

Most Anything At A Glance - By Abigail -

This coming week Halloween will be celebrated by the town's little ones with a parade and a tour of residences with the familiar challenge of "trick or treat?" If there are as many goblins, ghouls and black cats as last year, I'll not venture outside. It's enough to scare an old woman to death. I believe Halloween has its origins in China some 5,000 years back when peasants attempted to chase off evil spirits with masks and noise. Whoever thought that all these years later we would be able to do the same thing with a battery of chocolate bars?

In light of the President's speech last Tuesday night and the current economic woes call me to comment on more serious matters.

There is in this country, a growing mood of despair and hopelessness which is both ill founded and self defeating. Ill founded because there is little sound reason behind the gloomy forecasts of the many doomstayers we see and hear on the news each evening. Daily reports of the crumbling stock market and specific industries which have fallen victim to these harsh economic times do not properly illustrate the real magnitude and cause of these problems.

This exploding inflation, this economic recession and these increasing outbreaks of shortages are all a result of one simple economic fact. There is suddenly too great a demand for too many goods. Normally this demand would spell economic growth and it will in the future. However, its immediate effect is the creation of shortages, real and artificial, which forces prices up to a point where suddenly only the highest leveled income members of our society are able to afford them.

Now most political leaders including our own President, are currently pleading with Americans to use less than their entire lifestyle and up-bringing has taught them to use. For most Americans, this up-bringing and billions of dollars of advertising, promised them the good life, after many years of hard work and self induced sacrifice and discipline on their own part. Now to tell them that they will be denied this because they have used too much is more than they should tolerate. The average American is not the glutton of energy, food or any other commodity that he has been purported to be by the nation's conservationists, energy zar or presidential. He has known his whole life what it means to squeeze the last bit from the toothpaste tube, the gallon of gas and the grocery bag.

For the first time in history, the common middle class of a nation is enjoying a lifestyle which was reserved for the upper class only in the past. The solution to our shortages should not be and is not found in depriving the common man of that accomplishment. The real cause of this dilemma of too great a demand can be found in population growth. Within the nation and internationally there is an increasing number of people pursuing the same amount of goods. This ridiculously apparent fact and its enormous impact on our economy is totally ignored in political requests and rhetoric. In the meanwhile, government continues to encourage marriage and offspring with tax laws and legal ceremony. But the cold reality of the world of the 1970's will demand an answer to this question of population control. Will there be increasing shortages for many or enough for us all?

JENKINS MOTORS, INC.

Jerry Lowman - Sales Manager

In this day and age when every car maker has such a wide selection of models to choose from, it is really difficult for you to decide where to go for a new car. All the companies advertise that their cars are the best, but who is to say which car really is. Obviously all the cars on the market today must have their good points or they wouldn't have survived the ups and downs of the business. We, therefore, can conclude that the real difference in buying a car is the dealer you buy it from.

The ideal dealer to buy a car from offers a fair price on the new unit, as well as an honest dollar for the car you trade in. However, the most important factor is the service that you receive on your new car year after year.

The writers of the 1974 Review would like to point out a dealer that considers the most important part of selling a car the quality service he can offer you after the sale. We are talking about Jenkins Motors, Inc. at East and 9th Street in Frederick, phone 662-0111, dealers for the famous Oldsmobile and Datsun automobiles. See them today for a new or quality used car, and you'll see why we say "Customer Consideration" is their byword.

The compilers of this 1974 Review feel a sense of satisfaction in recommending this firm in Thurmont for insurance of all kinds.

Congressman Goodloe Byron
Maryland—Sixth District

The following questions were typical of the kind asked of me in recent weeks. Letters should be sent to me c/o U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515. Please explain the federal health planning program recently approved by the House Commerce Committee?

Several weeks ago the committee voted to set in place a new national network of local health agencies charged with preventing unnecessary hospital construction and monitoring the distribution of federal health funds. Changes in the nation's health planning systems are considered essential before enactment of any national health insurance legislation.

Where can I obtain a copy of the latest migratory game bird regulations covering western Maryland?

The "1974 Point System

Guide for Maryland Duck Hunters" is available from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, Wildlife Administration, Tawes State Office Building, Annapolis 21401.

What kind of enforcement power would be established under the proposed campaign finance reform bill?

Enforcement power would be vested in an eight-member bipartisan, fulltime supervisory board controlled by six voting public members. Two of the public members would be appointed by the House Speaker, two by the president of the Senate and two by the President, all of whom would be confirmed by Congress. The House clerk and the secretary of the Senate would be ex-officio members. The board would have civil enforcement powers and would be able to seek court injunctions. Criminal cases would be referred to the Justice Department for prosecution.

