Tomorrow begins the Bell and History Days celebration in Frederick City (June 13, 14 and 15). This has grown into quite an event, it seems, from the first celebration in 1968 marking the restoration of the bell at the Visitation Convent and Academy. This year, activities are taking place county-wide.

Bell-ringing has become a focal point of the festivities, of course, and I've been asked by the organizers of the celebration to invite Emmitsburg's churches to join in the event.

Our churches have been asked to ring their bells tomorrow evening from 6:45 to 7:00 p.m., and Saturday morning from 9:45 to 10:00 a.m. (Personally, I'm quite fond of church bells, and I'm for any "excuse" to ring 'em.)

I hope you spotted the write-up in Wednesday's Chronicle. (It's in the special section on the Bicentennial.) It's kind of nice to be in the news for a change.

On a more serious note, I've caught wind of a growing disenchantment in town. Seems many folks are getting tired of rowdy youths and their often delinquent behavior. (It's no secret I'm against that sort of thing.)

Before I begin to editorialize too much, let me say that a citizen's meeting will take place next Wednesday evening. (There's a notice in this week's paper.)

The purpose of this meeting, as I understand it, is to discuss ways in which we town residents can help our police deter such behavior. I've given the matter some thought, and one thing is certain: there aren't any easy solutions. For that reason alone, it's important to get people together. The old saying is true about two heads being better than one.

As our swimming pool nears completion, it has become apparent that deck chairs, tables, etc., will be needed to outfit the new facility. Our Parks and Recreation Commission is accepting donations for park-related equipment, which doesn't have to be used just for the pool, incidentally. The Parks people tell me they would like to be able to buy trees, shrubbery, park benches, to be used wherever they're needed.

You're welcome to make a donation for any item you'd like, and such a donation can be made in memory of someone either living or dead. (Gene Myers, Chairman of the Parks and Recreation Commission, informs me that a plaque will be affixed to items purchased through memorial donations.) He's the fellow to see, by the way, to make your donation.

Have a nice weekend, and remember kids, only one more week of school! (As if you need a reminder.)

THE ZIP COLUMN

Continuing the Bicentennial theme in the 1975 stamp program, is a 10-cent stamp commemorating the Battle of Bunker Hill, fought on June 17, 1775. One of the earliest engagements of the Revolutionary War, the battle was hailed as a great moral victory for the Americans because of the heavy casualties among the best of British troops.

The stamp design is taken from a painting by John Trumbull, a noted artist of the period who has become famous for his series of ambitious and detailed paintings of events and personalities of the Revolution. Trumbull titled his painting, "The Battle of Bunker's Hill," using the name of the hill in common usage at the time. The painting was also the subject of a six-cent stamp issued in 1968 in the American Painting Series.

This stamp will go on sale at our office on Wednesday, June 18, 1975.

Open Tournament For Tennis Players

A tennis tournament open to all area players, will be held June 20-22 on the Mt. St. Mary's College courts. Competition, which will open on Friday evening and extend through Sunday afternoon, has been scheduled in three divisions: men's and women's singles, and mixed doubles. Sixteen trophies will be awarded to semi-finalists and finalists in the three divisions. The entry fee for the three-day event will be $5.00 for each entry in each division.

Entries must be received by Wednesday, June 18 (Jim Deegan, c/o Athletic Department, Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md. 21727). Entry blanks and a tournament information sheet may be obtained at: the information desks of the Gettysburg Times; Waynesboro Record Herald; at Shipley's Sporting Goods Stores in Frederick, or at the information window in the Student Union Building on the Mt. St. Mary's campus.

Organizers of the tournament are Deegan, track coach at the Mount, and Bill Gilbert, women's tennis coach. "Jim and I are summer tennis addicts," explains Gilbert, who in real life is a "Sports Illustrated" writer living near Fairfield. "We felt there was a lack of opportunity in the area for fairly low pressure competitive tennis so we thought we'd stage this tournament to see if there was any interest. If it goes well, we'd like to offer some other tournaments this summer, perhaps with junior, senior and other doubles divisions."

Vacation Church School Begins Soon

The Council of Churches in Emmitsburg has begun registering children from Nursery age through grade 6 for the annual summer school. Planning meetings and workshops have already been held with the staff, which comes from the local churches. The school will begin Sunday evening, June 22, and continue each evening until Friday, June 27. Each of the six evenings will begin at 7 p.m. and conclude at 8:30 p.m.

