On Monday morning, the 19th of March, a CB'er noticed a car fire at Welty Road and business 15. He then reported it to central alarm as a fire at the exit of St. Joseph's college and route 15. The fire department went to St. Joseph's exit at Toll Gate Hill in search of the fire. When they couldn't locate it, they contacted Central alarm and finally decided that it must be Welty Road and Route 15.

Think what could have happened if it was your house or my house. Perhaps it could have been a serious accident. Well, we all know about the signs around Emmitsburg. This just illustrates the fact, that at best, they are misleading. If a person isn't familiar with the area and relies only on the signs, he's going to be fouled up. This could be the cause of a major incident someday. I sincerely hope the state roads Commission does something about them. It's a matter of major concern to all of us.

Well, now that we have a woman running for commissioner, Crystal Gauss, our local elections should live up a bit. At this stage of the game, I'm for anything that will stir up local interest in town government. So far, those running for commissioner are William Austin, Crystal Gauss; for mayor, those running are Eugene Rosensteel, and Richard Sprinkle. I hear that next week's issue will include a brief biography of each candidate, plus a picture. So if any more of our citizens are planning to run in this election, please file now so that you will be included in this article.

I was looking over past Chronicles the other day, and things haven't changed a bit around here in the past 100 years.

We're still facing the same problems our ancestors did — drugs, crime, and lack of interest on the part of citizens toward the problems. We can't have the idea that if we ignore our problems, they'll just go away. They were here 50 years ago and they're still here. I think now is the time to solve them, and I really think we can do it if we only all pull together.

I hate to keep harping on the same thing week after week, but until we get some action from the Highway Administration, I plan to keep at it.

Another accident last week on West Main St. and then another one this week! We're all so fed up with this problem. I understand a petition is circulating around town to try to get some action from the Highway Administration. I also understand that our citizens that live on that turn are really hopping mad, and I can't say I blame them. Some of the people are afraid to let their children even sit in the living room for fear that a car will hit the building.

We all know that a larger sign at the West End of town is not going to accomplish a thing. I really believe that a blinking light is the only thing that may help solve this problem. If a person is drinking or otherwise indisposed, they are not going to be reading signs along the road, whereas a flashing light will get their attention. Even the insurance companies are getting pretty fed up with this.

Since we can't get any satisfaction from the Administration, can any of you people think of something we can do to get a blinker light?

We have eight lights on the square, which I really don't think are necessary, so why can't we have one blinking light on the turn? If you can think of anything, drop by the town council meeting, and let us know what we can do. If you don't want to do that, write a letter to the editor, or write the editor more than happy to publish it. We've got to get some action. We've put up with this situation long enough, and fooled around with the Highway Administration long enough.

Another accident took place on West Main St., at 1:20 a.m., on April 4. A car driven by James Edward Ling of 182 Charles St., Hanover, was eastbound at an apparent high rate of speed, when he failed to negotiate the curve, left the highway and collided with a light pole, and then into a house.

Also an occupant in the Ling auto was Ronald Phillips, of Hanover. The injured were taken to Frederick Memorial Hospital in the VFW ambulance.

Since the first of the year, it brings the total number of accidents on West Main St., up to ten. (Photo by Mary Johnson)

"So they took branches of palm trees and went out to meet him shouting, 'Praise God! God bless him who comes in the name of the Lord! God bless the King of Israel!' Jesus found a donkey and sat on it, just as the scripture says, 'Do not be afraid, city of Zion! Here comes your king, riding on a young donkey.'" John 12:12-15 (Photo by Mary Johnson)

New Superintendent Appointed

Dr. Gordon M. Anderson, a 40 year old, New York educator, has been selected as the new Superintendent of Schools in Frederick County to replace retiring Superintendent Dr. John L. Carnochan, Jr. Dr. Anderson will assume the post on July 1, 1976.

Dr. Anderson is presently Superintendent of Schools in Yorktown Heights, New York, a school system of 5200 students located in Westchester County. He has been Superintendent there since 1968. Prior to that time, he was Superintendent of Schools in Catskill, New York for two years.

