Most Anything At A Glance

- By Abigail -

Observations and words are my stock-in-trade. Having been oriented for 10 these many years in the art of studying and writing about people, places and things, most of my life has been spent eyeing, prying and unabashedly, scrutinizing and analyzing people and situations, mostly from an objective standpoint. This week, however, by virtue of my unique position, I am qualified to write subjectively, for I can truly say I know whereof I speak.

During the recent difficult weeks following the death of our Editor, I have observed at very close range what has been transpiring here in the offices of our home-town paper. Reeling under the staggering blow of suddenly losing our leader, grief-stricken; fearful of being suddenly cast adrift in a "sink or swim" situation, I have seen the morale of my fellow workers take a nosedive, recover and begin to regenerate itself. I'd like to tell you a story which centers around the Chronicle; the crisis into which it was thrust; how it faced up to that crisis; made a decision; answered a challenge; and, consciously or unconsciously, set the tone for its future.

Long will I remember that first hectic, pathetic, chaotic week that followed the sudden death of our Editor, Arthur Elder. Running the entire gamut of emotions, they labored long and hard here at the Chronicle. The dogged determination and devotion of family, friends and staff would not permit their failing him in this critical period. They drew on every bit of knowledge and technique he ever taught them and put it into play. They "put the Chronicle to bed" . . . and on time. They met their deadline . . . They did not let him down. It was their personal tribute to him. How proud he must have been when the presses started to roll sending forth the first issue of the Chronicle independent of any material, and tangible help from him! They crossed their Rubicon, and I cannot tell you the pride, admiration and affection that welled up within me as I watched this drama unfold.

To deviate slightly, I was surprised to learn that some Abigail fans entertained doubts that my column would continue to be a feature of the Chronicle upon the death of our Editor. I was astonished, though elated to know that some of you actually were unhappy at the prospect I might not be kept 'on', and the relief displayed when Abigail appeared as usual by you, moves me deeply. When a writer strives week after week to generate and retain the interest of his readers; to maintain a fresh approach to a constant variety of subjects; to arouse constructive action and response to what he writes—he cannot always be sure he is reaching his readers, fulfilling their needs and desires or that he is not boring them to death. Thank you for letting me know I'm appreciated!

Philosophically speaking, I can truly say—Never once in the midst of my grief over losing my dear friend and 'boss' did I harbor the slightest doubt either that I would not continue to make my humble weekly contribution to the Chronicle or that publication of the Chronicle itself would be suspended or ended. In my mind it was a simple matter of transition in which I automatically assumed—nay, instinctively knew that the family and staff of our beloved Editor would take up where he left off . . . and this They Have Done! They have taken the Chronicle's banner from the hands of their fallen comrade—their Chief—and are carrying it in the true tradition of their forebearers.

Their legacy is a noble and difficult one and I who have been so close to the very heart of the Chronicle and its owners, cannot attempt to minimize the gravity and magnitude of the obstacles they will encounter. With the patience, understanding and moral support of the people of Emmitsburg, Chron-

Extinguish Truck Fire

The Vigilant Hose Co. responded to a garbage truck on fire Tuesday evening at 5:45 o'clock.

Fire Chief Guy R. McGlaughlin said Edward Wetzel, Emmitsburg, was carrying a load of debris, including ashes, in a 1971 pickup truck when smoke was noticed from the bed of the truck as the vehicle was turning around just off Route 97 at its intersection with Route 15. Emmitsburg firemen put out the blaze, then accompanied the truck to the dump to determine if all fire was extinguished. Chief McGlaughlin said hot ashes probably caused the blaze which resulted in $50 damage.

There are nearly 500 species of hummingbirds.

St. Joseph College Honors 2 Faculty Members

St. Joseph College conferred the Founder's Award upon two veteran faculty members at the annual honors convocation on May 3. Miss Julie Christie and Dr. Adolph Wasilifsky, between them, have dedicated 79 years to teaching at St. Joseph's and will both retire this year.

The citation on the award reads, "By this award, we give public testimony to the example set by persons in contemporary society whose lives manifest the ideals and exemplify the works and spirit of Elizabeth Ann Seton. As would Mother Seton, we pay them their favorite tribute: Excellentissimo!"

A graduate of St. Joseph's, Miss Christie majored in mathematics. However, she became interested in secretarial science and went on to receive a M.A. degree in secretarial science from Columbia University. Miss Christie has taught 44 years at the college and can remember back to when she was the only full-time lay woman teacher and when secretarial science was the largest major on campus. Her sister, Sarah C. Christie, also a graduate of St. Joseph's and a member of the Associate Board, is the former assistant superintendent of schools for the Trenton, N. J., Board of Education. Both sisters have received honorary doctor of laws degrees from St. Joseph's.

Miss Christie has always considered typing and shorthand important assets for students looking for jobs and has continued to research innovations in secretarial science in order to keep pace with the business world for her students.

A member of Eastern Business Teachers Association and the American Association of University Women, Miss Christie is also active in the Historical Society of Frederick County.

When she retires Julia Christie will reside in Levittown, Pa., with her sister. They are looking forward to heading for Europe again this summer.

Dr. Wasilifsky was born in Baltimore and graduated from Loyola College. He received his M.A. degree from Georgetown University and the Ph.D. degree from Cornell University, both in English. Chairman of the English Department at St. Joseph's for 25 years, Dr. Wasilifsky has also taught at Georgetown, St. Norbert College, Catholic University, University of Detroit and Mount Saint Mary's College. He has been teaching at St. Joseph's since 1936.

Recently Dr. Wasilifsky was notified that his name would be listed in this year's "Dictionary of International Scholars" for his research on Shakespeare. Author of "The Talking Voice," a book on voice training, Dr. Wasilifsky is a charter member of the Catholic Broadcasters Association. He is also active in the American Association of University Professors and the Association of Departments of English. Dr. Wasilifsky has traveled extensively throughout Europe. The recipient of two Ford Foundation grants, Dr. Wasilifsky studied Chinese literature.

