So, now I see some folks agree with my way of thinking. Namely, that Emmitsburg's "holding all the cards" with regard to the development of tourism in this area. Unlike so many towns—particularly small ones—we have the opportunity to direct our growth; to promote and stimulate what we think is good and beneficial, and to discourage the opposite. I believe our town will grow very rapidly in the next couple years. As I've said all along, the tourists will come, and what happens as a result of this simple fact is up to us. Yes, Emmitsburg's holding all the cards, and let's only hope the town commissioners are doing the dealing.

Quite a few good ideas were aired at the last town council meeting, one of which was to encourage local property owners to upgrade—or facelift—their buildings.

I know times are tough right now, but that doesn't have to be an excuse for a little cleaning and painting (or a lot, as the case may be), perhaps setting out some nice window boxes, or repairing the dilapidated shutters. Such improvements would do wonders for the town . . . and maybe we can generate some response from the people who own the buildings on the square.

There's talk going on about getting Emmitsburg labelled a "Historic District." If that happens, then our property assessments can't go up for a period of five years! How's that for good news? That means we can improve our homes without paying double for it later when we're reassessed. Sounds like a good idea to me, but to be on the safe side, I'm going to do some checking up.

I hear the sisters at Seton Center are going to be film stars soon, but before I'm accused of yellow journalism, let me clarify the story. Seton Center—the sisters who run it and the children who attend—will be the subject of a Channel 67 television show. The camera crew will be filming at the center in February, and as soon as I find out the date the program will be aired, I'll forward the information.

By the way, Seton Center has again been praised as Maryland's BEST day-care center. That's just one more thing Emmitsburg has to be proud of.

A special note to Mrs. Hamm: We've met in the past, only I've never been introduced to you as Abigail.

Cub Scouts Hold Pack Meeting

Cub Scout Pack 1060 met on Tuesday, January 28 at the VFW Annex in Emmitsburg. The meeting was conducted by Cubmaster Rob Ruzicka. Present for the meeting were nine Cub Scouts from Den I, seven from Den II and five Webelos.

Presents from the December pack meeting were put to use as races got under way in the annual Pinewood Derby. Father and son teams competed, with Cub Scouts George Kramer and Joe Reckley placing first and second respectively. George will wear the Pinewood medal for one year. Both George and Joe will race their cars on April 19 in the Super Pinewood Derby in Frederick.

A Mass for all Scouts will be held on Sunday, February 9 at St. Joseph's Church, at 10 a.m. At this time the Parvuli Dei medal will be presented to Bobby Rosensteel and Mike Dillon. This medal is given as recognition from the Catholic Church to Cub Scouts and Webelos Scouts for advancement in religious knowledge and spiritual formation. It helps scouts to become more aware of God's presence in their daily lives.

State Trooper Receives Award

Trooper First Class John Winston Reburn, who is assigned to the Frederick Barrack, has received the highly-coveted distinguished service award from the Maryland Law Enforcement Officers, Inc. Trooper Reburn, who is a 9½ year veteran of the State Police, was presented the award at ceremonies last week in Baltimore.

In January, 1974, Trooper Reburn was assigned to investigate the occurrence of a large number of burglaries and enterings of homes and commercial establishments in Frederick County. With very little information and evidence available upon which to initiate his investigation, Trooper Reburn by the application of unusual initiative and skillful investigative techniques was able to successfully close this investigation with the apprehension of four criminals responsible for fifty-seven house burglaries and commercial establishments break-ins in five Maryland counties and the State of Pennsylvania. Stolen property and merchandise in excess of $25,000 were recovered.

Trooper Reburn is married to the former Thelma Faye Brauner and they have two children, Gary, age 12, and John, age 11. Trooper Reburn is also very active in his community as President of the Ruritan Club, Lewistown; President of the Lewistown Park and Community Association; Vice President of the Frederick County Jr. Baseball League; Past President of the Lewistown PTA; Charter member and helped form the charter of the Lewistown Volunteer Fire Department. He was also nominated for Outstanding Young Marylander, sponsored by the Jaycees of Frederick County.

Trooper Reburn was selected to receive this award from among many outstanding police officers in the Western Maryland region.

Turmont Store Gets New Look After Recent Burglary

Glenn Rickard, Jr., owner of Turmont Radio & TV, has given his store a new look . . . a steel mesh reinforcement over the front door glass. The "new look" is a result of the burglary that took place Tuesday night, Jan. 28, when a citizen's band radio, valued at $169, was stolen from the store.