All children will meet the first night at Elias Lutheran Church for organizational purposes and will be assigned to the several community churches. The remainder of the evenings, the children should go directly to the assigned church and be picked-up there promptly at 8:30 p.m.

A portion of the nightly offerings will be sent to support World Hunger Projects. The rest of the offerings will be used to defray costs of materials and supplies for the school.

This year's theme is "Followers of Jesus." The children will study and work together on what it means to be a Christian in today's world.

Last year, the attendance averaged just over 100 pupils per evening. Registration for this year's school may be done in advance of June 22, by filling out the pink forms available at your church or from your Pastor. The Directors of this year's school are Lyla Franklin of the Presbyterian Church, and Anna Bushman of the Lutheran Church. All children of the area are welcome.

Adult Summer School At Center

Two adult education courses will continue to be taught at Seton Center during the summer months.

Adult Basic Education and GED (preparation for High School Equivalency Tests) are open to the public without charge on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7-9.

Since 1970, these two courses have been given each semester during the school year. By special arrangement with the Frederick County Board of Education, the current session will be extended through the summer. New students may join the class at any time.

Classes are friendly and informal with a short coffee break at 8 p.m. Adult students may bring their children to play on the Seton Center grounds near the classroom if they wish.

The High School Equivalency tests are given in Frederick on the second and third Saturdays of each month. Adults may apply to take the exam without attending class. Application forms are available at Seton Center or from the Frederick County Board of Education. Applications must be received by the Maryland State Department of Education by the 20th of the month before the month when the exam is to be taken.

ABE classes are designed to improve basic reading and math skills for adult students. The program is very flexible and geared to individual needs. Although continuing study at home is recommended, there are no set homework assignments.

3 Area Churches Named Landmarks

Three Frederick County Lutheran congregations have been designated as Lutheran landmarks in a recently compiled list of 71 pre-Revolutionary places to visit. In the current issue of The Lutheran, a bi-centennial guide to historic Lutheran Churches lists the following area churches: Saint John's Lutheran Church, Creagerstown; on Black's Mill Road; has old records, unusual chandelier; present church built 1834. Elias Lutheran Church, Emmitsburg; founded 1757; present building erected in 1977; has extensive archives; relics include 1765 German Bible. Grace Lutheran Church, Woodsboro, building less than 100 years old, but on exact site of original; pulpit, crystal, communion vessels and crucifix from original building.

TAX—Q & A

Q. I filed my return at the beginning of March, but I haven't received my refund yet. What should I do?

A. If ten weeks have passed since you filed and you have not received your refund or a letter explaining the delay or requesting substantiation of items on your return, call the IRS toll-free number for your area. The IRS will need to know approximately when you filed your return, your social security number, your name and present address and the return address on your tax return if it's different from your present address. The IRS will let you know the approximate date to expect your refund.

Q. The Veterans Administration is paying for my flight lessons for an instrument rating on my private pilot license. Are these payments taxable?

A. No. Benefits paid under any law administered by the VA to veterans and their families are not taxable.

Q. I just found an error on an income tax return I filed two years ago. Is it too late for me to file an amended return to correct this mistake?

A. No. An amended return or claim for refund (Form 1040X or 843) must be filed either within three years from the date you filed your original return (a return filed early is considered to have been filed on the due date) or within two years from the time you paid the tax, whichever was later.

Q. What kind of interest is tax exempt?

A. Interest on obligations of a state or its political subdivision, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, a possession of the United States, or a political subdivision of it, is wholly exempt from tax. This includes such bodies as port authorities, toll road commissions, utility service authorities and similar bodies created for furtherance of public functions. The interest is tax exempt whether received on a debt through an ordinary written agreement of purchase and sale entered into by duly constituted authorities, or received on a conventional bond or promissory note. It is also exempt if paid by an insurer upon default by the political subdivision.

National March Bill Introduced

The Stars and Stripes Forever

By Senator

Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. Throughout history, music has been an integral part of human civilization. The major events of our personal lives—weddings, funerals, commencements, religious observances, athletic events, ceremonial occasions, and so forth—are distinguished by musical accompaniment.