St. Joseph College inaugurated the Founder's Award in 1967 "so that Mother Seton's pioneering efforts might remain fresh in memory. The merits of Elizabeth Ann Seton have been proclaimed throughout the world: intellectually gifted, devoted mother inflamed with love of God and country, the founder of a religious community, a pioneer educator of women, and not the least, America's first native-born Beata."

"A valiant woman, personally involved in the turbulence of the founding days of our nation, Mrs. Seton's personal virtue, her familial devotion, her spiritual force, her concern for the lot of the educationally and socially deprived, inspire imitation." The citation also quotes Horace Mann, "It would be more honorable to our distinguished ancestors to praise them in words less, but in deed to imitate them more." Mother Seton founded St. Joseph's in 1809.

The Feminine Scene by FRANCINE MARLOWE NATIONAL DIRECTOR OF GROOMING SCHOOLS OF MODELS

Have you ever had the strange feeling that someone was watching you? Well your "vibrations" were absolutely correct! The fact is, young lady, someone is always watching you—and don't you ever forget it. He or she may just come up with the opportunity of a lifetime!

Now, isn't that reason enough to always look your best? Besides, the way you look tells a lot about the way you work. Chances are if the way you dress and groom yourself are careless, people will think you'd be careless in a job situation. This is something no Barbizon girl ever forgets—and you shouldn't either, regardless of your profession.

How's your posture, for example? Did you ever stop to think that poor posture really shows a lack of confidence and pride? Stand up straight! People will have more confidence in you when you stand erect and show more confidence in yourself!

And what's your neatness quotient? It helps to make points, you know! It's certainly no coincidence that the most successful models are invariably the best groomed, so take your cue from them. Anything less than perfect just won't do! To look model perfect you have to go at it like a model. This means discipline. At Barbizon our successful models establish a routine and then stick to it—no matter what. That's what makes them successful. Follow their example! Schedule one night for shampoo, another for manicure, and so on, and it won't be long before you start looking like a model new you!

Writer Discusses Calley Verdict

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle: The Calley Court Martial is over, but the resultant furor should be around for quite some time. Actually the military tribunal was going to catch hell no matter what decision they returned. The upheaval comes as no great surprise.

What is surprising however, is the amount of emotional pro-Calley sentiment across the country. As is the custom with most all emotionalism, the rhetoric bears scant resemblance to the actual facts of the case.

Lt. Calley was convicted of premeditated murder. Regardless what type war, regardless what type strain, and regardless of prior incidents to his men, no soldier has the right to herd civilians into a ditch and kill them.

If we are to believe the evidence as presented, Lt. Calley's crime is inexcusable. His sentence was just, and in accordance with the verdict.

The justification used by many, that our government on the one hand trained this man in the art of killing, and one the other hand punished him for doing his job; is errant nonsense.

As an ex-officer in a combat arms I assure you that nowhere in my training was massacre a required subject. On simply must not do what this man is convicted of doing.

Quite naturally some of our more prominent Liberals have seized the political implications of the case, and roundly condemned the President for his granting Lt. Calley release from the post stockade. The fact that the President has every Constitutional right to do so is immaterial. Constitutionality as seen by these gentlemen and the ACLU, is only applicable to those conforming more closely to their ideological persuasion.

If nothing else this trial should amplify an already evident fact. We simply must end our involvement in Indochina as quickly as possible. Long ago we have committed ourselves to a no win policy in this war, and each month it lingers on, the divisiveness mounts. The distortions of the media have been accepted as fact, and those few individuals left who are attempting to correct the more blatant mistruths are ever dwindling. The majority of the people now believe our best interests would be served by disengagement as soon as we can.

I sincerely hope those poor souls who believe that the end of the war will once again bring some semblance of domestic tranquility are prepared for a rude awakening.

The kids have now become our Nation's conscience. It's a rather heavy responsibility for our teenagers. But with their parent's help, a little more of the media publicity, and most important, government impotence I'm sure they can handle the country quite nicely.

All you racists out there, you middle American slob, you politicians, and general incompetents, beware because undoubtedly your time for catharsis has just begun. Fifty years from now participatory democracy will be something the old folks vaguely remember. A Former Lieutenant

Prescription Prices Down 10% While Cost of Living Climbs

The cost of most consumer goods and services climbed dramatically during the past decade, according to the Consumer Price Index of the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The only notable exception was the cost of prescription drugs which declined 10% during the 10 year period.

According to the Index, cost of medical care increased 68% from 1960 through 1970. Food away from home increased 59%, housing went up 40%, both apparel and transportation rose 36%, personal care climbed 33%, and the price of food for home consumption increased 27%.

Commenting on the reduction in prescription drug prices, Willard B. Simmons, executive secretary of the National Association of Retail Druggists, said that both retail pharmacists and pharmaceutical manufacturers can be proud of their record in reducing prices during the inflationary period. "This achievement is especially remarkable in view of continuing improvements in drugs which control and cure disease, relieve pain, and extend lives for Americans everywhere," he added.

Defending Revenue Sharing

One sure sign that an idea is taking hold is when opponents attack it and propose substitutes and alternatives to it. This is now the case with President Nixon's Revenue Sharing Plan which I have supported since the President presented it to the nation almost two years ago. In fact, I was one of the original sponsors of revenue sharing in the 91st Congress. Under the Nixon Administration proposal, the Federal Government would return a portion of federal taxes to the states. These funds could be put to work in the areas deemed most important by local officials.

This proposal would go a long way toward alleviating the fiscal straits many local governments, especially those in our larger cities, are experiencing. However, a number of people are attacking the Nixon plan. One, Senator James Buckley of New York, has suggested an alternative to it.