According to Mr. Rickard, the thief (or thieves) broke into the store after 7:00 p.m. Tuesday. It was apparent the thief entered through the bathroom window, which was found broken by a beer bottle.

Mr. Rickard noted that he "was aware someone was trying to get into the store" Tuesday afternoon, for he discovered marks, made by a glass cutter, on the front door

Note Burning At Incarnation Church

The $4,000 Mortgage Note, which was received January of 1969 to complete the construction of the Fellowship Hall of Incarnation United Church of Christ, was burned at the Annual Congregational Meeting of the church on Sunday evening about 9 o'clock. In the picture is Mr. Eric E. Glass, who burned the note shortly after a check for $1,000 (completing the payment of the loan) was presented by him to Mrs. Anna Margaret Martin from whom the $4,000 loan was borrowed. Rev. John C. Chatlos, pastor of the congregation, is also in the picture. The wooden cross on the table in the background of the note-burning and the brass candlestick used for the ceremony, were items of furniture that were salvaged from the burning church when it was destroyed by fire on February 26, 1950. Mr. D. Fred Wolfe, who is presently treasurer of the Sunday School, managed to salvage the wooden cross and the two brass candlesticks from the altar of the blazing building.

There were about forty people attending the Annual Congregational Meeting which began with a Covered Dish Supper served by several ladies of the Women's Guild. Following the meal, a sound film-strip was produced by the Stewardship Council of the United Church of Christ. Annual reports were presented by: John R. Martin, who is the recording secretary of the church and also served as superintendent of the Sunday School in 1974; and Mrs. Anna Margaret Martin, who is the president of the Women's Guild. A unanimous affirmative vote was received during the meeting to have the front of the church building restored to its original state by sandblasting and repointing the bricks of the 106 year-old structure. The brick wall of the original building erected in 1868 remained unharmed by the fire of 1950 which completely destroyed the inside and the roof of the building. The congregation is looking forward to the restoration of the brick building sometime during the summer of this year in preparation for the Bi-Centennial Celebration of our nation in 1976.

Construction of the Fellowship Hall at Incarnation Church was begun July 20, 1968 when the pre-fabricated building, measuring 28x54', was delivered by truck from Chambersburg, Pa. The cornerstone of the new building was unveiled on August 4, 1968 at a special service in celebration of the Centennial Anniversary of the original brick building and the Bicentennial Anniversary of the organization of the German Reformed Congregation of Emmitsburg, Maryland. The Fellowship Hall, which was completed for the most part by the free labor of the men of the congregation at a total cost of about $11,200, was dedicated December 7, 1969. The members of the Building Committee were: Eric E. Glass, Chairman and Building Supervisor; Donald E. Crouse, Mrs. George W. Giggell, Charles H. Mort, and John C. Chatlos, pastor and ex-officio.

Letter To Editor

Editor, Emmitsburg Chronicle: The time has arrived for all of us, as citizens, to focus our interests on what is transpiring in Annapolis during the Legislative Session. Recently a bill was introduced by Delegate Krysiak from the 46th Legislative District of Baltimore City, which in essence, if passed, would permit individuals to register to vote by mail.

The time has long passed when voting was only a right and privilege. Today, it is not only a right, but a responsibility because apathy and indifference on the part of our masses of people is not conducive to good government. We, the voters, must change what we think is in need of change.

As our suburbs spiral and spread out, it becomes increasingly more difficult for people to go to one central location in order to register to vote. In this day of convenience, people should not have to travel long distances to the County Seat in order to exercise their responsibility.

Therefore, it is my recommendation that the people of Carroll and Frederick Counties take the time to contact their legislators and recommend that a bill permitting registering to vote by mail be passed in this session of the legislature.

Sincerely,
Arthur N. Caple

Town Leaders Air Views On Tourism; Outlook Optimistic

"Emmitsburg is holding all the cards," said Mrs. Connie Stapleton, a free lance feature writer, who summed up the general feelings of town council members and local property owners at Monday's town meeting, where the main subject was tourism. Discussion focused on Emmitsburg as the center of tourism due to the upcoming canonization of Mother Elizabeth Ann Seton in September.

Frederick attorney David Weinberg and Frederick contractor Richard Kline, owners of the former Silo Hill property at the east end of town, which totals some 58 acres, told commissioners they wanted to see if the town felt favorably towards the potential influx of tourists.

Weinberg mentioned that some towns "like to build a wall around themselves" to prevent growth and development of tourism. This feeling apparently does not pervade in Emmitsburg, however.