With the approach of the Bicentennial commemoration, it is appropriate that we recognize the significance of music in the public ceremonies of America, not only during this year, but throughout our national history.

Bicentennial events will be of an enormous variety, marking the importance of our national commitment to different individuals and groups that make up our nation. Yet one event certain to occur in virtually every town and city throughout our country is a parade commemorating our day of national independence.

It is appropriate, therefore, that we, as a nation, recognize the contribution to such ceremonies which have been made by American composers of marching music.

Members of the American Bandmasters Association, the American High School Bandmasters Association, and others, have suggested that we pay tribute to all our great composers by designating as our official national march what they believe to be the most deserving work of the great composer, John Philip Sousa.

Sousa composed more than 100 marches. He became to the march what Strauss was to the waltz or Beethoven to the classical symphony.

His distinction as a musical composer, band director, public leader, and patriotic citizen, make it appropriate that we honor all American composers, and all musicians throughout the nation, by designating his great work, "The Stars and Stripes Forever," as our National March.

I have introduced a resolution in the Senate to that effect, and look forward to its widespread national support and adoption by the Congress as part of our Bicentennial commemoration.

Board Of Ed. Warns Of Phony Census

Local Board of Education officials are concerned about reports from citizens who have been approached by persons claiming to be taking a census for the local school board. No census is being conducted by the local board at the present time and people who come to the door claiming they represent the Board of Education should be reported to the police, a Board spokesman said.

The typical approach to residents has been to ask them if there are school age children living in the home while claiming that the survey is being taken for Board of Education purposes. Exactly what the purpose of these individuals is not clear at the moment. Prompt reporting of the individuals to the police will break up this practice, school officials emphasized. If someone wants to double check before phoning police, they can reach the Frederick County Board of Education at 662-9200, ext. 226.

Employers To Pay More For Jobless

Employers covered by the Unemployment Insurance Law of Maryland will be assigned rates increased by six-tenths percent for the next fiscal year beginning July 1, 1975, according to an announcement made this week by James N. Phillips, Executive Director of the Employment Security Administration.

Mr. Phillips said that no employer's tax rate shall exceed three and six-tenths percent with the exception of the four and two-tenths per cent imposed by law upon employers who are delinquent in filing returns or paying taxes.

"Also excepted," Phillips added, "from this uniform increase are those employers who do not have a sufficient experience rating under the tax formula in the law. These employers will pay contributions for the fiscal year beginning July 1, at the rate of one and eight-tenths per cent as compared with the current fiscal year rate of one and seven-tenths per cent."

Bill To Aid Elderly Against Crime

Senator J. Glenn Beale, Jr. (R-Md.) has introduced legislation to help highly vulnerable senior citizens from becoming victims of crime. The bill (S. 1875) which Beale authored requires that any State seeking Federal funds for law enforcement must first develop a plan to combat crimes against the elderly.

Citing the need for affirmative programs to better protect older Americans, Beale points to a survey by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration in various American cities, including Baltimore. In that city, twice as many people over 50 years of age were victims of robbery with injury than were 20-24 year old citizens; the rate for personal larceny was three times as high for the elderly. In addition, FBI statistics show that the overall rate for serious crime in the United States rose 17 per cent last year.

Senator Beale, who is both the Ranking Minority Member of the Senate's Subcommittee on Aging and a member of the Special Committee on Aging, says that older Americans recognize their vulnerability and are more cautious and security-conscious than other groups. "Many elderly people," says Beale, "have the feeling that they must always remain at home in order to combat crime, or, if they must go out, never to venture onto the city streets alone. Because they travel mostly by bus or subway, older people must wait for public transportation at designated points—and these points are well known to would-be assailants. Mailboxes in unguarded apartments and vestibules are the province of thieves who know when Social Security checks arrive."

The Beale measure is designed to "attack this problem by developing, on the State and local level, comprehensive plans to effectively combat crimes against the elderly." One such plan that has been offered would put additional mandatory penalties on criminals convicted of attacks on older citizens.