Senator Buckley urges that the Federal Government reduce its income taxes by some $5 billion, the total President Nixon would return to the states under revenue sharing, and authorize each state to ask the Internal Revenue Service to collect for it a specified portion of the federal income tax. A state could choose to forgo this option and allow its residents to take a cut in their federal tax, or a state could ask the IRS to collect a larger amount than would be allocated under revenue sharing.

A second substitute to the Nixon plan is a proposal to have the Federal Government assume each state's welfare costs in lieu of revenue sharing funds. The proponents of this substitute to revenue sharing reason that it would take a tremendous load off state taxpayers and allow the states to direct funds currently committed to covering welfare costs to other projects. While both this and Senator Buckley's proposal seem perfectly reasonable, I find that they share the same fatal flaw. Neither plan reflects the reality of national priorities. It must be pointed out that by either of these alternatives, the Federal Government will not be moving to alter the tragic conditions that exist in so many smaller and poorer areas of the United States. In fact, the country would simply be renouncing revenues that do not exist. The government would not be making available the aid that it can and should make to residents of the nation's poorer areas.

By contrast, President Nixon's plan includes a formula which would distribute federal monies to the states with the greatest demonstrated need. It is important for the nation to recognize the national aspect of the President's plan. It is a tonic for our very ill municipal, state and county governments. To deny that it is needed is to deny the pleas of the nation's mayors and governors who struggle with the dollars and cents problem of not being able to provide services to their citizens. It is important that the President's plan and the substitutes for it receive the fullest public hearings. I hope every citizen will pay the closest attention to these investigations and I believe that in the end, the Nixon program will gain even more public support.

NEW DWARF CHRYSANTHEMUM

Autumn Glory is the first seed-grown chrysanthemum that stays dwarf. Plants grow only 6 to 8 inches tall; are self-branching so do not need pinching back.

If you want a gardening adventure, try the new mixture of chrysanthemums named Autumn Glory, the first mums to grow from seeds, yet remain dwarf.

Ideally seeds are sown indoors for an early start, moved to the garden when soil is workable and frost will no longer kill the little plants.

However, seeds also may be sown directly in the ground up to May 1 to flower this year. Later planting will only mean flowers next year instead of this—your efforts will not be wasted.

From this sowing you'll get dwarf, 6 to 8 inch plants that will spread from 18 to 24 inches and never need pinching since they are self-branching. They'll have double and semi-double blooms in all the usual chrysanthemum colors.

BUSINESS and the STOCK MARKET

by BABSON'S REPORTS INC.

Business Picture Brighter

By Babson's Reports Incorporated, Wellesley Hills, Mass., May 6, 1971 — There can now be no doubt that the nation's economy has shown improvement since the General Motors facilities resumed production last fall after the labor tie-up. Actually, had it not been for the auto strike, industrial production might well have bot-tommed out in the summer of 1970. But labor disputes do have a critical impact on general activity, and in this instance it was of sufficient force to postpone the absolute low point until November.

Labor Figures In Recovery

After a protracted shutdown such as that which hit the auto industry's largest manufacturer, catch-up output inevitably gives a substantial uplift to industrial production as a whole. This is what happened during the final weeks of the fall season and into the waning weeks of the winter of 1971. Without this pent-up production, it would be difficult to gauge accurately how much vitality the economy would have enjoyed during this period.

The uncertainty as to the degree of inherent recovery is further heightened by the fact that the post-strike auto catch-up has been accompanied by substantial strike-hedge inventory accumulation of steel in preparation for possible labor troubles in that key industry this summer. There is also copper stockpiling in anticipation of potential disruptions in this industry as well.

Housing Adds Vigor

Whatever the cause, it must be recognized that the net effect has been a good boost for business in general. Residential building, too, has finally responded favorably, in this instance to the increased availability of mortgage credit. From the money-starved low of a little over one million units in January 1970—a seasonally adjusted annual-rate basis—new housing starts climbed gradually upward and closed out the 1970 calendar year with a bulge that boosted the annual-rate mark to a shade over two million units.

This unexpectedly large increase in new housing starts last December was followed by a setback in the ensuing two months. But the underlying trend was still clearly upward and March saw another surge of sufficient scope to hike the seasonally adjusted annual rate back close to the two-million mark.

Greater Consumer Confidence

At long last, consumers are also lending their assistance in moving the economy ahead. In contrast to recessions of the more distant past, unemployment during the 1969-1970 business setback did not increase to an inordinate extent, despite the degree of publicity accorded the jobless problem. There were—and still are—pockets of high unemployment, but these represent regions hard hit by cutbacks in outlays for military and aerospace projects.

Consumers were, of course, upset by the doubtful employment conditions, the adverse effects of inflation, by tight credit and high interest rates in the early stages of the recession, and by disturbing episodes of social unrest. In March of this year, however, consumers finally began to loosen their tight grip on their purse strings, and the Easter buying season was remunerative enough to prove that the public was once again becoming readier to spend money.

Best Still Ahead

Despite the improved business climate, there are still many problem areas. Unemployment continues reluctant to respond hearteningly to the economic revival. Inflationary pressures remain a grave threat, even though the rise in prices has recently decelerated to some extent. And many industries are still in the doldrums.

There is, nevertheless, enough evidence to conclude that the tide has turned. Progress may be slow in the months just ahead, but once the major obstacles are cleared the pace can easily quicken.

the tour. Nearby are several old churches which will be open, with hostesses. The Frederick County Historical Society home, the gardens of the nearby Visitation Convent, and special displays of Negro History and early city maps and documents in City Hall, will all be open. There will be an opportunity to visit Rose Hill Manor, which is currently undergoing renovation, the ever popular Barbara Fritchie home, and Roger Brooke Taney home, both recently restored, and the lovely Steiner House. Buses will take visitors to the grave of Francis Scott Key, and to the Hessian Barracks on the property of the Maryland School for the Deaf.

Added features will be craft displays at several of the locations. These will be manned by hobbyists and professionals in fields representative of craft work done in Frederick's early days.