Weinberg said that he and his partner were very interested in the effects the canonization will have on the area. He commented, "Our feeling is that money will be available for a very large scale tourist center." He added, "We have an attractive location for at least one particular outfit."

As a result of the discussion, the need became apparent for a "nice motel and restaurant" in Emmitsburg. Town commissioners agreed that no such facilities were available, requiring tourists to travel away from Emmitsburg in search of food and lodging.

Kline said there are "some pretty hefty figures" pointing towards future endeavors in the area, and he cited the tremendous increases in tourism to other Catholic shrines. He said, "Our future can be compared to what's happening elsewhere."

Said Kline, "If one looks at the number of people attending other shrines, you come up with figures showing more activity than anyone has given thought to."

Mrs. Stapleton indicated that the percentage of attendance at the Provincial House and other Catholic attractions has "doubled in one nine month period" and has tripled since last September.

Her figures show that there were at least 18,000 visitors in that nine month period.

Although everyone at the meeting seemed to agree that tourism should neither be stopped nor controlled, it was understood that a "carnival" atmosphere would not be acceptable. Mr. Weinberg likened one shrine in North America to "The midway at the Frederick County Fair." To prevent this from happening, the town fathers understand they must get ahead of the expected influx, and must plan carefully for the development of the town.

Sister Rose Marie and Sister Grace, also present at the meeting, urged the commissioners to "stimulate some facelifting" for local properties in order to make Emmitsburg more presentable to the tourist. Various commissioners indicated that a solution to that problem could not be found . . . at least not in the past. Said Commissioner J. Norman Flax, "If Columbus came back through here, they (some property owners) would not fix things up."

The council was particularly critical of the condition of the old hotel on the square, as well as the condition of the sidewalks on South Seton Ave.

Mrs. Stapleton commented on encouraging homeowners to do some "facelifting" of their properties. According to her, it may be possible to have Emmitsburg termed an historical district. This would have several advantages to local homeowners as well as to town planners.

She pointed out that terming the town an "Historical District" would enable homeowners to make improvements on their properties without being penalized (for five years) by increased property assessments.

If Emmitsburg were an historical district, she continued, town councilmen could better control development and local construction.

Because any developers or promoters of a tourism center will want to know the plans of the Sisters of Charity for the use of the sizable holdings, including the large facilities of the now defunct St. Joseph College, Burgess Richard M. Sprankle appointed a three-member "fact-finding committee" to approach the sisters and inquire about their plans for the future.

The committee will be chaired by Joseph S. Welty, a town attorney, and joined by Commissioner Eugene Myers and Planning Commission Chairman, Ernest Shriver.

Said Sprankle, "We must find out what the sisters plan to do with their property before we can go to the State for help." He added that perhaps the town should consider doing something, such as building a motel.

In other action, the town council:

—Noted that there has been no reply to their request of a month ago to Gov. Marvin Mandel and Judge Sweeney regarding their help in relocating a magistrate in Emmitsburg. A follow-up letter will be sent.

—It was decided with Charles Wetzel, operator of the local trash collection business, that the town will take over the billing for local customers, having the charges appear on the local tax notices. Details of this decision are, being worked out in a special meeting with Wetzel on Feb. 17 to discuss the charges and contract terms for such an agreement. Wetzel and town commissioners agree that collection charges may be less per residence under the new proposed system.

—Heard Sister Rose Marie and Sister Grace say that two county commissioners, Lawrence Dorsey and Paul Crum, have agreed to meet at the Seton Center on Feb. 13 at 3:00 p.m. to discuss the financial situation—described as "very bad"—at Seton Center. The Center is partially funded by county social services and the management hopes for more money from the county. Seton Center has been repeatedly described as "The best day-care center in the state of Maryland," and television Channel 67 will come for an all-day filming in February.

—Heard Commissioner Flax say he planned to meet with federal agents next Monday with the water expansion plans for the town to see if they might be helpful in generating federal aid for any improvement projects.

The commissioners also agreed not to award any cost-of-living wage increases for town employees until the next budget session, and to contact state transportation department about an upcoming resurfacing of town streets.

Also discussed at the meeting was the procedures on how to pay the pool contractor, and how to check his progress and keep accurate records on billing.

Churchill: Man Of The Century

His stirring oratory and stubborn refusal to make peace until Adolf Hitler was crushed rallied England to "its finest hour" during World War II. Later, he visited the United States and at Fulton, Missouri he made an eloquent speech about the cold war in which he originated the term "iron curtain." He was only the second foreigner to have been awarded honorary U.S. citizenship (Lafayette was the first).