ADAM'S RIBS GET JELLY GLAZE

In today's society with more and more working mothers and the elevated status for both single men and women; men are finding it necessary and enjoyable to have a working knowledge of cooking and housekeeping skills. Unfortunately, the upbringing of little boys traditionally does not include the tackling of household tasks—so men need all the help they can get! Men seem to have a real flair for cooking. They are not afraid to try new or unusual things—especially when recipes are simple, economical and just plain good tasting.

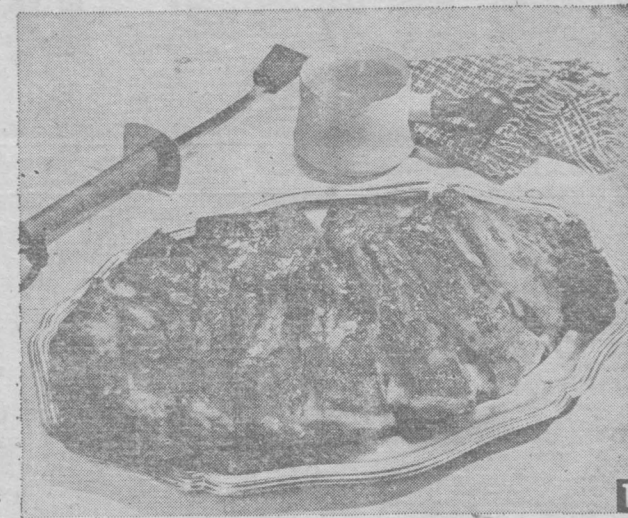

Pork spareribs with a sweet, pungent sauce are a favorite anytime of year, whether they are baked in the oven or roasted on the grill. Jams, jellies and preserves used as the foundation for the sauce give tasty results with minimum effort.

ADAM'S TANGY SPARERIBS

4 pounds pork spareribs
1 1/2 cups jam or jelly
sauce (recipes below)

For easy handling during cooking, leave the ribs in one piece but have them partially cut through and cracked by the butcher for separation into single or double sections after cooking.

Brush ribs with selected jam or jelly sauce; place in a plastic bag and refrigerate several hours or overnight, turning occasionally. When ready to cook, brush sauce from ribs into saucepan and reserve.

Place ribs on a rack in a foil-lined roasting pan and bake in a moderate oven (325°F.) for 1 1/2 to 2 hours or until fork-tender, turning once. Or, place ribs on a grill 6 to 7 inches from coals for 1 to 1 1/2 hours, turning frequently. During the last 30 minutes of cooking, brush ribs with reserved sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SWEET AND PUNGENT GRAPE SAUCE: In saucepan over low heat, cook 1 cup grape jelly, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1/4 cup tomato sauce, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1/4 teaspoon allspice and a dash of garlic powder, stirring constantly, until jelly melts and sauce is well blended. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

SPICY PEACH SAUCE: In saucepan over low heat, cook 1 cup peach jam or preserves, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1/4 cup water, 2 tablespoons corn syrup, 1/8 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves, stirring constantly, until jam melts and sauce is well blended. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

For a snappy ginger sauce, try this one:

GINGER ORANGE SAUCE: In saucepan over low heat, cook 1 cup orange marmalade, 1/4 cup water, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 2 tablespoons soy sauce, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard, 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger and a dash of garlic powder, stirring constantly, until marmalade melts and sauce is well blended. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

Fashion Forecasts

TIPS ON CHOOSING WARM WEATHER WEAR

You can keep your cool in warm weather by choosing the newest fashion colors—cool, earthy tones rather than the sun bright hues of years past. The colors this year are carrot, sage, blueberry—all naturally attractive—and the khakis, olive drabs, sands and whites. Classic tops and wrap-around skirts in refreshing sand colors are easy to slip into and easy to wear.

On "Women Today," a radio series sponsored by Hanes, hostess Lee Meriwether offers some hot weather hints for keeping cool: -- Cotton is the star fabric this year. Cotton voiles, batistes and cotton sateen in roseberry, chalk and adobe colors are all as pretty as they sound. -- Truly feminine looks are "in." Lacy, ruffled dresses, pinafores, petti-skirts, with a young disarming quality that's reminiscent of another time. White silk organdy pinafores beautifully hand-painted with individual bouquets of jonquils, roses, or violets are worn over ascot-tie shirts. The full skirts, tiny waistlines and floor-length hems give them an ageless look. For a fragile and feminine look at parties, this is the costume to wear.