Frederick annually opens its historic locations to visitors to acquaint them with the rich store of history in the area. Almost all of the work is done by volunteers, and a nominal fee includes all attractions and bus tours. Tickets can be obtained on Bell and History Days by visiting the Tour Headquarters at the Francis Scott Key Hotel, or at any tour location. Further information can be obtained by contacting Mr. Michael Croghan, Chairman, c/o Chamber of Commerce of Frederick County, Francis Scott Key Hotel, Frederick, Maryland 21701.

Peace Corps Applications Boom

A dramatic upsurge in applications means the Peace Corps will reverse a four-year downtrend. Peace Corps Director Joseph H. Blatchford points out that the March total of 5,195 applications was 107 percent higher than in March 1970 and the best single month since November 1966. The recruiting campaign directed by William Inglis (left) already has brought in more than 16,000 applications, with a total of 26,000 projected by August. Last year's total of 19,022 marked a four-year low. The Peace Corps is seeking people with specific skills and background in agriculture, in math and science teaching and in the vocational trades. Some 8,000 volunteers and trainees are now serving in approximately 60 nations in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Celebration Set For Frederick

Bell and History Days will be celebrated in Frederick, on Saturday, May 15 and Sunday, May 16. Frederick's great historic treasures will be on display, and bus tours will be available around this charming city. Costumed guides and hostesses at all locations will assist visitors, and acquaint everyone with Frederick's past.

Frederick's bells will play an outstanding role in the festivities. Maryland's only complete carillon is located adjacent to the downtown area, and its carillonneur will alternate with the master of the Trinity Chapel chimes in afternoon recitals. In addition, a local costumed handbell choir will perform.

History buffs will welcome a chance to view where history was made. Court House square with its many old homes and quaint buildings will be a focal point of

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The Bill of Complaint is a suit to procure a divorce A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Cris E. Winkler.

The Bill recites that the Complainant is a resident of Frederick County, State of Maryland, where he has resided for more than one year last past; that the Defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, and resides at Kent, Connecticut; that the parties to this cause were married on the 14th day of March, 1970, at Mt. Airy, Maryland, by a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel; that as a result of the said marriage no child or children were born; that the Complainant has discovered that between the time of said marriage and the filing of this Bill of Complaint the Defendant has committed the crime of adultery with a certain man by the name of Buddy Day; and that since discovery of said adultery the Complainant has not lived with the Defendant as husband and wife, nor has he forgiven or condoned her actions in any way.

The Bill then prays that the Complainant may be divorced A VINCULO MATRIMONII from the Defendant, Cris E. Winkler, and for such other and further relief as the nature of his case may require.

COURT ORDER

It is thereupon this 16th day of April, 1971, by the Circuit Court for Frederick County, Maryland, sitting as a Court of Equity, ORDERED that the Complainant give notice to the Defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in the County of Frederick, once each week for four successive weeks before the 22nd day of May, 1971, commanding her to be and appear in this Court, in person or by Solicitor, on or before the 22nd day of June, 1971, and show cause, if any she has, why a Decree should not be passed as prayed.

Credit Card Concept Is Centuries Old

Traveling Teutonic Knights Used Signet Rings In Lieu Of Cash

The credit card, that magical little piece of plastic rectangle which can open vistas of exotic travel, gourmet dining and countless other pleasures of life without the necessity of spot cash is not, as one might believe, an outgrowth of mid-twentieth century life.

The credit card, or at least the idea and conception of "travel now, pay later," is centuries old.

The practice seems to have had its beginnings in medieval Germany where carrying coins of the realm or, indeed, any kind of valuables down the country's dark, heavily forested roads was done strictly at one's own risk. It remained, therefore, for the Teutonic Knights — travelers and conquerors of considerable renown — to introduce what for those days has to be considered both a stroke of genius and a practically foolproof measure. Designing special signet rings engraved with their personal coats of arms, the Teutonic Knights wore the impressive ornaments whenever and wherever they traveled.

No slouches when it came to personal convenience involving money matters, they registered each ring with the artisan who created it and provided innkeepers near and far with a master list of each knight's respective insignia. After a significant amount of credit had been extended, innkeepers would present a bill for the total amount at the castle or fortress. Knights were thus able to travel hither and yon while carrying only a minimum of coinage and valuables. Sound familiar?

NEW MECHANICS — SAME PRINCIPLE

The awkward mechanics of credit usage have undergone numerous refinements since the days of the dim past when knights were bold, but the underlying principle of that early system survives today.

Credit cards were first issued back in the 1920's in department stores and oil companies. These cards were being used primarily as a merchandising instrument to build brand loyalty to the oil company or to the department stores.

The Travel and Entertainment card (T&E), introduced first by Diners Club in 1950 and then by American Express and Carte Blanche, added a third party to the growing card acceptance.

For an annual fee, the card member in effect opened a large number of charge accounts all over the country with a single application. Participating restaurants, hotels and motels and other firms gained the competitive muscle of the card issuer and were relieved of the credit risk. For this service the T & E company charged a discount fee.

For the "T & E" card, membership is by application only and requires a rigid credit investigation and payment of a $15 a year fee. Additional cards for the member's wife or others to use cost $10 a year each.

With the "T&E" card there is the comforting assurance that as soon as you display it, you are nowhere a stranger... be it Peoria or Paris, Leningrad or Lima.

"Our card is better than a letter of credit," said Brooks Banker, Executive Vice President of American Express and General Manager of the Card Division.

Then there are "private label" cards, such as those that the oil companies, the airlines, hotels, auto rental agencies offered cost free to their customers. Usage of the "private label" cards is usually limited to their services.

Revolving credit cards fall into two sizeable categories: (1) "Family Service" credit cards; (2) "Bank Cards" which have begun to flourish in a thousand cities.