This towering individual who helped to shape the 20th century is, of course, the late Winston Churchill. In a fitting tribute to the magnitude of Churchill's achievements, an unprecedented number of outstanding original designs on commemorative stamps issued for this memorial have been selected for their beauty and graphic depiction of the life of Sir Winston by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II on the centennial of his birthday. Commemorative Heritage Limited has arranged to bring together a collection of First Day Covers bearing the Churchill Centenary issues in this most historic heritage collection of eighteen countries producing them including Britain and the British Commonwealth. The full set of stamps, all postmarked First Day of Issue, are printed on 20 specially designed envelopes in five colors. These stamps are works of art, have a good investment potential, and are an unforgettable monument to history.

The Churchill Centenary Collection will be housed in a series of numbered beautiful cases created exclusively for perfect protection and display and accompanied by an Historical Log, describing the significance of each piece in the collection.

The collection makes an unforgettable gift — to a friend, relative, or to yourself. Readers may order the Churchill Centenary Collection, encased in an embossed leatherette chest, by sending a check or money order for $50 to Commemorative Heritage Ltd., 128 Pond Road, Stamford, CT 06902.

With this commemorative collection, a fine investment, gift or historical memento to be treasured for a lifetime, Winston Churchill has gained yet another stamp of immortality.

Condition Your Air — Winter And Summer

Air conditioning in the winter?

Yes—but not in the usual sense. Just as you remove moisture from the air in the summer with air conditioning to avoid the discomforts of muggy days, you also can add moisture in the winter to avoid the discomforts of too-low humidity.

Among the most common problems caused by low humidity are static electricity shocks, said Jane Butel Silver, manager of General Electric's Consumers Institute. "But bone-dry winter air can cause other, more costly problems, too."

"For instance, expensive or antique furniture can come unglued in a very dry environment, necessitating costly repairs. Parched air may also dry out nose, throat and sinus tissues, which can contribute to personal discomfort for you and your children," she added.

You can avoid being zapped all winter by unexpected static electricity shocks as well as the other discomforts of low humidity by the easy and relatively inexpensive addition of a power humidifier to a forced-air furnace.

Proper humidity may result in reduced heating bills, too,

Mrs. Silver observes, because moisture in the air makes you tend to feel warmer at lower temperatures.

Another device which works with your furnace and can help improve comfort year-round is the electronic air cleaner.

"A single cubic foot of air in your home may contain millions of particles of dust, dirt, ash, pollen, and mold spores, which a standard furnace filter cannot remove from the air," she explained.

Electronic air cleaners generally are designed to trap nearly all particles down to as small as 1 micron in size and 50% of those particles down to one-hundredth of a micron.

By comparison, human hair averages about 50 microns in diameter. Pollen ranges from 10 to 100 microns in size and most mold spores from 10 to 30 microns. Electronic air cleaners are even effective in helping eliminate tiny pollutants such as cigarette, cigar, or pipe smoke particles, most of which are from .01 to 1 micron in size.

Winter and summer, clean, conditioned air can help make your home a more comfortable place to live.

FUEL SAVING TIPS

- Greater efficiency can sometimes be effected by rebuilding the fire box to your fireplace.
- Some boilers and furnaces will provide more heat from less fuel with the installation of baffles.
- Oil filters should be changed annually for cleaner, better burning fuel.
- Radiators should be checked for proper size and correct placement in your home.
- Avoid excessive heat "here" and too little "there" by having your radiators or heating ducts balanced.

NEWS Of Education

NEW TEACHING METHOD IS NOVEL AND PROMISING

A new approach to education, which is encouraging many kids to learn faster than the national norm, was created, perhaps not surprisingly, because of television's influence on today's children.

Youngsters, it has been found, can more easily relate in the learning process when multi-media techniques are used. This is being borne out by the experience of school districts across the country which are discovering that the key to reading and math is the systems approach.

These school districts are realizing that educational materials are not enough. They are looking for companies that are totally involved in the educational process, that can provide pre-service and in-service training to acquaint teachers with the programs as well as specially trained consultants to develop community involvement programs.

One of the most effective companies that these school districts are turning to is Hoffman Information Systems, a division of Hoffman Electronics Corporation, of El Monte, Calif.