Starting out as a sixth grade teacher in 1957 in DeKalb, Illinois, Dr. Anderson moved to a junior high position in De Kalb and then into full time guidance. In 1962 he was appointed an Assistant High School Principal at Palatine, Illinois and then in 1964 Assistant Superintendent in the same district. In 1965 he began a year of study at Teachers College Columbia University.

Dr. Anderson went to high school in Gibson, Illinois then attended college at Wheaton College where he received a Bachelor of Arts Degree with honors in 1957. His Master of Education Degree was received from the University of Illinois in 1959. A Doctorate of Education followed from Teachers College Columbia University in 1970.

He has been active in civic, professional, and church activities. Professional organizations include the American Association of School Administrators, Association for Supervisors and Curriculum Development, and Phi Delta Kappa. Membership in local service clubs and church activities including the sponsorship of numerous youth groups round out an active community life.

Dr. Anderson is married and has three children ages 15, 13 and 6. His favorite activities include travel, out-of-door activities and public speaking.

Dr. Anderson's appointment is being made subject to acquiring Maryland State Certification and the approval of Dr. Sensenbaugh, Maryland State Superintendent of Schools.

Rupli Wants Debate With Byron

Dan Rupli, Democratic contender for the Sixth District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives, today goodloe Byron to "come out of hiding" and meet him publicly in a debate on the issues.

Citing Byron's recent rejection of an invitation to appear on WMAR-TV's (Baltimore) "Face to Face program," Rupli said, "Byron's excuse that 'his schedule does not permit' such an appearance is but another in a long list of refusals to open debate issues squarely in an open debate before the electorate. In so refusing, Byron displays the same cavalier attitude towards the public's right-to-know which was so evident during the Nixon years. I find it difficult to believe that he cannot, in a matter as important as this, find some time in his busy schedule to meet me in a public debate."

Rupli, the 33 year old attorney from Frederick who is running with the endorsement of such major organizations as the Committee on Political Education of the AFL/CIO, has indicated a willingness to adjust his own schedule to meet Byron any time the latter so chooses.

"We are all busy," said Rupli, "but that is what this campaign is all about. Byron does not come out of hiding because he is afraid of the working people of this district. He is afraid to be questioned on his voting record. He is afraid that if the people find out who and what he stands for he will lose his seat. I believe, however, that the days of the so-called 'safe-seat' are long past. The Watergate era taught us that public officials must be called to account for their actions; that if we are to have honesty and responsibility in government, the people must have the opportunity to confront the candidates, and that the elected representatives must go out among the people, not attempt to conduct the business of government in the isolation of the White House and the Congressional Office Buildings."

Thomas-Munson Endorse Ford

State Senator Edward P. Thomas, R-3, of Washington and Frederick Counties and Donald F. Munson of Hagerstown have endorsed by President Ford as candidates for delegate to the Republican National Convention next summer.

White House support for their candidacy was announced March 25 in Annapolis by Robert A. Pascal, chairman of Maryland's President Ford Committee. Pascal, who is 23 Arundel County Executive, said 22 prominent citizens from across the state were backed by Ford in their bids to represent Maryland in Kansas City next August.

National convention delegates will be elected in the May 18 primary. If elected, Thomas and Munson will go to the convention pledged to support President Ford.

Pascal filed papers in the state capital March 25 confirming Presidential endorsement with the State Administrative Board of Election Laws.

President Ford has told County Executive Pascal and the Maryland Committee that he based his support for both men on the fact that "we share a solid basic viewpoint on the issues and challenges confronting this nation and a common philosophy for America's future."

"The President has tapped a cross section of Marylanders who have, singly and collectively, compiled an impressive record of community and political involvement," Pascal said. "The President Ford Committee has committed itself to work hard for their election on May 18."

Petition on Accidents goes to St. Officials

The Town Council met Monday evening, April 5, with all members present.

Commissioner Ernest Rosensteel presented a petition containing 125 names to Town Attorney Fred Bower for his forwarding to proper state officials.

The petition, signed by West end residents, is another way to bring pressure on state roads officials in hopes of getting a blinking light for West Main St., thereby curbing the almost weekly accidents that occur on the turn.

