

THE TEST OF THESE FOUR YEARS

IS ALL THE YEARS THAT FOLLOW

Mount Saint Mary's is committed to the idea that college work should be - must be - closely related to what the individual student expects his or her life's work to be.

Our entire academic program is oriented toward that goal.

And the college is small enough to achieve it. We have only about 1200 students, both men and women.

Mount Saint Mary's is the second oldest Catholic college in the country. Today, some of our faculty members are priests, but most are laymen. All are highly qualified teachers.

The college offers 15 areas of concentration including the liberal arts, business and accounting, and a new program in social welfare.

We also prepare students for medical, dental and law schools, and offer a program in secondary education.

As a small college, Mount Saint Mary's can't be all things to all students. What college can, really?

But, being small, we do offer what most, if not all, larger colleges and universities do not - the individual attention necessary to help every student gain both an education and the maturity to use it wisely.

We think it's both of these things, not scholarship alone, that bring success not only in business and the professions but also in personal commitments to family, community, whatever.

And we think that's the real test of a college education these days.

New Books Listed At Library

Among the new books coming into the library, some are very interesting and some give an entirely different approach to things we thought we knew about. One such book is titled "Nutrition and Your Mind," by George Watson, Ph.D. The Psychochemical Response. The evolving science which ascribes mental and emotional disorders, to the physical malfunction of the body's metabolism.

"Will There Heally Be A Morning," an autobiography by Frances Farmer. This chilling self-portrait of the once well-known motion picture actress who spent much of her adult life in a state mental institution, is one of the most forthright harrowing self analyses of schizophrenia that have ever been recorded.

"Pregnancy: The Best State of the Union," by Waldo L. Fielding, M.D. The regular visits a woman makes to her doctor's office mark the stages of pregnancy. Dr. Fielding has organized his book to coincide with these visits. In this way, each chapter covers the progress and the problems and emotions pertinent to each stage, giving a woman the information she needs to know about herself and her baby at the time she needs to know it.

"The Ghost in my Life," by Susan B. Anthony. Catherine Marshall knows the full undiluted history of the extraordinary Susan B. Anthony and her many lives. Now, in these fast-turning pages, you too can know her and be fascinated and challenged by her story. It is a story of a woman of this world, a woman who has lived life to excess. It's an utterly frank personal revelation of a magna cum laude student, yet an alcoholic even before her college graduation; of a reporter who became newspaper copy herself; of a crusader for human rights; a radio broadcaster; a skin diver; teacher; mistress of an allspice plantation on the island of Jamaica—all the same person on an intricate journey.

Veteran's Day Program At School

Students of Mother Seton School will present a Veteran's Day Program on October 23. The program will begin at 10:30 a.m. in the school auditorium. It will consist of songs, talks and slides.

Sherry Topper will be the announcer. Maureen Devlin, Patricia Marshall and Carol Phelan have arranged the music and will lead the singing. Who a veteran is, will be explained by Angela Wivell. Mary Morningstar will speak about veterans who have given their lives, and Anne Williams will talk about veterans who have returned home.

Joe Broussard and Mike Antolin are preparing a display which will be in the front hall showcase. They will also show slides of Arlington National Cemetery during one portion of the program.

The public is cordially invited to attend this program in Emmitsburg to help us say "thank you" to our American veterans.

THE WORD is SECURITY

By Ralph Rhea

There are many channels of security. If you are in a plane, it is the pilot. If you are in a car, it is the driver. Some think money is security. One way to be really secure is always to use the best of our ability and energy in productive ways. Regardless of our age, if we are using the creative potential in us, we are creating situations that bring security. One who finds this inner security finds it more durable than anything outside himself. For a free copy of "The Word" series for this month write: Unity Newspaper, Unity Village, Missouri 64063.

WASHINGTON REPORT
FROM SENATOR J. GLENN BEALL JR.

Older Americans: A New Priority

Federal programs are constantly being enacted to deal with the needs and problems of our nation, and every so often these programs must come up for renewal. Most are examined and revised somewhat in order to meet our changing priorities.

For the past six months, this review work has been a prime concern for the Senate Subcommittee on Aging, where we have been amending the Older Americans Act.