"American education is moving toward a systems approach to instruction," says Roger Sullivan, general manager of Hoffman Information Systems. "Educators are taking a very close look at the end goals they want to achieve in a given subject area and are looking at the individual learning steps necessary to teach a student to read."

"Teachers are now testing students to determine if the step-by-step sequences are being understood and grasped," Sullivan explains. "When all these steps are put together in a logical way, the result is the systems approach."

In the Hoffman system the basic materials, which include viewers, filmstrips and records, achievement units, workbooks, headphones and read-to-learn books, are designed for individualized instruction. The teacher, therefore, is able to work with the students on a one-to-one basis.

The Hoffman programs are currently being implemented in hundreds of school districts across the country, and the achievement results have been striking. In Dallas, for example, in 17 elementary schools involving 5,000 youngsters in grades one through three, after three months the students showed an average gain of six months, which is twice the national norm.

Educators have been enthusiastic, and kids, who are allowed to progress at their own pace, like it too. As Hermise Roberts, principal of a Chicago elementary school, points out, "The children are especially enthusiastic because the Hoffman program provides them with instant feedback, and gives them a continuous sense of personal achievement."

BUSINESS AND THE STOCK MARKET

Life Insurance Stocks For Future Profits

By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., February 6, 1975—Since the beginning of the fourth quarter of last year, life insurance stocks as a group have shown substantial recuperation after a long spell of poor market performance brought about by inflationary pressures and painfully high interest rates. Prior to the recent rally, most life insurance issues had in fact, retreated to the lowest level in many years and become mere shadows of their decade-earlier selves, when this sector of the market was enjoying favored status among growth- and speculative-oriented investors. Now, despite the late-1974 early-1975 recovery, the life insurance issues of better quality still hold good buying opportunities for patient investors.

Industry Fundamentals Still Strong

The primary factors which made life insurance stocks so appealing to investors during the late 1960s and the early 1970s did prove to be valid. The nation's population has grown substantially, and personal income both per capita and per family has reached unprecedented levels. But the life insurance stocks were driven to unrealistically high price levels in that period and it took a subsequent series of credit crunches to bring them back down. The industry's underpinning, however, continues favorable. The post-World War II baby boom is now well into the family formation stage, and this segment of the nation's population which forms the prime market for new life insurance policy sales (the 20-to-35 age bracket) should experience further growth for the better part of the next ten years.

Inflation: A Dual-Edged Sword
During periods of inflation fears, investors focus on the negative effects of the erosion of purchasing power and the shrinkage in value of benefits payments to policyholders. They reason that new policy sales will suffer. But in recent years this has not been the case. Life insurance programs now bulk large in the plans of household heads, who tend to compensate for the loss of future purchasing power by increasing their coverage, albeit with more emphasis upon low-cost term insurance. The Institute of Life Insurance comes up with some estimates that are revealing: Two out of three persons in this country are covered by some type of life insurance issued by a legal reserve company; the average life insurance coverage per family today is about double that of ten years ago; and the average size of new life insurance policies issued continues to trend upward.

Other Pluses
The pension reform law has expanded the market for life insurance firms. One aspect of this program, for example, allows qualifying persons to set aside 15% (up to $1500) of their annual earnings not covered by a pension plan into a fund of their own. The annual contributions to this fund are not subject to federal income tax until retirement. And this money can be systematically invested in an annuity program such as those issued by life insurance companies.

The downturn in interest rates, which still seems to be in process, will mean less lucrative returns on insurance company investments than in the past two years. Returns are still well above historical norms, nevertheless, and the decline in money rates will lessen policy loans and leave more funds available for investments.

Better Operating Results Ahead

Earnings have not been impressive over the past two years, although the pure life insurance firms have not suffered as have the multi-line and solely property-casualty outfits. Rate relief, however, should produce improved operating achievements this year. Thus, the Research Department of Babson's Reports recommends as buy situations the common stocks of Franklin Life Insurance, Connecticut General Insurance, and Travelers Corporation. For free reports on these, write Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass. 02151.

YOUR VETERINARIAN SPEAKS

Dog Distemper

If your dog appears to have a cold, don't dismiss it lightly. Coughing, wheezing, difficult breathing and eye discharge may be signs of canine distemper. Take him to your veterinarian as soon as possible.

Canine distemper can be fatal, according to the Maryland Veterinary Medical Association. During its early stages, the dog may refuse to eat and have diarrhea. His temperature will be high and he will show little interest in his surroundings.