The council also approved the installation of new sewer pipe to four homes on Fraily Road, where sewerage is backing up, with the provision that property owners agree to pay $125 each for the sewer taps in order to help defray the estimated $2540 the town will pay for the work.

In the other action:

● The council heard from Alfred Hahn that a prospective purchaser of part of his farm at the west end of town wants to use town water. The purchaser plans to build 60 houses over a five year period.

The council told Mr. Hahn that this possible use of town water would depend on the timing of two new wells near the reservoir and how many gallons per minute they produce. The council said that an answer could be expected in 30 to 60 days.

● The need for Emmitt Ridge to re-purchase their previously authorized water taps.

● The need for all garbage cans now being used to be covered.

● A speed gun has been ordered for use by town police in curbing traffic violations.

● Wayne Laboratories of Waynesboro, Pa., has agreed to process colorforms in the town's sewage treatment.

Councilman E. Eugene Myers told the Town Council that the pool committee has hired all of its employees for the coming season, and that the swimming pool is ready to begin operations on May 30.

The members of the town council met on April 5 to discuss local affairs and the petition that will be sent to State officials in hopes of curbing accidents. (Photo by Mary Johnson)

Local Girl Killed in Accident

Miss Dorothy Sites, 19, of Emmitsburg was killed while two others were critically injured when their car struck a tree in a field off Rt. 77, a mile and a half east of Graceham, April 2 at 12:05 a.m.

Ms. Sites was pronounced dead of internal injuries at the Frederick Memorial Hospital by Dr. R. Thomas, county medical examiner.

The driver of the car, Douglas Draper, 25 of Rocky Ridge, along with another passenger, Eugene Kuhn, 27 of Lantz, Md., were listed in critical condition in the Shock Trauma Center of the University of Maryland Hospital in Baltimore. They had been taken to Frederick.

Memorial in the Woodsboro Fire Co. ambulance and transferred via the state police helicopter to the shock trauma center.

According to police, the accident occurred when Draper's westbound coupe ran off the left side of the highway, went out of control recrossed the road, ran off the right side into a field and struck a tree. Draper's 1972 Chevrolet was described as a total loss.

Ms. Sites was the daughter of Maurice E. and Lillian Martin Sites, of RD 1, Fairfield, Pa.

Surviving besides her parents are eight brothers and sisters.

They are the parents of one daughter, Susan, who is employed at the Thurmont Bank.

Fraudulent chain letters have been around for many years, but odds are better now that you may receive one, this time with a Bicentennial theme.

A scheme, which involves the mailing of U.S. Savings Bonds, has shown up in major urban centers of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maryland, Virginia and Florida.

The letter with the Bicentennial gimmick urges those receiving it to mail $2.00 — $1.00 for each 100 years — to the person whose name is first on the list in celebration of our nation's 200th birthday.

Chief Postal Inspector C. Neil Benson has informed us that actual profits from chain letters are usually obtained only by those who originate or enter the scheme very early.

Chain letters requesting money or other items of value are non-mailable under the Federal Mail Fraud Statute. They are considered to be fraudulent because of the likelihood that the chain will be broken and most participants will get nothing from their involvement.

Typically, the chain letter requires each of its recipients to sell or mail copies to a specified number of others, who would also be asked to continue the chain of mailings. Usually, the chain expands so rapidly that the number of prospects is soon exhausted.

For example, a chain letter requiring each purchaser to send copies to six others would theoretically reach the entire literate population of the earth by the time it reached its 12th link.

The fact that chain letters are not mailed does not exclude the scheme from being a violation of law if the scheme involves the mailing of bonds or other valuable items.

On the other hand, so-called chain letters which call for nothing more than recipes, picture post cards and the like, are ordinarily considered to be mailable because the items sent do not constitute a "thing of value" under applicable law. However, postal cards involving "good luck" chain prayers that contain a threat of bad luck to those who break the chain are prohibited because it is against the law to place threatening matter on the outside of mail.

Persons should be especially alert for numerous current chain letters that have been reviewed by some legal authority and officially approved for mailing. This is not true, and I would appreciate having all chain letters received in this area promptly turned over to me or Postal Inspectors so that we can help protect the public from this illegal activity.