Both are primarily deferred payment plans, usually confined to a single region. The issuing credit card company receives from the customer 1/4 percent service charge on his outstanding balance every month. If he pays his entire bill within 25 days, no charge is required. Merchant establishments that honor revolving credit cards are, in general, local retail stores, popular-priced chains and major discount houses.

The ability to travel, dine, lodge and purchase myriad goods and services without having to carry large amounts of cash has become more than a mere convenience. With Americans, it is a way of life and fast becoming a very major factor in our economy. American Express's 3,500,000 cardmembers are proof of that trend.

Nineteen seventy-one and the years ahead will be a time of travel opportunity when more people than ever before will seek the new and unusual. Of course, they won't be traversing the forbidden medieval roads. They'll be exploring Asia, Latin America, Europe, the Caribbean and the Pacific in a world growing smaller daily through high-speed transportation. "In that world of sophisticated travel," Mr. Banker said "American Express will continue to offer every conceivable Travel and Financial Service."

Heroin Now Dominates "Drug Culture"

Heroin—the death-dealing devil of the narcotics world—is spreading from the coastal regions into the school yards across America. The era of Marijuana, the era of the amphetamines (speed), the era of barbiturates (downers) have one after the other in recent years captured the momentary discipleship of the young drug culture masses, millions of American youth. But now the powdery white devil—Heroin—from which few who use it ever return to normal life, has begun to supplant all the less dangerous of the dangerous drugs. At least these are the chilling conclusions of one of the nation's best informed medical practitioners, Dr. George R. Gay, Director of the Medical Section, Chief of Heroin Clinic, Haight-Asbury Medical Clinic, San Francisco. He sounded the grim warning in a dramatic presentation to the Alabama Drug Alert '71 Seminar in which he participated. He is working among 20,000 mostly young drug abusers in the most famous "free clinic" in perhaps the most notorious citadel of hippiedom and the drug traffic in the world. Dr. Gay, a dedicated Medical Missionary, wears a full beard, long hair and dresses in the colorful garb of a Hindu Swami. Started With Marijuana

"The population I'm seeing in the Haight-Asbury hippie community of San Francisco," Dr. Gay said, "has a 100% saturation with Marijuana. We are dealing with a generation of kids who were brought up on the "boob tube" learning that there are pills for all ills. The first thing we saw among the thousands of runaway kids from all parts of the country was—in 1966-67 what we called the 'Psychadellic Era'. The Haight-Asbury thousands came from a multitude of differing culture backgrounds, racial backgrounds, differing drug experience backgrounds.

"They all came from backgrounds where alcohol was legal, where tobacco was legal, and where many patent medications that they saw advertised on TV were legal. And so they indeed felt that if something went wrong they could always find something to take for it. They came to join the 'Flower Children' in this center of drug abuse—and they had their problems which they tried to solve with Marijuana and LSD. Haight-Asbury is recognized as perhaps the No. 1 center of drug abuse in America. Other centers are East Village in New York, Old Town in Chicago, and a few areas of Los Angeles. It is recognized that drug abuse patterns ripple outward from the Haight. It is known in the drug world as the ripple effect.

Ripping Out Across Country

"At anywhere from 6 to 18 months after we see the pattern emerging, we know it is going to be seen in Iowa City, in Little Rock, Atlanta, St. Louis, all across the nation. The kids found in time that Haight-Asbury's urban environment wasn't too good for good 'trips'. They began to turn away from the psychadellics.

"What followed the Psychadellic Era was the Amphetamine or 'Speed' Era. And this brought on the use of Dexadrine, Methadrine, etc. They started by taking the pills because the pills caused a certain amount of euphoria. It took away the anxiety of the 'bad trip' on acid. After 'dropping' speed pills, the kids began injecting all kinds of amphetamines in large doses. Speed makes them super-active. It drives the body to exhaustion, without sleep. Speed freaks lose weight and many die with hepatitis.

"In the summer of 1968, the speed users turned to the barbiturates. There are no withdrawal symptoms from speed—but the users can't keep it up. Speed freaks go on the run day and night; then they crash. And when they crash this is followed by a period of intense depression. And what do those bewildered and frightened kids do for their depression?

From Barbs To Heroin

"These walking zombies don't usually go to a doctor. They go to their drug culture cohorts out on the street—the friendly pusher. And the friends set the depressed speed victims up with barbiturates, because barbiturates are a lovely 'downer'. The speed freak can take 'Barbs' and all of a sudden he can sleep for the first time in weeks.

Then when he awakens he finds that if he takes more 'Barbs' he can alleviate the profound depression that comes after a speed run. So he continues to take 'Barbs'. Now we are into a medical quandary—for when you withdraw the 'Barbs' later the addict will convulse and maybe die.

"In September 1969 we saw Haight-Asbury evolving into a new phase—the Era of Heroin. We began to have the most manipulative type of patients you'll ever see. When we see these Heroin addicts—usually about a year after they are 'caught', we see a truly criminal personality, a psychopathic deviate off the top of the scale." Dr. Gay says this is the pattern now spreading out across the country. He said Heroin is as easy to get on the junior and senior high school grounds as cigarettes.

Dr. Gay said that to effectively fight the frightening development in the drug culture will require the involvement of every man, woman and child in America, particularly the non-drug-using youth. Won't you enlist? If we don't join together and win the fight, our civilization will die.

club with pledges to the American and 4-H Flags. Thirteen members answered the roll by giving the name of a "fitting and showing item". The leaders, James Hill and Lawrence Bassler, were also present along with six parents.

A report was given on the Public Speaking contest held recently in Frederick. Stanley R. Gregg won the Boys' Intermediate Division, and will participate in the District contest. Allen Bassler gave a report on the Dairy Workshop. The report on Ag. Careers Day held April 1, was given by Susie Weimer.

It was announced that the first Black and White Show ever to be held in the State of Maryland would be held at the Ag. Center in Gaithersburg, on April 17. The Dairy Beef Sale was also mentioned. It was to be held on April 24 at Westminster. Several members were planned to attend. Four members have made tentative plans to attend the McDonough Fair to be held on May 15. Demonstration Day was discussed and will be held on April 30 and May 8. The club voted to take up a collection at the next meeting and contribute this to the Ralph Reashear Memorial.

