GAP Dedicates Fund To Ligorano

The Group Action Program, a student service organization of Mount Saint Mary's College, has announced plans to dedicate its student emergency fund to the Mount's late Dean of Students, Frank Ligorano, according to a letter from the program's president, junior, Thomas Graham.

The program, known on campus as GAP, is a community service organization formed in 1969 to provide help to the needy of the communities surrounding Mount Saint Mary's. It began its emergency fund in 1970 to assist a Mount student, who, due to any emergency, would be unable to continue at school without immediate financial Yvonne Rodgers of Fair- describe the true beauty of help. Viking Ventures is seeking to have the zoning changed on 200 acres of their agricultural and conservation owned land near Emmitsburg. According to Sheldon Erickson, an owner of the project, the 325 room center would take only 45 to 48 acres of its 1000 acres. The company will continue to operate its pheasant hunt club and its 186 - cow dairy farm. The developers plan to leave much of the land as it is, clearing away underbrush and debris in order to make hiking trails. The convention center is expected to bring in guests from Camp David, foreign students visiting Washington worker. She will be working and tourists during the bicentennial operations. Mr. Erickson noted that the development would require 150-200 full time employees in maid, chef, and supervisory positions and that this would help the economy of the area. Mr. Erickson asked for immediate approval of the zoning requests on the grounds that problems could be workmosphere and adds, "During the project, with Viking Venmy four years at St. Joe's, tures hoping to have con-

FDA. Maintain Holdings

The Research Department of Babson's Reports is optimistic about the future of all the stocks of the leading the drug industry, feeling that firms are attractive holdings for growth-oriented investors. This does not mean that the issues will not decline somewhat during weak markets, because they undoubtedly will. Nevertheless, over a fair period of time they should continue to make good progress in spite of the current high P/E ratios at which most of them are selling.

Those investors concerned about generous income, how ever, should avoid the drug group. For the most part the yields on such stocks are very low even though the drug companies frequently make small increases in their payouts. Most of the earnings are generally plowed back into the companies so as to foster further growth.

As a journalist for 45 years, subscribe wholeheartedly to the proposition that the public has the right to know. I also subscribe to the First Amendment's grant of free speech and press. But news and information are sacred substances for communication. If they are contaminated with bias, ideological advocacy, or a self - appointed adversary role by those who disseminate 'news' and 'information', the public's right to know is trampled on and our free society is endangered

Criticism From Within Some of America's most prominent and most respected journalists have publicly charged major news media, particularly the TV network news shows, with rejecting the news handling and thus coloring the news with bias, advocacy, and the 'adversary role. These critics include Howard K. Smith, Washington anchorman for ABC-TV; Frank Shakespeare, former vice president of CBS in charge of the network's news department; James Bormann, WCCO-TV, Minneapolis; Robert Novak, co-author of the nationally - syndicated Evans-Novak column; Kevin P. Phillips, whose newspaper column s syndicated nationally; Miss Efron, and many others.

So this question and the other controversary that has

Oliver Twist held up his huose shuddered for no one in

The Soc. 'n' Buskin Dramatic Society of Mount Saint Marys' College takes the story from there in the spring muproduction, "Oliver," which opens on April 6. Song and dance routines counteron Wed., April 4, starting point the squalor and social dience is painfully aware, for 3|15|3t example, that Fagin, for all his lilting lines and nimble movements, runs a training school for young pickpockets. Nancy's song of love rises ruefully from a world of evil and violence. Lionel Bart's adaptation of the novel, "Oliver Twist," by Charles Dickens, is currently in rehearsal at Mount Saint Mary's College with a cast of 46. Mary Anne Lydon, a newto Sock 'n' Buskin, plays the title role. Fagin is acted by veteran Michael Mannone with Phil Shangraw as Dodger, Leonard Knight as Sikes, Martina Sabo as Nancy, Peggy Golibart as Bet, Paul Grunebach as Mr. Bum ble, the workhouse master, and Corinne Lowe as Widow Corney. The role of Br. Brownlow, the well-to-do grandfather with whom Oliver is eventually reunited, is played by

Bernard McCarthy. Directing the play is Paul O'Connell, instructor in Fine Arts at the Mount, while mu-