American Land Trust Formed

George S. Wills, business executive and Maryland conservation leader, has been named to direct a national $200 million program to save America's most significant wilderness and natural land areas. The nationwide effort - "The American Land Trust" - has been organized by a committee of business, conservation, and civic leaders as the largest commitment ever undertaken by the private sector to preserve environmentally important land.

Mr. Wills will serve as Executive Director of the American Land Trust, according to an announcement today by Assistant Secretary of the Interior Nathaniel P. Reed, Honorary Chairman of the Trust, and Patrick F. Noonan, President of The Nature Conservancy.

The Conservancy, the largest land conservation organization in the United States, will be, under Mr. Wills' direction, the administrative arm of the Trust's national program to preserve high-priority wilderness areas in each of the 50 states.

For the past six years, Mr. Wills has been a Vice President of the Washington office of Hill and Knowlton, international public relations counsel. He is on leave of absence from that post, but will continue to serve as Maryland representative for the firm.

Secretary Reed described Mr. Wills' responsibilities as "directing the operations of the Trust's land acquisition and conservation program for citizens, concerned corporations and philanthropic institutions."

"Mr. Wills brings to the administration of The American Land Trust professional experience with business and government, as well as leadership in conservation that is important in our effort to conserve America's most valuable and threatened lands," Reed said.

As part of his new responsibilities, Mr. Wills will help direct the land conservation programs of The Nature Conservancy's new Maryland chapter. For the past five years, he has served as chairman of the Maryland Environmental Trust, a quasi-public agency.

Active in business, civic and governmental affairs, Mr. Wills is a member of the Boards of Directors of the U. S. Fidelity and Guaranty Co. and the Maryland State Fair and Agricultural Society. He has served as Maryland State Chairman of the National Foundation March of Dimes since 1972. Mr. Wills is co-chairman of a Chamber of Commerce corporate task force studying economic and marketing problems of the Baltimore metropolitan region.

Before joining Hill & Knowlton, Mr. Wills completed one year as a White House Fellow, following a national competitive selection. During this Presidential appointment, he was Special Assistant to the U.S. Budget Director and the Chairman of the Presidential Environmental Quality Council. From 1964 to 1969, Mr. Wills was Public Relations Director of the Johns Hopkins University and Assistant to Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower when the former Hopkins President chaired the National Commission on Violence Prevention.

Mr. Wills has chaired commission studies on local government taxation, legislative reorganization, public education finance, and land use management. He is a member of the Governor's Legislative-Executive Compensation Commission and the Maryland Farmland Preservation Foundation. From 1972-1974, Mr. Wills was chairman of Baltimore's Efficiency and Economy Commission.

According to Secretary Reed, "The American Land Trust has begun its program with an objective of preserving at least one natural land area of prime environmental significance in each of the 50 states."

In addition to Secretary Reed, there are twenty-eight members of the Trust's National Committee, among them: William D. Blair, Jr., Assistant Secretary of State and Chairman of the Board of The Nature Conservancy; Alexander Calder, Jr., Chairman, Union Camp Corporation; Mrs. William O. Douglas, Attorney and Conservationist; Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, President Emeritus, Johns Hopkins University; Anne Morrow Lindbergh, Author and Conservationist; Marshall Field, Chairman, Field Enterprises; Hugh Downs, Television Commentator and Conservationist; Thomas L. McCall, former Governor of Oregon; Mrs. David Rockefeller, Director, Maine Coast Heritage Trust; Larry Rockefeller, Attorney, Natural Resources Defense Council, Inc.; and John B. Oakes, Editorial Editor, The New York Times.

As the largest private land conservation organization in the United States, The Nature Conservancy, for over two decades, has preserved nearly a million acres through cooperative programs with industry, private foundations, government and individual donors.

Land acquisition projects of The Conservancy have been extensive, ranging from the 78,000-acre Great Dismal Swamp donation by Union Camp Corporation to Midwest Prairies, a rain forest in Hawaii, and islands off the coast of Maine. The Conservancy operates its programs by accepting gifts of environmentally significant land, by purchasing land through a revolving fund and State chapter fund-raising, and by acquiring land for government and other conservation agencies.