-- To go along with the feminine look this summer are romantic wedges, proportioned to flatter your legs with their breathtaking lines. The delicate, flattering look is also seen in lovely, slender pumps, with "T" or cross straps. Completing the overall look and feel of femininity is Summer Sheer, the first hot weather pantyhose designed to keep legs cool.

-- As for skirts, they're bigger than ever. The button-front style is very popular and a snap to get into. These come in short gadt-about styles. For patio entertaining, look for the floor-length patterns. In candy-striped poplin or denim they're just the thing for a summer night.

With the new fashions, keeping cool will be no trick at all.

Dream Vacation For A Dream Figure

The essence of a vacation is FREE TIME—time to pursue favorite activities without worrying about the clock. Did you ever think that you can plan a terrific vacation without ever leaving home? Of course, and best of all, this is one vacation you can afford right now.

Sightseeing is a great vacation favorite. Americans will travel miles to see the oldest church or the most interesting architecture in a strange town. How about seeing the sights in your own town, this time around?

Consult your chamber of commerce for information. Check the Sunday paper for special attractions at museums and parks within a day's drive from your house. Plan to see one new thing each day. You'll be amazed to find how many sites of interest are located nearby. And the next time you have out-of-town guests, you'll be the best possible tour guide.

Playing tennis or golf is another way to spend your vacation at home. By playing mid-week, when reservations are easier, you can have as much exercise as you like without that tiresome waiting.

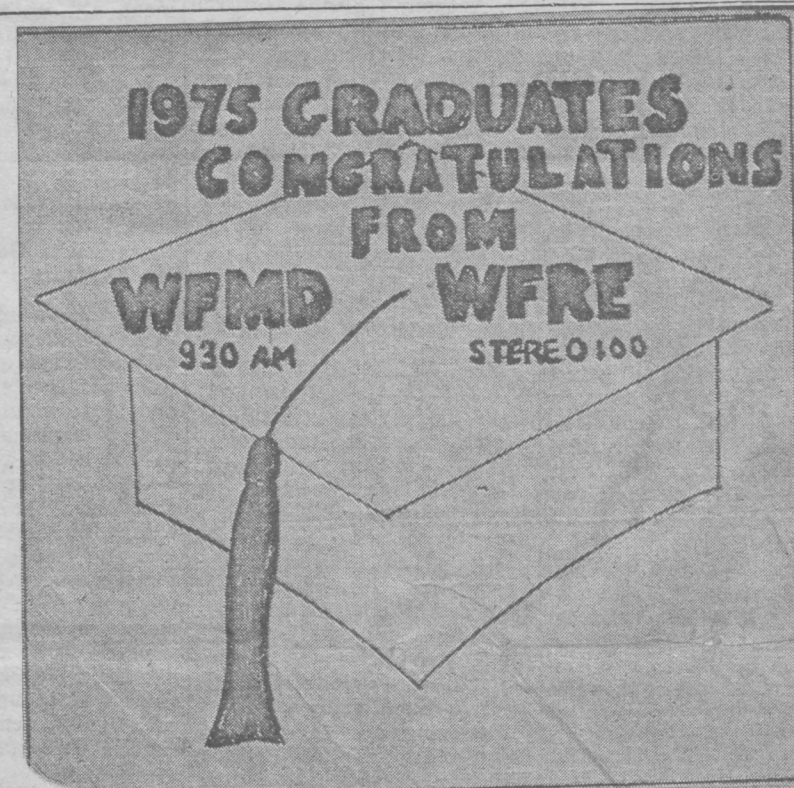

Have you postponed joining the local gym or health club? Many gyms have family programs which include separate exercise classes for men and women. Vacation is a great time to get the family into the gym habit. You can all go daily during vacation, then switch to evenings later.

Trying new food is one of the great pleasures of travel. Without leaving the area, you'll probably discover that your own community has more foreign restaurants than you've ever imagined. Why not try a different local restaurant every night for a real taste tour?

Your dream vacation at home can have most of the pleasures of a vacation abroad, but some of the pitfalls, too. To avoid that post-vacation bulge around the waist, learn to control your calorie intake each day. Slender diet food from Carnation is an ideal method of weight control. Mixed with 6 oz. whole milk or straight from the can, this delicious mini meal contains just 225 calories. Substitute it for breakfast and lunch, and you can have your dream vacation and your dream figure too.