Distemper is so widespread in young dogs that it must be suspected any time a puppy runs a fever. If diagnosed and treated early, often it is completely curable. However, no time should be lost in seeking professional care as serious after effects may result.

If untreated, a dog may appear to recover for two or three days, but then he will lapse into the secondary and most serious phase of the disease. The second stage causes death in nearly 50% of the cases.

During the second stage, there is a fever, vomiting, loss of appetite and severe diarrhea. The dog may also contract pneumonia. Damage to the nervous system may be extensive, causing convulsions.

The dog may also appear to be mentally dull, lose its sense of smell and hearing. There may also be a paralysis of the legs, lips or ears.

Treatment, after symptoms develop, may be long, expensive and unsatisfactory. Properly used, the vaccines now available produce excellent immunity. Start your dog's vaccinations while he is a puppy and, to insure continued immunity, have him vaccinated annually.

WESTMINSTER LAWN SERVICE

Don Spear - President

In this day and age when every car maker has such a wide selection of models to choose from, it is really difficult for you to decide where to go for a new car. All the companies advertise that their cars are the best, but who is to say which car really is. Obviously all the cars on the market today must have their good points or they wouldn't have survived the ups and downs of the business. We, therefore, can conclude that the real difference in buying a car is the dealer you buy it from.

The ideal dealer to buy a car from offers a fair price on the new unit, as well as an honest dollar for the car you trade in. However, the most important factor is the service that you receive on your new car year after year.

The writers of the 1975 Review would like to point out a dealer that considers the most important part of selling a car the quality service he can offer you after the sale. We are talking about Westminster Lincoln-Mercury Inc. at Rts. 140 & 97 across from the Village Shopping Center in Westminster, phone 848-0440, dealers for the famous 1975 Lincoln and Mercury automobiles. See them today for a new or quality used car, and you'll see why we say "Customer Consideration" is their byword.

Budget Bonanza
by Ann D. Allen

If you're like most American homemakers, you want to save as much as possible, particularly these days, so here's some food for thought for the next time you go food shopping. Buy in quantity. When the price is favorable get as much as you can safely store, preferably enough to last until the next special. This saves time as well as money.

Consider buying in-house brands as well as name ones on some items. They're usually cheaper, and come in various quantities.

Buy when the price is right. Shop around for the savgiest supermarkets.

Buy food you know your family likes—and that you know is good for them. Ice cream, for instance, is one dessert that provides all the nutrients of milk: calcium, phosphorus, protein, vitamin A, thiamine and riboflavin, yet as much as less nutritious, higher priced and more caloric sweets.

If you're careful, you'll probably be able to get both good economy and good taste.

6-Part Film Series On Modern Painting Begins At Mt. St. Mary's

"Pioneers of Modern Painting," a new six-part film series written and narrated by Kenneth Clark, will be presented at Mount Saint Mary's College during February and March on Tuesday evenings at 6:30 p.m. in the library forum. Admission is free and open to the public.

The series of 45-minute color films covers the life and work of six leading modern artists: Edouard Manet, Paul Cezanne, Claude Monet, Georges Seurat, Henri Rousseau, and Edvard Munch. Most of the films, which are being provided without charge by the National Gallery of Art, were photographed in France, with the exception of "Edvard Munch" which was photographed in Norway, the artist's native country. Photographs of the original paintings, however, were obtained from museums and private collections all over the world.

NEWS OF SPORTS
U.S. SKI TEAM SPORTS NEW LOOK

In downhill skiing events, speed is the name of the game. Downhill suits for members of the U.S. Ski Team are constructed of four-way, 180 per cent stretch nylon designed to eliminate wind resistance and provide freedom of movement. Designed specifically for Sears and the U.S. Ski Team, the electric blue, satin-look outfits are accented with red epaulets and navy trim.

Slalom, cross country, downhill—all are skiing events requiring specialized skills. All, too, are events requiring specialized skiwear.

To meet its needs, the U.S. Ski Team for the second year has turned to Sears, Roebuck and Co. to develop a line of competitive skiwear for its Nordic and Alpine teams as well as to provide casual wardrobes for travel and apres-ski relaxation. In creating the skiwear, Sears strived to incorporate fashionable looks with functional features to meet the varied needs of the skiers.

The nearly 100 skiers, coaches and staff all will be wearing blue warm-up outfits with taredor waist pants and jackets featuring red, white and blue striping across the front and back. Stretch side panels have been incorporated in the jackets for freedom of movement and special pockets have been designed for two-way radios, sun glasses and other equipment used by the team.