Republican National Convention shall be bound to vote for the candidate of their party for the office of President of the United States who receives the highest number of votes within their respective Congressional District in the primary election." Mr. King also said, "A responsible delegate attending the convention should conscientiously believe that the Republican Party have a platform dedicated to solving the problems of inflation, unemployment, excessive taxes, and the curtailment of the horrendous Federal bureaucracy. Republican delegates should also be committed to maintaining the United States as the Number One world power."

Active in civic affairs, he has served on the Board of Directors of the Allegany-Garrett Tuberculosis Association, Centre Street United Methodist Church, Mental Health Association of Allegany County and the Allegany Association for Retarded Children. He is currently serving as a member of the Lay Advisory Board of Sacred Heart Hospital.

Mr. King is Manager of the Celanese Trucking Division, Cumberland, Maryland. He is married to the former Niletta Wilkinson and they have a son, William, who resides in Rock Hill, S.C.

Colorfest Elects Officers

Six persons were elected to the board of directors of Catocin Colorfest, Inc., at a meeting in Thurmont's town hall Monday night. Elected to two-year terms were Erma Black, Florence Hall and Mrs. Harold Shorb. Buzz Bowers, Ernest Hall and Pat Lambertson will serve one year. Terry Shook was chairman of the nominating committee.

In other action, Nancy Stover was elected executive secretary to replace John Brown, who resigned. Brown will remain on the executive committee as immediate past president.

Membership chairman Nancy Stover reported that applications for membership and space allocation for the annual fall festival have been mailed to previous exhibitors. Those desiring applications should address requests to Catocin Colorfest, Inc., P. O. Box 33, Thurmont, Md. 21788. Deadline is May 1.

Under new regulations, recently adopted, memberships will be required instead of voluntary contributions, although donations still are needed. Three types of membership are available — active, $5; associate, $3; and honorary.

A clarification of the method of allotting exhibit space was requested by some attending the meeting. President J. Stephen Newmann explained that Thurmont residents and non-profit organizations will have top priority. Other factors to be considered in allocations will be memberships, work on committees, previous participation and proximity to Thurmont. Those residing within a 30-mile radius will be considered first, with the officers and board of directors empowered to make exceptions. It was pointed out that only the Colorfest committee will make space allotments.

The next meeting will be April 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the town hall.

Officers are Newmann, president; Tom Brown, Betty Anderson and Carol Mantz, vice presidents, and Nancy Stover, executive secretary.

76 Budget. . . The Ultimate in Mandel's Juggling Act

By Delegate
Raymond E. Beck

I was one of the 44 members of the House of Delegates who voted NO to the Governor's 1976 $3.5 billion state operating budget.

Over the past 5 years, the Governor has shown a dubious talent for employing bookkeeping gimmicks to produce one-time revenue windfalls to balance the state budget.

What he has done is to accelerate collections for certain revenue payments by extending the fiscal year to 13 months in order to re-pay 13 months worth of revenue payments. Naturally, this shortens the next fiscal year to only 11 months with only 11 months of revenue collections. However, the Governor's display of unequalled genius in using this type of robbing-Peter-to-pay-Paul procedure only forestalls the inevitable day of reckoning.

Another trick in Mandel's balancing act is hardly a trick at all. It's merely a blatant refusal to allocate money in the budget to fully fund vital programs already mandated by the General Assembly.

These programs include aid to education for the handicapped and foster care. According to the state's fiscal experts, 5 years of underfunding has produced a cumulative $100 million budget deficit.

Grimly determined to avoid a general tax increase, the Governor remains steadfast in his refusal to face up to fiscal realities. He has even turned thumbs down on a tax reform package, part of which would include a graduated income tax that, by itself, would net the state $65 million in additional revenue. His reasoning seems to be that a graduated income tax would mean increased tax payments for upper level income earners. And the Governor wants no general tax increase in any way, shape or form.