BUSINESS AND THE STOCK MARKET

Business Picture Brightening
By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., June 12, 1975—Administration of officials and economists are assuring us that the 1974-75 recession is bottoming out. They base their optimism on a record April spurt of 4.2% in the government index of leading business indicators. Following eleven straight months of decline, the index has now registered two months of gain that may indeed herald the end of the economic slide for this cycle.

What The Figures Show

While such betterment can hardly be regarded as conclusive evidence that a definite turn to the upside has come, the signals of improvement are welcomed by the business world. Not only do the April figures point upward, they do so quite strongly in some specific instances and that would appear to bode well for the brighter future that is anticipated. Building permits for private housing were up 27.1% from March. The average workweek advanced 0.5% to 39 hours, a development that could prove to be quite significant. Best of all, new orders for manufactured goods rose almost 10%.

These figures are all the more heartening because with release of the April data the government announced that the index of leading indicators had been revised to make it a more precise economic forecasting tool. The new index, which is expected to be less susceptible to inflationary distortions, retains only four of the twelve indicators included in the previous one.

Prognostication
Reports reaching Babson's from private sources signify that the index of leading indicators for May will show some further gain when the final results are released. The percentage increase, however, will not be as dramatic. What we are seeing at this time is a gradual brightening of the business picture, while the real dawn of recovery is still down the road a piece.

Business is flexing its muscles right now and in the months immediately ahead it will be testing itself and its markets. By midsummer we will have a clearer idea of whether the inventory runoff has been overdone or whether total demand is actually moving up on what promises to be a sustained basis. Our guess: The solid pull of recovery will not be widely and surely felt until near Labor Day.

Shape Of The Upturn

So far there is more whistling in the dark than real optimism among marketing men.

The Research Department of Babson's Reports shares that cautious view, looking for buying enthusiasm to take time to kindle. Although personal income is still heading upward, disposable personal income gains are too limited to be truly invigorating. And, of course, unemployment is still a drawback.

Consumers continue to be more interested in banking cash & reducing debt than in buying. But this trend may change as it becomes apparent that things are looking up and that job security of those employed may in fact be improving. Even so, uncertainty and inflation (though well down now from earlier peaks) will continue as checkreins on consumer enthusiasm. We do not look for anything like a real buying binge until the fourth quarter, but foresee modest steady gains in the interim. Hence, fueling the upturn will take time.

More Relief For Business?

So business still has a tough row to hoe, and there are few in Washington speaking out for it these days. Congress remains pretty firmly wedded to the idea that economic recovery can best be encouraged through more public service jobs, higher government spending rather than via tax and/or other aids to business.

But we feel that there will be some cuts in business taxes enacted toward the end of this year, and that these may include an end to the federal taxation of dividends that are reinvested.

RX FOR HOME REPAIRS

Like so many "firsts," the new cordless electric screwdriver will make you wonder how you ever managed without it, once you have one.

Whether the task is putting up drapery hardware, building furniture, repairing appliances, or assembling swings for offsprings, you'll discover that a cordless electric screwdriver has a thousand and one uses.

The S-100 is Disston's answer to the handy and the not-so-handy person's needs. It drives 80 one-inch screws into pine without pre-drilling with a single charge of its nickel cadmium batteries. If you pre-drill first, you can drive 140 one-inch screws into pine. That's the equivalent of 24 continuous driving minutes.

The S-100 cordless electric screwdriver comes with one bit for pre-drilling, one slotted screwdriver and one Phillips bit screwdriver head.

The UL approved charger gives extra long life to the batteries. Its power is activated by a slight pressure on the touch drive control system. It operates at a speed of 200 revolutions per minute (no load).

On a boat, in the backyard, or backpacking, you will find this first of its kind tool, weighing only 28 ounces, has unlimited applications for use. It fits into the tightest corners or working areas.

Housed in a practically indestructible, high-impact plastic with a forward/reverse/off switch selector, the S-100 is an easy to love "temper tamer" when it comes to figuring out how to assemble children's toys, outdoor play gyms, bicycles, and their myriad accessories, drapery rod installations, or any hardware that must be screwed into place. It's a great Father's or Mother's Day gift any day of the year. Professional carpenters as well as home handymen and women will enjoy using it, too.