The highlight of the evening was demonstrations and talks on "Preparing a Dairy Animal for Showing." This was handled by the Weimer children and Ronnie Kling, with Naomi Weimer telling about the needs and requirements of health and registration papers. Susie Weimer discussed the ways of caring, fitting and brushing animals. Sharon Weimer's talk was on feeding the animal. Mike Weimer, with the help of Ronnie Kling, demonstrated how to clip and show the animals.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Weimer.

WASHINGTON REPORT FROM SENATOR J. GLENN BEALL JR.

Drug Abuse in the Armed Services

Three related but separate events took place this week that move me to comment on an increasingly serious national problem: drug abuse in the armed services.

The first event was the release of the formerly confidential report on the subject by the staff of the Senate Subcommittee on Alcoholism and Narcotics.

The second was the release of the voluminous report of the Special House Subcommittee on Alleged Drug Abuse in the Armed Services. While in the House I was a member of that subcommittee and was amazed to hear some of the testimony during those hearings.

The third event has been the most telling to me personally. For the past two weeks I have been visited by several veterans—and active duty servicemen—to discuss the Viet Nam War. One of the principal topics of discussion was drug abuse among their "buddies". Parenthetically, I should note that the men I talked to have been about evenly divided between those demanding "out now" and those supporting the President's withdrawal program.

The Senate report indicated "there was an increase in the availability, experimentation with and use of heroin" in Viet Nam. The subcommittee staff also found that the refined heroin that can be readily purchased in Viet Nam contains "97% heroin as compared to the 5% or 6% heroin usually available in the U.S." It is the startling ramification of these two facts that the men I talked with said should shock the American people to action.

The first point was that whereas the "cut" heroin available in the U.S. is not immediately addictive, the "uncut" 97% variety in Viet Nam is! Second they indicate what may be a $5 or $10 a day habit in Viet Nam explodes to a $200 or $500 a week for the same habit when the addicted serviceman returns to the States. The implication here is particularly distressing. Only the very wealthy or those resorting to crime could support such a habit.

The Senate staff noted, "We did not find that the use of drugs has a significant direct impact upon the military mission of the Armed Services." As a statement of fact referring to the past, the men in my office would agree. But they were deeply concerned about the future. On two separate occasions I was told that samples of heroin that had been confiscated from all sectors of South Viet Nam were of remarkably consistent composition. This indicated to my visitors that all of it was being produced at a single "factory in the North" and distributed throughout the South to American forces.

Thus, they felt that although there had been no indications of North Viet Nam using drugs as a "weapon" to affect any particular American offensive, the potential of such use was to them more real than the potential use of germ or biological warfare.

DO YOU MAKE THESE CHILD-REARING BLUNDERS?

Imitation, child psychologists agree, is the royal road to learning for the young. That means your children tend to be influenced more by what you do than by what you say.

Take truth-telling. It's all very well to extol the virtues of truth, illustrated by a bedtime story of George Washington and the cherry tree. But do you let your actions undermine all verbal lessons? For instance, on a train do you instruct your 7-year-old to tell the conductor he's 5 so he can ride free? If you do, you may be putting him on the track to lifelong prevarication.

Or maybe you lecture with the best of intentions on the brotherhood of man and racial equality. But if you indulge in cruel ethnic "jokes," who can blame your child for growing up with a lifelong streak of bigotry?

In teaching courtesy to the young, parental example is worth more than all the age-of-chivalry literature or earnest recitations of the rules of etiquette. Do you sit glued grimly to your bus seat while an elderly passenger stands . . . push ahead of your place in the supermarket line . . . dominate the dinner-table conversation? If so, don't be surprised if your keenly observant youngster imitates your boorish behavior.

Of course, those same imitative powers can be harnessed to positive character-building. For instance, if you yourself display a genuine and action-oriented concern for the world's less fortunate, the lesson almost certainly will rub off on your child.

There's no better place to start than by guiding him step

Services gives help without regard to religion by taking him on a tour of churches of various denominations and—where possible—to a synagogue, a mosque or a Buddhist temple.

To illustrate what Catholic Relief Services means by helping the fortunate regardless of nationality or race, introduce your youngster to people from other places and cultures. For example, you can invite foreigners to your home for dinner or a weekend through programs operated by many universities, churches and fraternal organizations.

Often, foreigners who come to this country for work or study bring along their families. If there are children in the same age group as your son or daughter, so much the better. A face-to-face meeting will help both the young host and the young guest to realize that—whatever the differences in their backgrounds—there is more that unites than separates them.

For over 25 years, it has served more impoverished people in more countries (over 70 in all) than any other agency in the history of American voluntary overseas aid.

The 1971 fund appeal will be conducted March 14-21 inclusive. Your contributions can be sent to your nearest Catholic church or to Catholic Overseas Aid, Empire State Building, New York, N.Y. 10001.

FAMILY HEALTH

Aspirin in Your Medicine Chest

Some of the safest and most useful of medicines are often missing when needed from a family's medicine chest. Bayer Aspirin, for instance, is good for reducing fever, relieving pain, and relieving the discomforts of the common flu and cold.

Many homemakers imperil their families by keeping old prescription drugs long after the illness, for which they were initially prescribed, has ended. Throw them out whenever the illness has terminated. Never leave any drugs within the reach of children.

What should be in your medicine chest? The items listed below are suggested as a minimum. Get a pencil and check off the ones you have, then go to the druggist and get the ones you need.

- 1-2 muslin bandages
- 1 bandage for burns
- 1 elastic bandage
- 3 packets sterile gauze
- Sterile absorbent cotton
- Adhesive strips
- Thermometer
- Bayer Aspirin
- Tincture of Iodine
- Petroleum jelly
- Milk of Magnesia

MAN-ON-THE-MOON

Man-on-the-Moon is a new, double, large-flowered, almost white marigold for your 1971 garden.