This year, in order to balance the budget, the Governor has topped even his own record for fiscal sleight-of-hand. First of all, the Governor has once again refused to allocate full funding for programs enacted by the General Assembly. He has cut $12 million from the state Medicaid program. And he has asked the Legislature to approve a 5% ceiling on state contributions to state employee pensions. And worst of all, approximately $95 million of funds allocated in the budget has not yet been approved or confirmed. The Governor is counting on the General Assembly to give approval to two more bookkeeping gimmicks to produce $74 million in revenue. He has asked the General Assembly to place the lottery agency on a fiscal year basis, with the fiscal year beginning July 1. This change will produce an extra 18 months of lottery revenue; a windfall to the state of at least $35 million.

In addition, the Governor has asked the General Assembly to approve changes in the corporate income tax laws to raise about $20 million in revenue.

And he is banking on getting $21 million in federal revenue sharing funds, not yet approved by Congress.

In short, the Governor has included money that he doesn't even have in his so-called balanced budget. And to top it all off, despite the fact that he is balancing a budget by cutting funds from vital programs that serve the handicapped, the unfortunate and the low-income earners...and despite the fact that he is balancing the budget with money he doesn't even have, the Governor has seen fit to allocate $123 million for construction of the initial phase of Baltimore Rapid Rail construction and Bluegeon the General Assembly intrm approving it.

Of course, we all know the $123 million is just for openers. The construction and deficit operation cost of the Rapid Rail System will be a standard budget expenditure for as long as the system operates...and we can assume that will be for a long time. What this gargantuan expenditure will do to our AAA bond rating remains to be seen. Certainly, it will not strengthen it.

Obviously, the Governor regards the General Assembly as little more than a rubber stamp; as a body whose mandates he can ignore.

Although his actions set dangerous precedents that place the delicate balance of power in the three branches of government in jeopardy, the Legislature, itself, is partly to blame for the situation. For after all, the Governor cannot bend the Legislature to his will without the express consent of its members. There's an old saying in Annapolis: "If you have the votes, you can do anything." And let's face it, the Governor has the votes.

Would you believe that in the face of budget cuts to crucial programs, a freeze on school construction and a generally dismal fiscal picture, there was $354,000 in the budget earmarked for the presentation of an historic Bicentennial drama to run 6 days at the Merrivether Post Pavilion...And this grand sum was appropriate in spite of numerous offers of free talent and expertise to produce the play.

I made a motion on the House floor to delete $354,000 of the funds, and I'm happy to report that the motion carried. The Senate went along with the cut, and it is now out of the budget. Certainly, I consider myself as patriotic as anyone else. But I think that in these times of fiscal stress, it is the height of fiscal irresponsibility to approve an expenditure of this size for the production of a 6-day play.

Dr. Emile A. Nakhleh, Chairman of the History and Political Science Department at Mount Saint Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Maryland, has just published his book, Bahrain: Political Development in a Modernizing Society, published by Lexington Books of D.C. Heath Company, Lexington, Massachusetts.

This book is Nakhleh's third dealing with the Middle East. His first two, which were published in 1975 by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research in Washington, D.C. are entitled Arab-American Relations in the Persian Gulf and The United States and Saudi Arabia: A Policy Analysis.

This latest book, which is based on a Fulbright Research Fellowship awarded to Dr. Nakhleh in 1972-1973, is a case study of the development of Bahrain and other new political formations in the Arab/Persian Gulf. Political development is examined here in the context of a process of transformation from classical tribalism into modern nation-statehood. According to the author, this process is best described by the model of urban tribalism.

More specifically, the book treats political development in Bahrain as it is affected by education, labor, the news media, social stratification and public policy. This study also includes the first detailed analysis of Bahrain's venture into participatory government along with an examination of the country's constitutional experiments.

Nakhleh's hard-bound book, which is available from Lexington Books for $16 contains an extensive bibliography, comprehensive statistical data and an index.

A member of Mount Saint Mary's faculty since 1967, Dr. Nakhleh has written extensively on the Middle East, including Arab-Israeli relations and the politics of the Middle East. In addition to his three books, he has contributed numerous articles and book reviews which have been published in several national periodicals and volumes including New Outlook, The Middle East Journal, The Arab World and the Concise Encyclopedia of the Middle East (Washington, D.C.: Public Affairs Press, 1973).