This legislation was first enacted in 1965, and as you can imagine, many new avenues have been opened since that time. In fact, few subjects have received as much recognition within our government in recent years, as was evidenced last December when President Nixon convened the White House Conference on Aging.

The conference report, along with other testimony and statistical information, has been consolidated into the package of amendments reported out to the full Senate last week.

One major purpose of the legislation is to focus more attention on the work of the Administration on Aging (AOA) by putting it among the highest levels of government.

This will be done by moving AOA into a new status within the office of the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. There it will have a greater identity and thus be able to more effectively and extensively deliver social and nutritional services to older Americans.

This structural reorganization is probably the most important and enduring part of the 1972 Amendments, but the most obvious way to gauge federal priorities is to look at the amount of money going into a program.

Just two years ago, federal grants under the Older Americans Act totaled about $15 million. Last year, it was up to almost $45 million. The legislation now before the Senate authorizes $200 million for the current fiscal year and $400 million in the years thereafter. There is an additional $20 million set aside each year for special demonstration projects, and $100 million for the nutrition program which was enacted earlier this year.

The 20 per cent increase in Social Security benefits is another related action on behalf of senior citizens. To clear up some confusion about the increase, I would like to point out that the September checks are mailed in October, so the increase will be reflected in the checks now being delivered.

There is a lot of information of this type, and a more serious nature, that older Americans are not receiving. I believe that my proposal for a national clearing house for information concerning senior citizens will bring about increased awareness of programs and services to assist the elderly. This idea is also part of the 1972 Amendments.

In all, the legislation attempts to provide our 20 million older Americans with the right to live their retirement years in security, independence and dignity. Our senior citizens worked hard to make the United States what it is today, and there is no group more capable of making good use of the assistance we can offer them.

The Toppers from Baltimore and the Frederick High-lighters captured first and second place trophies for Color Guards. Drummers (with Majorette group) trophies went to Toppers, Baltimore; Arbutus Sailorettes and Kaperettes of Baltimore.

The 6-foot Sportsman Trophy, awarded to the best overall majorette corps with color guard and drum section, was won by the Toppers of Baltimore. This trophy is awarded annually and is returned to the parade committee prior to the parade the following year. Any group winning the award three years (not necessarily consecutive) will be permitted to keep the trophy permanently. The Stardettes of Baltimore hold two claims to it, having won the award in 1969 and 1970 and the Sun Valley Green Berets hold one claim, having been awarded the trophy last year.

The Dynamics of Emmitsburg were awarded a trophy for their outstanding achievement. Since their start in April they have secured uniforms and needed equipment for majorettes, a color guard and drum corps. Spectators were most impressed with the enthusiasm shown by the newly formed group.

Civil War groups participating in the parade were presented their awards on Sunday following the skirmish in Stouters' Meadow. First place was won by the 6th Md. U. S. Volunteers of Westminster. 400 Scouts Participate In Colorfest Camporee Hosted By Local Troop 284

Boy Scouts at the Colorfest Camporee participate in outdoor Mass as part of the weekend activities.

Sunshine and light breezes along with nature's contribution of multi-colored leaves provided the setting for the 1972 Colorfest Camporee held by the Francis Scott Key District Boy Scouts of America, behind the Mt. Manor Motel and Restaurant located at U.S. 15 and Old Frederick Road. Twenty Troops were registered for the Camporee and in 4 p.m. on Friday. Troop sites included 351 scouts. Staff members and the Order of the Arrow chapter brought the roster up to 400.

Scoutmaster Robert Rosensteel of Emmitsburg's host Troop 284, was most pleased with the accomplishments during the camporee which got off to a fast moving pace with scouts checking in after varied and kept the scouts busy from reveille at 7 a.m. were on a first-come-first-served basis with plenty of open space for all troops participating.

The opening assembly for all participants was held at 7:30 p.m. This was followed by a campfire held by the Order of the Arrow Dance Team. Saturday's activities were to taps at 10 p.m. During the morning, several "Show 'N Do" programs were held by the scouts and were attended by the public. Gene Lemar, District Training Chairman, conducted the "Show 'N Do" for scouts and adults. A similar program for scouts was conducted by Jeff Langley.