Our class is currently studying insurance and I wondered if you had any booklets on buying insurance?

To help young consumers learn more about the three major types of insurance that most people buy, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has printed a leaflet entitled "Insurance for your Health, Car and Life". Copies are available free from Consumer Information, Pueblo, Col. 81009.

Has the budget for rural development programs been cut?

Appropriations for the Farmers Home Administration (FHA) and for the FHA water and sewer grant program have not been reduced by Congress.

A neighbor told me you were trying to help local dairymen. How about eliminating dairy imports as a starter?

As you probably know, I have joined with several other congressmen in requesting a special White House meeting to discuss the economic problem facing America's dairymen. I, too, am concerned over the increasing dependence on dairy product imports and feel the dairy farmer must be given some stability in the market place.

PERSPECTIVES IN LEARNING

By Hazel Brown, President
Harry Lundeberg School
Books As Therapy!

In these times of anxiety and trouble there is still the comfort and relaxation provided by good books. People have found that books can be a great help with maintaining emotional stability.

Some parents have found that children tend to use literature and reading as a means of therapy and adjustment. These parents help their children to find books which might be helpful in developing self-realization and understanding.

Reading good books can provide children with broad experiences and therefore broaden their understanding about many things. Stories do much more than tell a tale. Through reading individuals can get greater insight into themselves or others around them. It is also possible to use books for developing a greater appreciation for people, beliefs and emotions.

It is impossible to predict what reading a certain book will do for any given individual, but it is evident that books do effect emotions. Some books have a tremendous emotional impact on the reader.

"Bibliotherapy" or "Therapy through books" has been used but the results are very unpredictable. It is possible to recall a book which left you very emotionally involved but a friend may not have recognized the significance of the meaning. The book appeals to each person a little differently.

A book can provide many aids to adjustment. It can reflect or mirror situations so that people can see their own circumstances more clearly. It can possibly ease the pain of feeling unique or alone in the world. It may help to prepare a person for a future situation by having the characters in the book successfully survive the experience.

Reading about the problems that others must face may show new solutions to very frustrating and difficult problems. It can make people more aware that their problems and struggles have been suffered and conquered by others.

Literature has always reflected the many ways that individuals exhibit feelings of love, hate, power, frustrations, aggression, guilt, jealousy and fear. The great works of Shakespeare are famous for revealing the emotions of individuals. By reading about others, the individuals can put their own problems into perspective.

"A Cup of Courage" by Lew- iton can help a teenager cope with an alcoholic father. "In A Mirror," by Mary Stolz, tells of an overweight girl and how she learns to overcome her problem. "Boy Alone", by Ottley, can be a great comfort to the misunderstood youth.

These books are just a few of the many books which can help youngsters to adjust to the situations of life which cause them concern.

LOOKING AHEAD

Constitution Hall Revisited
Amid all the problems facing America, inflation, scandal, loss of confidence in public officials, fear of the future and concern for the basic institutions of our national life, we are still the most blessed people in the human race. The source of those blessings needs to be remembered, restudied and re-emphasized if they are to continue. We need to generate anew the eagerness, the enthusiasm, and the determination of our forefathers who brought our nation into being almost two centuries ago.

Ours is a nation with a spiritual foundation. Ours is a system of government resting on the premise of the inherent dignity of man as a created being. Our basic documents herald the great truth of "inalienable rights" granted by the Creator, and we need to ever keep our eyes on the goal of fulfilling the dream of our founding fathers of equal justice and opportunity for all.

It is apparent that for a number of years, our national government, followed by State and local governments, has been disregarding the basic blueprint of our freedom and legislating by edict of political expedient rather than by Constitutional restriction. We need to return to the Constitution with its checks and balances, with its separation of powers and responsibilities. I suggest that all Americans will benefit by re-reading Carl Van Doren's books, The Great Rehearsal, which is the story of the making and ratifying of our Constitution. Today, come with me on a tour of Constitution Hall and a review of our birth as a nation.

There in that room in Philadelphia, hammer descended on anvil until the iron of statehood was shaped into the steel pattern of a brand new nation. There, little ones fought with bigness, and the narrow view denounced the views of breadth. There men of soul-greatness, and those of small stature, struggled mightily to come to grips with a solid fact of history. As we look back at that Convention in Philadelphia, we wonder if there has ever been a more important gathering of great men dedicated to a great task and meeting magnificently the great responsibilities of their mission. Seldom have so few done so much for so many.

But, it almost failed. It was not until men rose above state and local considerations, to think above the pull of self-interest, that the seeds of true liberty were free to take root and sprout. Not until the grand idea defeated a thousand trivial ones did men begin to feel the thrill of calling themselves by a new name... Americans. All finally saw what some had seen from the beginning, that the nation had to be a Union of States, not a mere confederation or association.