The competitive skiwear is designed with special features such as high density foam padding in the slalom outfits in the shoulder, arm and knee areas which are subject to bruises from slalom poles. Form-fitting downhill outfits are made of four-way, 180 per cent stretch fabric for unrestricted maneuverability and less wind resistance.

Both men and women members of the team also will be provided with casual wardrobes. The coordinated outfits offer endless combinations with separates to create a variety of "put together" looks.

Wherever the skiers' schedules take them, their outfits have been designed to offer fashion and comfort both on and off the slopes.

WORKING IDEAS
You may not be aware of it yet, but more and more American working people are changing their eating habits. Today, a businessman's (and woman's) lunch is quite likely to come in a brown paper bag. And that's not such a bad idea. When the weather's frightful, it's delightful not to have to go out in it; and as some efficient business people know, lunch hour is a good time to get a lot of things done: finish the newspaper, figure your income tax or your grocery list, or just meditate, without having to waste time and money on going out to lunch. While the weather is raging, you can warm your spirits by adding some boiling water to a package of soup mix or a bouillon cube. It makes a great addition to a sandwich and it's a longer-lasting pick-me-up than coffee.

Inter-office lunches can be fun, even if you're "brown-bagging it." Invite some friends to join you. Have a little party. Maybe even share a bottle of wine. You can equip a desk drawer especially for luncheon parties. Store some pretty Dixie paper cups, plates and bowls along with paper napkins, placemats, salt and pepper or anything else you particularly like to spice up your meals.

Try these easy suggestions and "eating in" may just become a favorite habit for your entire office.

SOLAR HOME: CLIMATE CONTROL UNDER A COPPER ROOF
Most home owners aren't aware of it yet, but man's oldest source of heat, the sun, is now the newest way to keep a house warm—and cool.
For eons before man discovered fire, he only had the sun to warm him. Now that the fossil fuels that have kept us comfortable are running low, man once again is beginning to look to the sun.
The first "practical" home to be fully climate-controlled through solar energy has just been completed in Tucson, Arizona, with nearly 100% of its heating and about 75% of its cooling supplied by the sun.
Called the "Decade 80 Solar House," this home utilizes a copper roof system to collect power from the sun. The copper roof is glass-skinned—for the "greenhouse" effect—and integrated with copper tubing through which circulates water, the home's chief energy transport and storage medium. This is the first totally integrated solar collector-roof system that is commercially available to the building industry, and can be installed in the normal course of construction with the skills of today's tradesmen. Described as long-lasting, maintenance-free, easy-to-install and reasonably priced, this new roofing and energy system can heat water more than 100 degrees F. above the surrounding air temperature. Highly versatile, the combination copper roofing and energy system can be used to cover either the entire house—or a single room such as a new or remodeled family room, for example. Befitting its description as the first solar home fulfilling an American family's highest expectations of comfort, convenience, and even luxury, the "Decade 80 Solar House" is an elegant, sprawling desert home complete with swimming pool view, a copper-clad master bath, and a guest wing with its own private entrance. Conceived by the Copper Development Association Inc., the Tucson solar home will include a number of furniture pieces fabricated in mirrored copper or brass including a series of cocktail cubes, Parsons tables, pedestals, and reflective walls.
Copper is the quality choice for solar collector panel systems such as used in the Tucson solar house for a number of reasons. For one, copper conducts heat up to eight times better than any other material feasible for solar panels. Also, no other metal that could be used has a higher resistance to corrosion. Copper is in dependable supply too—the U.S. is 95% self-sufficient in copper. In addition, copper is highly recyclable, and easily fulfills plumbing codes.
The "Decade 80 Solar House" also will get energy from the sun through solar cells located on the copper roof, and these will run the family's various TV sets, sound system, stand-by security system, and small kitchen appliances such as the blender.
This kind of house doesn't have to be built in Arizona, either. It needs only a small fraction of the total energy expended by the sun on a given area to provide energy so it can be located almost anywhere.
With the "Decade 80 Solar House" as the proving ground, solar energy seems to be a good idea about to take its place in the sun.

It may be made of paper but it can't go up in smoke.
Paper burns. But there's a lot more to a U.S. Savings Bond than the paper it's printed on. Each Bond is registered carefully and the records are kept in the Treasury Department vaults. So if your Bonds are burned—or lost or stolen—just report it (with all available information including serial numbers) to the Bureau of Public Debt, 536 S. Clark Street, Chicago, Illinois 60605. Your claim will get prompt attention. You won't even lose any interest during the time it takes to replace your Bonds. Buy U.S. Savings Bonds. They may not look it, but they're practically indestructible.