Inter troop games, including tug-of-war, were held in the afternoon, along with patch trading which is traditional and popular among the scouts.

The entire district became involved in the town's activities when scouts carrying 15 American flags and flags of each troop marched with the district float made by members of Thurmont's Troop 270 in the parade. Over 250 scouts marched the 1 1/2 miles into town to line the parade route. As the float traveled the parade route, scouts joined in the line of march thru the main streets of Emmitsburg.

A highlight of Saturday's events was live coverage over WTHU radio. Mike Smith, representing the radio station, accepted an award from the National Capital Area Council. The award was a citation of appreciation to Radio Station WTHU for its contributions towards scouting. The program was aired for about 30 minutes and included coverage of the Camporee and scouting in general. Don Clymans, scout executive, made the presentation to Mr. Smith.

Saturday evening's entertainment was a movie of the 1969 National Jamboree in Idaho. For this, scouts constructed a screen made of a series of large sheets and attached it to two flag poles located on the campsite.

Mass, offered by Rev. Anthony J. Manocchio of Mt. St. Mary's College on Sunday morning, was a first at this year's camporee. It was most impressive and unique as the altar was made of large rocks and was constructed by members of Troop 284, Emmitsburg.

Following the Mass and the non-denominational church service, awards and patches were presented to those attending. Each scout received a rectangular patch of red with a gold maple leaf. Embroidered in brown was 1972

Colorfest Camporee, F.S.K., B.S.A. A blue ribbon with National Capital Area Council BSA Camporee 1972, was presented to each troop participating. Each patrol received a similar orange ribbon for participation.

The Scout Spirit Award, the highest honor at the Camporee, was won by Troop 1065. This award, a plaque, was presented to the Senior Patrol Leader, Daniel Hughes. Their Scoutmaster is Mr. Donald Gauer.

Scout Kevin McCormick, of Troop 274, was the camporee photographer, and did a splendid job of photo coverage. He was able to secure aerial photos via the helicopter which was a major attraction for Colorfest visitors and adjacent to the campsite.

Troops participating in the Camporee were Troops 274, 270, 1600, 261, 791, 1065, 286, 1070, 268, 274, 476, 796, 1069, 1998, 276, 267, 284, 278, 278, 279 and host Troop 284 of Emmitsburg.

TEEN TIMES

Mick Jagger and the famous Rolling Stones completed a 30-U.S. cities — tour with four concerts at Madison Square Garden in New York City recently. The occasion also happened to be Mick Jagger's 29th birthday; so after the last concert, a huge birthday party was given in his honor by the president of Atlantic Records. The event in which the over 30 crowd mingled with members of the younger set reportedly went smoothly. Indications are that the generation gap may even have been lessened somewhat.

On the campaign trail, all eyes are focused on the youth of America. In this, the first presidential election in which eighteen year olds can vote, it's a known fact that the youth vote could be a determining factor at the ballot boxes. So, the choice of the next President of the United States is up to us... that's quite a responsibility.

Speaking of campaigns, there's one campaign that's important to teenagers, whether they can vote or not. It's the campaign against skin blemishes, a year round event. If you want to be elected to the smiling, winning crowd, use a medicated soap like Fostex or a medicated lotion like Fostril that treats blemishes while it hides them. Both work to help your skin stay clean and healthy-looking, and give you that extra vote of confidence.

Three cheers for ALL IN THE FAMILY. In the Spring of this year, the show walked away with several major Emmy awards including Best Series, Best Actor, Best Actress, and Best Supporting Actress (whew!) Now that it's Fall, no doubt TV sets throughout the country will be tuned in for another year of Archie Bunker (who by the way was nominated as a Democratic Vice Presidential candidate) and his hilarious but significant middle class American adventures.

Diaries, a good memory, and a bit of writing talent can add up to a profitable venture these days, as exemplified by young Joyce Maynard, who has had articles published in the New York Times Magazine and Seventeen, while she awaits publication of her first book. Miss Maynard, a sophomore at Yale, writes mainly about her experiences as an adolescent in today's world. A few of the subjects she has dwelled upon are high school proms, the effects of political assassinations upon teens, virginity, and the youth's version of the American dream. Save those memories!