It's a gift idea that's easy to love!

Out-Of-This-World Beauty

Amparo Munoz
Miss Universe 1974

If the sight of beautiful women from all over the world turns you on, you can soon turn on your TV for a sight to delight your eyes—the 24th annual Miss Universe Beauty Pageant.

Hosted by Bob Barker, with Helen O'Connell as anchorperson, the special telecast will be aired live from El Salvador, San Salvador, on Saturday, July 19th, at 10 p.m. (EDT) over the CBS television network.

With outstanding lovelies from 65 countries to choose from, it will be a tough night for the judges. But, judge they will, and at the stroke of midnight, 21-year-old Amparo Munoz—Spain's Miss Universe 1974—will crown her successor, whose charm and beauty will have earned a $10,000 cash award plus a $10,000 personal appearance contract. In addition, the new Miss Universe will receive a variety of prizes including an around-the-world cruise, a new car, and a year's wardrobe.

All of which seems fitting reward for the out-of-this-world beauty of the most beautiful girl in the world.

Iced Teas For The Bicentennial

Here's a cool way to add the Bicentennial spirit to your summer entertaining. Serve distinctive flavored iced teas with authentic colonial finger foods.

Tea was the colonists' favorite beverage. The tax on it caused the most important tea party in history—and started the whole move to independence. Two hundred years later, the best tea parties are the ones you plan around the "revolutionary" new teas by Bigelow called Special Blends.

What makes these teas so special are their flavors. One called Plantation Mint has a built-in hint of mint; Constant Comment, the original special blend, has an intriguing taste of orange and sweet spice. Both are brisk and refreshing served hot; but for summer, brew them, pour over ice and garnish with fresh mint leaves and slices of lemon or lime. Have plenty more waiting in ice-filled pitchers.

Other flavors include lemony-light Lemon Lift, flavor-scented Rose Garden and tangy Cinnamon Stick. When company comes, you might brew up a few flavors—they all come in convenient tea bags. That way, your family and friends can sample several, making the event a real tea party!

For another touch of history, have cookies or tea cakes made from colonial-day recipes. These lacy Benne (sesame) Seed Wafers were a specialty of early Charleston—and will be a special treat at your house, teatime or anytime.

MONEY-^{$}AVING IDEAS

TIPS TO HELP YOU CUT COOLING COSTS

Although many people think insulation is necessary only for keeping a house warm in winter, the truth is, it saves homeowners money on the cost of cooling in summer.

Guy O. Mabry, vice president and general manager of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation's Home Building Products Division, points out that by using simple energy conservation techniques, many homeowners can reduce their fuel bills.

during the cooling season by as much or more than they can during the heating season.

One of the most simple and efficient methods of cutting air conditioning costs is to make certain the attic of a home contains a minimum six inches (R-19) of insulation. All that's needed is the insulation, a tape measure, a pair of gloves, a sharp knife and a day's time. When the measurements have been taken, and the required amount of insulation is on hand, it's basically a matter of placing the insulation between the ceiling joists.

"This step alone will save the homeowner surprising amounts of money," says the Owens-Corning expert. "In a northern climate like

New York City, for example, cooling cost savings, based on today's electricity rates, will amount to as much as $155 a year, while in a southern climate like Phoenix, Arizona these savings can total $300 annually."

Other tips to help you save on your cooling bills:

- Set your thermostat at the highest comfortable level in summer. The National Bureau of Standards says your cooling fuel consumption drops 3 per cent for each degree you raise the thermostat.
- Change your air conditioner filter at least every two months.
- If you have a central air conditioning unit, keep heat-producing appliances away from the thermostat.
- Plant shade trees on the East, South and West sides of your home to reduce solar heat gain of windows, walls and roof.
- Use appliances late in the evening when power loads are lighter and temperatures are lower.
- Make sure clothes dryers are vented to outdoors to avoid heat build-up.
- Open attic windows to create ventilation; this reduces attic temperature.
- See that caulking around storm windows and doors is intact to prevent cool air loss in those areas.
- "When you consider that the cost of electricity in many parts of the country has risen 22 per cent between June, 1973 and last December, and that it will continue to increase dramatically, the case for saving as much as we can becomes very strong," asserts Mabry.