FIRE SAFETY COLUMN

Children And Fire Safety (Prepared by the Frederick County Firemen's Association Fire Prevention Committee)

When fire safety is mentioned, one of the foremost thoughts is usually of cleaning up rubbish around the house and the use of fire safety equipment. But what about our children? Statistics show us approximately 12,000 fire deaths occur yearly. Of this number, 30% are children ages 14 and under. Out of the number of children's deaths, 18% are under 5 years of age. How do we protect them?

There are many ways of safe-guarding children, besides the most common one of keeping matches and cigarette lighters out of reach of children. The very young child must be considered. Keep a fire safe environment in the home at all times by general clean up. Pot handles should always be turned so they don't stick out over the edge of the stove. Little children love to reach for things. They can be burned by pulling hot pans down on themselves. Be sure flammable liquids are kept well out of the reach of children. Always unplug appliances, such as the iron, whenever not in use. Protect children, especially in the crawling stage, from electric heating units. Fire places should have snug fitting screens or enclosures not only to keep sparks in, but to keep small children away from open flames or live coals.

One of the most important means of safety for children cannot be stressed enough. Never leave small children for even a few minutes without proper supervision. Many children die needlessly each year in fires because they were left unattended. Fire could start at anytime, and by the time it is discovered, a child could already be trapped and/or suffering from smoke inhalation. The very young are helpless in such cases.

When buying children's clothing or sleepware, look for fabrics which are labeled fire retardant or fire resistive. Unfortunately, this type fabric in children's clothing seems to be limited to sizes 6X and under. Fire retardant clothing may not prevent injury from fire, but it could reduce the extent of injury.

In the yard during summer there is danger for the small child. When grills are in use, never allow children near them. Severe injury could be incurred if the child accidentally tipped the grill over on himself. If there is open burning, someone should always be in attendance and see that children are kept at a safe distance. Habits of fire safety are best instilled during the years of childhood, especially since youngsters are particularly prone to fire accidents. Children of school age need education in fire safety. Parents should encourage fire safety education in the schools, but it should not stop there. It is the responsibility of parents to work with their own families by setting up a family escape plan—ways of getting out of each room in case of fire. An escape plan should include two exits from each

Community Night Success At CHS

In November, a Parent-Teacher-Student Night was held at Catoctin High School. Set up home fire safety regulations for the family and enforce them. Emphasize to the children that if they discover a fire or smell smoke, report it immediately to their parents or any available adult—even if they may have accidentally started it. Just having a plan is not sufficient. That plan should also include home fire drills.

Children need to know how to protect themselves from fire. A few basic measures could save their life. In the event of fire, the first thing to do is get out of the house. Teach older children how to call for help if no adults are present. The most basic rule, of course, is never play with matches, lighters or other open flames. If their clothing should catch fire, never run; but cross arms against the chest, drop to the ground and roll to smother the flames.

With the unlimited sources of ignition, a fire could start no matter how careful a person tries to be. Establish a sequence to follow when a fire is discovered: 1. Evacuate; 2. Notify the fire department, no matter how small the fire. Use a neighbor's phone unless the home phone can be used in safety.

Since every home and building cannot be equipped with an automatic detection and extinguishing system, it is vital that everyone, old and young, be instilled with fire safety measures.

Spotlight on HEALTH HOW HIGH IS HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE? Recent studies have shown that treatment of high blood pressure is beneficial and life saving. However, until the results of these were made known, "physicians were sort of lulled into thinking that benign hypertension (the medical term for high blood pressure) was really harmless." Not all borderline cases require treatment, William B. Kannel, M.D., Director, Heart Disease Epidemiology Study, National Heart and Lung Institute, Framingham, Mass., reported at a recent symposium on the disease which was part of a series of Medical Horizons Postgraduate Education presentations for physicians supported by CIBA Pharmaceutical Company. But, Dr. Kannel added, "borderline cases can kill" if ignored and allowed to reach severe stages. The decision whether to treat a patient is determined on how high a risk a patient may be considered. Hereditarily high cholesterol, cigarette smoking, glucose intolerance, and electrocardiogram abnormalities are considered risk factors. Treatment may or may not include medication along with correction of these other factors. Borderline and mild cases of hypertension may only require surveillance by the physician, and for the patient, changes in diet, exercise, and perhaps living conditions that create stress.