In the race for space the U.S.A. was first to put a man on the moon. In the race for a white marigold, there's as yet no winner but Man-On-The-Moon, a new marigold, comes close.

True, it is not quite as white as Whitemost, but it's earlier-blooming and has bigger blossoms, double and 3½ inches across.

These appear on 20-inch tall plants and continue to open from mid-summer until frost.

Green Thumb Tips

Have you checked your fertilizer, insecticide and fungicide packages lately to make certain they are still holding together and that their contents are safe?

While you do this, take inventory of your supplies so you will know what to order for the coming garden season.

Remember that some pesticides lose their effectiveness in a year's time, so must be discarded at the end of each season.

One such is rotenone, widely used to control insects on vegetables since it is not poisonous to humans. It should be bought anew each year.

For earliest snap beans try a new variety developed by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Named Provider, it starts early to produce a heavy crop and this even under conditions that are less than ideal.

The variety also is resistant to common mosaic and tolerant of another disease, powdery mildew.

The itch to plant something as soon as the soil can be worked can be satisfied with good results if you confine your efforts to annuals that like cool temperatures and will tolerate late frosts.

These include sweet alyssum, bachelor's button, candytuft, calendula, annual chrysanthemum, larkspur, snapdragon, stock and sweet pea.

Certain annuals, such as double hollyhocks, after they have been in your garden for a few years, may have seedlings growing around them.

Don't be too disappointed if those you allow to grow have single flowers when they bloom. That's the way it is with seedlings. They don't, necessarily, resemble their parents.

When you plan to grow peas or beans in your garden, order an inoculant when you order the seeds. Most seed companies sell it, but be sure to name the crops on which you want to use it.

What does an inoculant do? Supplies the bacteria which form nodules on the roots of plants in the pea family.

These bacteria are able to take free nitrogen from the air and "fix" it in the nodules. Nitrogen, as you well know, is the most expensive ingredient in fertilizer.

When the residues of these plants are tilled under in your garden, and as nodules decompose, the nitrogen is added to the soil.

In the 15th Century, Queen Isabella of Spain declared that she only had two baths in her life—including one on the day she was married!

In quite another spirit, when Charles II was restored to the English throne, milk baths were the thing with women who wanted beautiful skin!

Today, a squeeze of a new bath preparation on a wash cloth, sponge or bath mit is all that is needed for an all-over wash. Used instead of soap, Moisturelle is a multipurpose cleanser, bubble bath and shampoo that leaves the skin silky soft.

Getting a beautiful skin in early Britain meant taking a very hot bath to induce excessive perspiration followed by washing the face with plenty of wine!

icle readers, advertisers and other clientele, I have no doubt that God will steer those in charge of the Chronicle onto the proper course. Judging by the uninterrupted delivery of the paper, the steady improvement in its appearance and reading contents as it is printed each succeeding week, it is readily apparent that this is already happening. Time is the great healer and strong forces are already at work.

I am an old lady who has lived through the loss of two dedicated Editors. Both the Chronicle and Abigail survived the death of Mr. John D. Elder, my first 'boss' and friend, when I was a fledgling reporter and printer's devil, almost 30 years ago. Out of the grief, the doubts and fears and passing time that are the natural components of life's processes, emerged my new Editor-in-chief, his son, Charles Arthur Elder to take over the reins and, like his father before him, filled the multiple roles of employer, friend and dedicated newspaperman.

The Chronicle has survived its tragic loss and will continue to flourish under a new, yet-to-be determined structure and under a new, yet-to-be named Editor—or acting Editor. It will flourish—under exactly what circumstances and conditions, it is still too early to say. It must be given time to re-shape company policies and goals; to make changes in organization structure to appoint administrative and editorial personnel, etc., and the work has already begun.

To those who now hold the fate of the Chronicle in their hands I pledge my support and loyalty to whatever policies they may ascribe, and I am certain that our reader's will do the same. Certainly it is obvious to me as I see each issue roll off the presses that the Chronicle's head is no longer bowed, her eyes are looking straight into the face of the future . . . and may the wind be forever at her back!

ZIP COLUMN

There still is no official effective date to be given on the postage rate increase, as I had anticipated in last week's column.

A proposed date of May 16, for a temporary rate increase, is now dependant upon the result of court action against such proposals.

Despite the uncertain effective date of a rate increase, the following additional new stamps are to be placed on sale:

The 8-cent Dwight D. Eisenhower stamps in sheet, coil, and booklet form, will be first placed on sale at Washington, D. C., on May 10, 1971.

The stamps were designed by Robert Geissmann, of New York City, based on a photograph by George James, veteran New York Times photographer, who covers the White House.

The Eisenhower stamps will be issued in four forms:

- Multi-color sheets of 100;
- Coils, of 100, 500, in reddish brown;

Booklets of regular sheet stamps selling for $1.92.

A new 60-cent Special Delivery stamp will be first placed on sale at Phoenix, Arizona, May 10, 1971.

The stamp was designed by Norman Ives of New Haven, Connecticut. This horizontal red, white and blue stamp is identical to the one it replaces, except for a reversal in color scheme and denomination.

Both of these stamps will be placed on sale at our office, May 11, 1971.

Local Talent Show Draws Large Crowd

A capacity crowd attended the Folk Festival presented by "The Sunrise Singers" of St. Joseph's Parish, on Sunday evening in St. Joseph's High School. Awards of $100, $50 and $25 in the Senior Division and $15 and $5 prizes in the Junior Division, were presented at the conclusion of the Talent Show.

