago.
 LSD became the darling of the daring. It was claimed to give you great feelings and increase many capacities, like sex and creativity.
 None of this has proved out. In fact, the reverse may be true. But many fables and fallacies like these have spread about LSD. The following facts come from research, not from fantasy and rumor.
 Studies have shown that LSD is more likely to decrease sex interests than to increase them. Paintings, writings, and other works by LSD-users fail to show greater talent; rather, the works are poorer when done "under the influence."
 Worse, LSD is dangerous. It can cause panic (fear of losing one's mind), paranoia (suspicion that "they're after me!"), mental derangement, and accidental death.
 It has been called the most powerful drug in the world. No wonder: 25 micrograms is an amount almost invisible to the naked eye. Yet this amount will produce an effect in most people.
 Classed as a hallucinogen and psychedelic—which mean mind-affecting or mind-altering—LSD is a member of a group of drugs which include other compounds like marihuana, peyote, mescaline, psilocybin, DMT, and STP.

 Except for government-approved use for research, LSD is illegal in the United States.
 Because LSD is dangerous when not used for careful research under close medical supervision, it is closely regulated by Federal and State laws. These provide stiff penalties for illegal production, sale, other disposition, and, in some cases, for possession or use.
 Because more knowledge is needed about this powerful compound, broad scale research is under way to learn fully about its chemistry, animal and human effects, and whether it can have any medical or other real values.
 This is another part of the national attack on abuse of narcotics and dangerous drugs of all kinds. On the educational side, newspapers, magazines, radio, and

The Truth Generally Lies Under the Surface

The true facts about anything are seldom pure and never simple. Facts often are deeply hidden, like the seven-eighths of an iceberg which always lie under water.

When your newspaper reporter says to the mayor, or the school superintendent, or the chief of police, "May I ask you a question or two?" he is really "diving" for facts. He hopes to bring to the light of day other related names, figures, or relationships which will tell his readers a fuller story.

Good newspapers, good newspapermen constantly dive, dig, and probe beneath the appearances of things to their deeper, often hidden meanings and connections.

There are all kinds of newspapers and all kinds of newspapermen. Nobody ever claimed they were all perfect. But one thing is certain: No other agency, institution, or group of people of any kind is engaged in digging out and publishing important facts about our public life.

That's the job of a free and unlicensed press.

UNIQUE JOURNEY TO THE DEEP

IMAGINE A HUGE STEEL TANK SHAPED LIKE AN INVERTED CHAMPAGNE GLASS ALMOST THE DIMENSIONS OF A FOOTBALL FIELD AND AS HIGH AS A 20-STORY BUILDING! BUILT ON LAND AND FLOATED FROM THE CONSTRUCTION SITE THROUGH A MAN-MADE CANAL, IT WILL STORE CRUDE OIL BENEATH THE WATERS OF THE ARABIAN GULF OFF THE SHORE OF THE SHAIKHDOM OF DUBAI.

THE RULER OF DUBAI, SHAIKH RASHID BIN SA'ID AL-MAKTOUM, SYMBOLICALLY SEVERED THE TIE TO THE LAND BY CUTTING A RIBBON ON THE STORAGE TANK WITH A CEREMONIAL GOLD DAGGER EMBLAZONED WITH JEWELS.

THE MAMMOTH TANK, WHICH CAN STORE HALF A MILLION BARRELS OF OIL, WAS THEN TOWED TO A LOCATION 58 MILES FROM SHORE...

THERE THE HUGE STRUCTURE, BUILT FOR THE DUBAI PETROLEUM COMPANY A SUBSIDIARY OF CONTINENTAL OIL CO., WAS SUBMERGED IN 158 FEET OF WATER WHERE OIL IS PIPED TO IT FROM SURROUNDING UNDERWATER WELLS AND THEN TRANSFERRED TO GIANT TANKERS, THUS COMPLETING A TOTAL CONCEPT UNIQUELY COMBINING OFFSHORE OIL PRODUCTION WITH SHIPPING FACILITIES IN ONE FIELD.

OUR LIBRARY

Don't forget the story hour on Saturday morning. Have your children gotten used to a regular visit to the library? Reading is one of the most important things your child will ever learn. By showing your child that you are interested in the library, you will therefore influence his reading habits.

"In this House of Brede," by Rumer Godden. This is a story of the life of a successful London career woman turned forty when she feels the call of the religious life. The life in an enclosed house of nuns and of the relevance of this contemplative existence to our changing world — a challenging theme.

"New Moon Rising," by Eugenia Price. Horace Gould, the younger son in a family of planters, reaches manhood in the troubled decade before the Civil War. As the book opens he is returning to his beloved island St. Simons, having just been dismissed from Yale for participating in student protests. At a time and in a place where enslavement of the black man is accepted as natural and necessary, Horace finds that he no longer fits in. His restlessness mounts until he is compelled to give up the way of life he loves for a painful self-imposed exile. The story then unfolds on a double screen as Horace tries to work out his destiny far from home — and the island, along with the rest of the South. The story of Horace, his family, his white and black friends, and his enchanting wife, Deborah, is true — not happy in the trite sense of the word, but full of humanity, warmth and a joy that transcends adversity.