YOUR VETERINARIAN SPEAKS

Canine Heartworm Disease With the mosquito season fast approaching, the Maryland Veterinary Medical Association today issued a warning to dog owners to be on the alert for canine heartworm disease.

Transmitted by mosquitos, the disease can lead to extensive organ damage and death to dogs.

The disease is caused by long white worms called Dirofilaria immitis and can reach advanced stages and even cause death before signs become apparent to the pet owner. In its early stages, heartworm disease can be detected using a blood test. Sometimes an infected dog will have adult worms, but none of the tiny microfilariae in the blood. To confirm the infection in these cases, a veterinarian must use x-rays, repeated blood examinations or other laboratory tests.

When biting an infected dog, a mosquito may take up blood containing immature stages of the heartworm. After a two-week incubation period in the mosquito, they develop into infective larvae. If these larvae are transmitted by the mosquito to another dog, they migrate through the body to the heart. Here they grow to adult size of from 6 to 14 inches in length in about five to six months.

The disease previously was found only in the Gulf Coast regions, but has now spread to almost all mosquito-infested areas of the United States. Most affected dogs can be treated successfully if the disease is diagnosed in time. Drugs are available that will kill the adult worms.

There is always some risk involved in treating a dog for heartworms, veterinarians caution, but, fatal reactions rarely occur among dogs that are otherwise in good health. Complete rest is necessary after treatment to avoid lung damage from dead and decomposing worms.

For more information on the disease, send a self-addressed, stamped business size envelope to the American Veterinary Medical Association, 930 North Meacham Road, Schaumburg, Illinois 60172, and ask for the free booklet, "What You Should Know About Canine Heartworm Disease."

Health Dept. Warns Of Measles

Reports of 17 confirmed cases of measles (Rubella, Red Measles) in Baltimore County, 6 suspected cases in Cecil and 1 in Carroll County, have prompted Dr. Charles Spicknall, Frederick County Health Officer, to alert all parents to check the immunization status of all their children, especially pre-schoolers. This disease is not Rubella or German Measles.

The source for the Baltimore County outbreak, Dr. Spicknall said, was traced by State and County officials to the visit of a 12 year old youth from Pennsylvania early in April. Other investigations are still pending. The measles cases mark the first reported appearance of this disease in Maryland in over a year, the Health Officer said.

Dr. Spicknall reminded concerned parents, some of whom may never have seen a measles case, that the illness is a highly communicable viral disease characterized by fever, running, red and swollen eyes, and dry bronchial coughing. A dusky-red and blotchy rash appears on the 3rd or 4th day, beginning on the face, then other body areas, lasting generally 4 or 6 days.

The only individuals considered adequately protected from this type of disease are (1) those who already have had red measles or (2) those children who have already received live virus measles vaccine at one year of age or later.

Dr. Spicknall pointed out that Dr. Lawrence Schonberger, Acting Chief of the Division of Communicable Disease at the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, has noted that while the disease in Baltimore County has been found among children immunized after one year of age, the attack rate was 13 times higher among children only immunized prior to 10 months of age and 10 times higher among children with uncertain history of having had vaccine or red measles disease.

Accordingly, Dr. Spicknall advised parents who are not sure that their children are adequately protected that they discuss this matter with the child's physician or local health department and then act on their advice.

Dr. Spicknall added that live virus measles vaccine confers measles immunity in 95% or more of susceptible children when given at one year of age or older.

The group will also receive an afternoon briefing by Les Holmes, Executive Director of the Appalachian Trail Conference. An 8-mile hike along the trail will follow.

The tour, headed by Committee Chairman Roy Taylor, will begin at Worthington Farm with a 12:00 Noon briefing on Congressman Byron's proposed bill designating 850 acres as the Monocacy National Battlefield Park. National Capital Parks Historian, Ed Bearss, will discuss the history of the area and the committee will then conduct an on-site inspection.

A picnic lunch for the congressional delegation is scheduled for 1 p.m. at Gathland State Park, followed by the Appalachian Trail briefing. Legislation affecting the national trail comes under the jurisdiction of the Interior Committee's Parks & Recreation Subcommittee.