Governor Randolph of Virginia put it bluntly when he said: "A government is no government at all until it can accomplish five things; defend itself against foreign aggression, prevent dissension among the states and sedition from within them, provide for the general welfare, protect itself against encroachment by the member states, and be superior to all local governments."

In the debates, they argued, shouted, shook their fists, threatened and yet, in the end, they produced the freest, and most creative government in the history of man, and one which finally would offer equality of justice and opportunity to all races and all nationalities.

Those men formulated ideas that were simple and clear; a federal government composed of three parts, the executive, the judicial and the legislative; two houses, one elected by popular vote, and a Senate elected by state legislatures representing at that time, the educated, cultured and knowledgeable interests of the states; a court system that would recognize the boundary lines between local responsibilities and federal jurisdiction. Each citizen was the repository of fundamental sovereignty. Each citizen relinquished some of his sovereignty to the state, the state relinquished some of its sovereignty to the federal government, and in turn, the federal government was to honor the sovereignty remaining with the states. All powers not specifically delegated to the federal authority were retained to the states and to the people.

As we approach our bicentennial we should ask ourselves the question: Have times changed so much from 1789 that we are now willing to settle for less? Think just how much those boundaries of freedom set by that convention have been expanded. Then, there was slavery... and now the last vestiges of that cancer are fading away. Even then, there was George Mason, the unsung and still unrecognized architect who participated in framing our Constitution, and who warned that if America began her national life with the cancer of slavery encompassed within her body politic, it would take two hundred years to heal from its wounds. Few Americans know who George Mason was, let alone that after his plea for the outlawing of slavery was rejected, he left that convention, returning to Gunston Hall, his home in Virginia close by Mt. Vernon, retired from political life, refusing to serve in any capacity thereafter and died about five years later. It is said by some that he died of a heart sorrowing for the future of his country.

FREDERICK COUNTY BACKGROUNDS

BY SAMUEL CARRICK
More Families of Old Tom's Creek

"O suns and skies and clouds of June, And flowers of June together, Ye cannot rival for one hour October's bright blue weather."

"When on the ground red apples lie In piles like jewels shining, And redder still on old stone walls Are leaves of woodbine twining."

—Helen Hunt Jackson
Last week a few notes regarding the Lynn (Linn-Lind) family of Pennsylvania and Maryland, members of the old Tom's Creek Church and later, when in 1797 the church was moved to Emmitsburg, of that congregation also.

It is reasonable to assume that the pioneer members of the Lynn family came into Maryland with the Monocacy settlers for it is known that they originally settled in the Province of William Penn. However, according to the late Edith (Sheads) Ditchburn, a recognized authority on the Lynn genealogy, some members of the family were members of the Presbyterian church—probably of the Upper Marsh Creek (now Gettysburg) Presbyterian church. As a matter of fact one member of the clan became a Presbyterian minister. Dr. Henry Egle, Pennsylvania's great historian and genealogist, has this to say of the Rev. Lind (Lynn-Linn):

"The Rev. Matthew Linn was born at Cairn Castle, County Antrim, Ireland, in 1732. He was educated at the University of Glasgow and was ordained by the Reformed (Covenant) Presbytery of Scotland. For thirteen years he was pastor of the Reformed (Presbyterian) church of Aghadowney, County Londonderry, Ireland. In 1773, at the earnest desire of William Brown, of Paxtang, who went to Ireland for the purpose, he, in company with the Rev. Alexander Dobbin, came to America, arriving at New Castle, Delaware, in December of that year. In the spring of 1774 he became the first and only pastor of the Covenant Church at Paxtang (now in Dauphin County, Pennsylvania), also officiating at Stoney Ridge, now in Cumberland County, Pennsylvania."

"When the Seceder and Covenantor churches united in 1782 and formed the Associate Reformed church, the Rev. Lynn and his two churches went into that union. In 1783, he resigned at Paxtang and took charge of the Associate Reformed congregations of Greencastle, Chambersburg, Mercersburg, and Great Cove. Here he died April 21, 1780, and was buried in the old churchyard at Brown's Mills, six miles south of Chambersburg, near which he lived. "The Rev. Mr. Linn married Jennie Fulton, of Paxtang, who was born in 1746 and died April 1, 1819. She, too, is interred at Brown's Mills. Their son, John Linn, subsequently succeeded his father in the ministry. He died at Hagerstown, Maryland in 1834."