"Jory," a novel by Milton R. Bass. The fresh, funny, and fascinating escapades of a mild-mannered fifteen-year-old boy whose extraordinary talent for gunmanship makes him the fastest, deadliest — and most unusual — gunslinger any reader has ever met.

It is rare for a man, sitting down to a good meal, to suggest to his wife that she is cooking too much.

Fairfield Gift Festival

November 6, 7, 8

The Fairfield Mennonite Church is once again sponsoring an International Gift Festival. This is the eighth year for this project. The festival will be held at the Fairfield Mennonite Church on November 6 and 7 from 1 to 9 p.m. and on Saturday, November 8, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

As in other years this is a non-profit venture for the group. The intent is to help others to find work and self-dignity by providing a market for their hand-crafts. The response in past years has been excellent and last year sold well over $4,000 worth of merchandise.

The festival is interdenominational in scope, with three main religious organizations contributing material — Mennonite Needle and Crafts, The International Gift Shop (Church World Service) and Penn-Alps, in Grantsville, Md. This gives a wide variety of countries and gift items.

Auxiliary Buys

Latest Equipment For Hospital

The Warner Hospital Auxiliary donated $10,000 for the purchase of laboratory equipment for the hospital at their meeting Monday afternoon in the hospital dining room.

Much of the equipment to be purchased will be used for comprehensive studies in support of the new coronary care unit at the hospital. Some of the equipment to be bought replaces worn out or outmoded apparatus but much of it will be completely new to the hospital.

Three pieces of equipment will be purchased to aid in studies of electrolyte imbalance which are made to determine courses of treatment in serious post-surgery accident and other cases. A flame photometer, used to determine the concentration of potassium and sodium in the blood, will be bought to replace the old model now in use. A chloridometer, to determine the level of blood chlorides, and a PH and blood gas analyzer, both useful in studying electrolyte imbalance, are completely new items to be added.

Two pieces of apparatus for the study of enzymes, an important tool in treating heart attack victims, will be purchased. A circulating water bath and an ultraviolet photometer. Both will provide greater accuracy, speed and variety in the enzyme studies.

An electrothoresis apparatus, used to assess the protein and "fatty" components in blood, such as cholesterol, will be used in studies for treatment and prevention of heart attacks and strokes.

A second floor model centrifuge will be added to improve efficiency and speed in the preparation of blood and other fluids for testing.

Church Plans

World Community Services Here

World Community Day will be observed this year at Incarnation United Church of Christ on Friday night, November 7, at 7:30 o'clock. This is an annual service sponsored locally by the women of the Protestant churches of the community, and nationally by Church Women United of the National Council of Churches.

The theme for this year's observance is "Christians in International Development". The service of worship which will be used was prepared by Mrs. Maynard Catchings, Functional Executive Secretary, Ministry to Women, World Division, Board of Missions, The United Methodist Church. Members of the various women's organizations of the churches will participate.

Each year there is some project developed which will help the world situation in some way. Again this year there will be the opportunity to purchase a $3.00 gift certificate, which the donor may designate for (1) blankets for disaster areas, (2) self-help materials for low economic areas in the U.S.A., (3) support for self-help projects overseas, or (4) to be used by Church Women United where needed most. These certificates may be purchased from Mrs. William Carr of the Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Ronald Fearer of the Lutheran Church, Mrs. Melva Hardman of Trinity Methodist Church, Mrs. Pauline Seabrook of Tom's Creek Methodist Church or Mrs. John Chatlos of Incarnation United Church of Christ. It was due to these certificates purchased in the past two years that in 1968 Church World Service was able to meet, for the first time in its history, every request for blankets which it received.

All women are invited to attend this national service, Friday, November 7 at 7:30 p.m., and are requested to bring with them a needle threaded with white thread and a spool of any color of thread.

Lions Clubs Observe 40th Charter Night

The banquet was served by the Ladies Auxiliary.

William M. Houck was toastmaster and introduced the visiting dignitaries from other clubs, including, G. Wilbur Boller of Gaither, Md. and District Governor; Massey H. Roe, Past International Director of Lions from Hagerstown; Richard F. Simmons, Myers were elected to two town commissioner posts by the 282 Thurmont citizens who cast ballots.

Two other commissioner posts, now occupied by William F. Benjamin and Murray C. Miller, were not subject to change this year. The four town commissioners serve two year terms and two of them are elected every year.

Black, who ran unopposed, had been an incumbent commissioner. Black received 220 votes and another 26 were cast for write-in candidates.

Clabaugh and Myers were selected from a field of four candidates which also included Richard E.

Howard and D. Sayler Weybright. Myers collected the highest number of votes with 229. Clabaugh, an incumbent commissioner, received 139, while Weybright collected 123 and Howard was given 45. In addition, one write in vote was cast for Roy Angell.

According to Town Clerk Glenn Nikirk, the 282 citizens who cast votes represent about 35 per cent of the town's 814 registered voters.

Milburn M. Glass, DePaul St., observed his seventy-first birthday on Tuesday, October 21.