In the Junior Division, all entrants were students from Mother Seton School. Miss Helena Antclim sang the popular song, "Jean". Miss Cindy Newcomer danced a ballet to "Danses Des Petits". Jeannie and Henny Diehl sang a popular Johnny Cash recording, "Daddy Sang Bass". Susan Siska sang the well-known Janis Joplin recording of "Amazing Grace". Donna Kehne and Jeannie Sanders presented a popular rendition of "House of the Rising Sun," and Frieder Sanger (German for Peace Singers), sang a medley "Gentle On My Mind" and "First of May."

Frieder Sanger, a group including Peter Gorman, Becky Queoney, Marie Broussard and Barbara Sprinkle placed first in the Junior Division with Miss Cindy Newcomer placing second.

In the Senior Division Mrs. Emma Eckenrode headed the list of talented entrants, by playing the guitar and singing, "I Can Get Along Without You Very Well." "Lilly Tomlin—Switchboard Operator," was superbly portrayed by Margaret Eiker. Sara Marshall played the guitar and sang "My Father". Dancing a ballet to An Arabian Dance, was the very talented Miss Debora Sprinkle. Mike Schirf and Lana Black sang a medley, "Going Out of My Mind" and "Can't Take My Eyes Off of You." Eddie Thomas presented a piano selection of "Polonaise In A Major," "Militaire". Windrush, a talented group from Gettysburg, sang an original number entitled "The Sad Man". Included in the group were Barry and Ken Sease, Tom Roth and Skip Waybrant. Kevin K. Walsh presented a piano medley including, "Improvisation, More, and Lady Madonna."

Winners in the Senior Division were Eddie Thomas, a sophomore from St. Joseph's High School, first place; Kevin K. Walsh, a student at Mt. St. Mary's College, second place, and third place, a tie between Miss Debora Sprinkle, presently completing her second years at Catocin High School, and Lana Black and Mike Schirf, both students at Catocin High School.

During the evening the Sunrise Singers, outfitted in their newly acquired red maxi skirts with gold fringe and white long sleeve blouses, entertained the audience with several selections. The Sunrise Singers are under the leadership of Monte Ray, a student at St. Joseph's High School, and provide the music at the 10 o'clock Masses each Sunday at St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

Robert Henke, Jr., acted as Emcee for the evening's program. Judges for the talent show included: Rev. Fr. Daniel Nusbaum, Chaplain and Asst. Professor of Modern Languages at Mt. St. Mary's College, and Instructor of Applied Music at St. Joseph College; Mr. William O'Toole, Instructor of Mathematics and Computer Science at Mt. St. Mary's College; and Mr. Joseph DePetris, Seminarian from Mt. St. Mary's Seminary.

The Sunrise Singers were most grateful for the splendid cooperation shown by those participating in the show as well as those assisting in the production of the program. They wish to thank all those who attended the performance and will be looking forward to an even better show next year.

Survey Taken By Learning Council

Do you want to take a course next Fall, right here in Emmitsburg that will develop a hobby, improve your work skills or upgrade your reading comprehension?

The Emmitsburg Lifelong Learning Council urges all citizens who are interested in adult education to fill out one of the survey forms now being circulated in the community. These forms are available at many business establishments and are also being distributed door-to-door by local school children. They give each individual an opportunity to indicate the courses which he would like to see made available in the Emmitsburg area.

The survey closes this weekend. Forms should be deposited in the boxes in local stores or mailed to Seton Center on South Seton Avenue before Saturday night.

One of the courses which will probably be offered is Adult Basic Education. It is estimated that there are, in Frederick County, at least 15,000 functional illiterates, people who are unable to read and write with any degree of efficiency. Adult Basic Education is set up to help these people who, for a variety of reasons, just didn't make it in the standard school program. It is difficult to publicize free adult education to those who need it most. They cannot read about it; they cannot fill out survey forms; they shy from any talk of school because school to them was a failure situation.

Mr. Philip Topper, Chairman of the Survey Committee for ELLC, urges concerned citizens, especially ministers, doctors, employers and county and town officials, to interest adult non-readers with whom they have contact, in the adult education program and to encourage and assist them in filling out the survey form.

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lapp, 104 E. Main St., Emmitsburg, announce the engagement of their daughter, Victoria Ann, to Mr. Paul D. Lingg, son of Mrs. Gladys Lingg, Emmitsburg R2, and the late William Lingg.

Mr. Lingg is a graduate of Emmitsburg High School, Class of 1968 and is employed at the Freeman Shoe Co., Emmitsburg.

An August wedding is being planned.

A native of Emmitsburg, she was a daughter of the late James Mullen and Mary Rosensteel Mullen. She was the widow of Dean Snedeker, and an interior decorator in Buffalo for some time.

Surviving are a brother, Francis Mullen, Pikesville, Md., and a sister, Mrs. Loretta Abraham, of Philadelphia.

Funeral services were held on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Emmitsburg, with the Rev. Fr. Harry Kuhn officiating. Interment was in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Wilson Funeral Home, Emmitsburg, was in charge of arrangements.

Seek Nickname

For Football Team

The Maryland Jockeys Football Team is looking for a winner. Head Coach Buddy Sauroff has announced a contest to find a nickname for the team which plays its game for charity.

The winner will be the Guest of Honor on the last day of the Pimlico Meeting, May 22. The Pimlico management will name a race in the winner's honor, and the Maryland Mile Association of Thoroughbred Tracks will play host at lunch for the winner and his or her guest. The jockeys riding on the Maryland Circuit may add a few surprises along the way.

All entries should be sent on post card to Buddy Sauroff, Jock-ey's Room, Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, Md. 21215. Please include your name, address and phone number.

The deadline is May 15, Pre-News Day. Employees of any Maryland Race Track and their families are ineligible. Only one entry per person will be allowed. In case of duplication, a drawing will be held.

Coach Sauroff lamented last season's one-one and one record last season, but quickly added, "The real winners are the kids at the Millersville School for the Handicapped. They receive all the proceeds from our games and this year we want to raise enough to build a swimming pool for them."

For information call Gene Whittington, Press Box, Pimlico, LI2-9400.