According to a fairly reliable tradition the Rev. Matthew Lind was of the same family as the earlier Lynns of Pennsylvania and Maryland. In the Proprietary "manor of the Masque" (in what is now Adams County, Pennsylvania), there is a hill known as "Adam Lynn's Hill." Here it is thought that the Lynns first settled and from this site "spread out in all directions." They came early into Maryland, perhaps Johann churchyard at Brown's Mills, six miles south of Chambersburg, near which he lived. "The Rev. Mr. Linn married Jennie Fulton, of Paxtang, who was born in 1746 and died April 1, 1819. She, too, is interred at Brown's Mills. Their son, John Linn, subsequently succeeded his father in the ministry. He died at Hagerstown, Maryland in 1834."

Melchoir Lynn was the second or third generation in Lord Baltimore's Province. Now as to the early Lynn graves in Frederick County—and this question poses more or less of a mystery. Of course some could be interred in the old churchyard at the Monocacy Settlement. Others, of a later generation, were probably buried in the old Lutheran and Reformed churchyard at Tom's Creek. Since only one-third of the original burial plot remains at the present time — more graves have been lost than remain within the enclosure. Some are interred in Elias churchyard and the majority of these graves are marked. Others, of a still later period, are to be found in the Mountain View Cemetery.

It is interesting to note that the Lynns of Maryland intermarried with the Harpers of that branch of the family who founded the historic town of Harper's Ferry, now in West Virginia. This concludes, for a time, at least, the data pertaining to the Lynn-Lind-Linn family. The Gaugh-Barton family

In the records of Saint James Lutheran church, of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, the following marriage record is to be found— 1. Married, January 11, 1846 by the Rev. Benjamin Keller, Isaac D. Barton to Miss Sophia Gaugh, both of Frederick County, Maryland. Interred in the southwest corner of the old Tom's Creek Lutheran and Reformed church yard are the following members of the Gaugh - Barton families— 1. In memory of Carrie Gaugh, daughter of W. and C.

Gaugh, died March 31, 1887, aged 10 days. 2. In memory of George Gaugh, died November 16, 1854, aged 78 years, 10 months and 2 days. 3. In memory of Elizabeth Gaugh, wife of George Gaugh died October 18, 1858, aged 78 years 6 months and 9 days. 4. In memory of Pervisal Gaugh, died January 11, 1877, aged 56 years, 6 months, and 17 days. 5. In memory of Harriet Gaugh, wife of Pervisal Gaugh, born April 13, 1822, died May 31, 1896. The notes regarding the Gaugh-Barton families will be continued in this series next week.

The Newest You
BY ANN D. ALLEN
One of the questions I'm most often asked is this one: How do I get my children to drink more milk?

That's easy to answer. Just tell me what your child's favorite flavor is. Combine with milk and/or ice cream and it's easy as sippin' through a straw!

Is it peanut butter? Mix 1/2 cup of peanut butter with 1 pint of softened vanilla ice cream, then add 2 cups of milk and 1/2 teaspoon of vanilla extract, and you'll get 4 to 5 cups that will serve two or three children, nicely, and they'll thank you sweetly.

Is it chocolate and peanut butter? That's easy, too. Just substitute 3/4 cup of chocolate syrup for the vanilla and beat all together. You'll then have a chocolate peanut butter shake.

Oh, peppermint is your child's favorite? Whip a pint of peppermint stick ice cream with 1 quart of milk, then top with scoops of peppermint ice cream. If you like, dress it up with crushed peppermint stick candy or give them a stirrer of a peppermint candy cane. They'll go for it.

A rainbow of milk drinks? Use a pint of sherbet for each quart of milk and stir together. You can select from orange, lemon, lime, pineapple or raspberry sherbets if the youngster wants variety.

Lou Scharon

Candidate For
HOUSE OF DELEGATES
District 4B

Any candidate who will insult the intelligence of the voter by campaigning on reducing taxes does not deserve to win an election. In these days of inflation, growth and demands on government, it is sheer folly to expect taxes to be lowered or eliminated. It is true that our county tax rate has been lowered the past two years but this is not to say that your final tax bill was less than the previous year. The only thing that I, as a candidate for the Maryland House of Delegates, can and will promise is that I will be most critical and outspoken on budgets that are frivolous and also on waste. Both of these factors will tend to reduce the rate of increase. There is one tax, however, that I will strongly oppose increasing and that is the Retail Sales Tax. It is my opinion that this is the most inequitable of all taxes, simply because it is a greater burden on a low-income citizen to pay 4% than it is a person in a higher income bracket. If elected to the House of Delegates, I would inject as much as possible good business philosophy into state government as I have successfully done in my own business. I can assure you curtailing waste is a good business practice. Your vote for me on November 5th will not be wasted.