Book in Rama, Palestine, Dr. Nakhleh received his Bachelor's degree from Saint John's University, Collegeville, Minnesota. In June of 1966 he received his M.A. in Political Science from Georgetown University, Washington, D.C., and his Ph.D. from the American University in 1968. He has been an American citizen since 1970.

A resident of Emmitsburg, Maryland, along with his wife, Mary and their two sons, Professor Nakhleh was the Project Director for Emmitsburg's "Little America: A Small Town Reflects on the Bicentennial" which was a special Bicentennial project funded by the Maryland Committee for the Humanities and Public Policy. He is also a member of the town's Planning and Zoning Commission.

Enjoy food like grandma made! Some of it will be prepared on the spot over open fires — hearty vegetable and bean soup, pit-cooked chicken, pig roast...there'll be homebaked breads, churned butter, cookies, pies, and cakes, hand-churned ice cream with fresh strawberries, herbal teas, barrel root beer, lemonade, and milk to quench your thirst.

Visit a country store, a replica of the kind of place grandma shopped. Watch the men play checkers, mail a letter with a special cancellation stamp at the postal window, buy penny candy, barrel molasses, homemade jellies and cookies, calico, and kitchen tinware. Dip into the brine barrel for a crunchy, garlicky dill pickle.

Lois Harting considered by some to be responsible for the revival of the art of fraktur, that is, inscribing documents in ornamental lettering by quill pen in old Germanic style letters.

Betty Groff, famed Pennsylvania Dutch cook, she also is the author of a best selling cookbook, "Good Earth and Country Cooking".

George F. Orthey, Jr., a U. S. Army colonel who builds harpsichords, psalteries, hammered dulcimers and Appalachian dulcimers, has made more than 350 Appalachian dulcimers alone in the last ten years. Owners of these folk music instruments are scattered all over the United States.

It should be emphasized that the Governor's highly questionable methods of budget balancing rides roughshod over the checks and balances inherent in the principle of three separate branches of government. His refusal to fund programs mandated by the Legislature presents a constitutional question currently being tested in the courts.

His presentation to the General Assembly of a budget containing funds in it which will materialize only if the General Assembly approves administration-backed legislation to employ two bookkeeping gimmicks puts the Assembly in a powerless position. What it means is that when the Assembly approves the budget, in essence, it will have also approved the lottery and corporate tax bookkeeping maneuvers without even voting on the bills.

Old Fashioned Revival Services

The Locust Valley Bible Church is conducting a week of Old-Fashioned Revival Services as a part of its Bicentennial observances. The services will be 7:30 each evening from April 4th through 11th. Curvin Stambaugh, Pastor of the Church will present the messages on the 4th of April, and Dr. Hugh Pyle will be the guest evangelist for the remainder of the Revival Services.

Dr. Hugh Pyle is from Panama City, Florida, and has had over 30 years experience in the ministry, both in the pastorate and evangelistic work. He was until 1973 the pastor of the Central Baptist Church of Panama City, Florida, for over 15 years. When he resigned the church had a membership of 1600 and a private Christian School with an enrollment of about 1000.

Dr. Pyle received his Doctor of Divinity degree from Tennessee Temple College where he has frequently been a speaker. His writing ministry is far reaching with 15 books and booklets now in print and others in the making. His sermons frequently appear in national sermon publications and he has often been a prize winner in evangelistic sermon contests sponsored by the Sword of the Lord.

Dr. Pyle has frequently spoken in Bible Conferences, summer camps and Christian colleges as well as in revival crusades. For 14 years he maintained a daily radio broadcast in Panama City. God has given blessing to his revival meetings.

An exciting dimension of his ministry is seen in his dramatized Bible stories for children, one of which will be presented in each service. The courtship counselling series (The Good Ship Courtship) for teenagers will be presented in some special sessions for teens and will be announced during the week.

There will be old fashioned congregational singing of well-known hymns and "Special Music" during the services. For the convenience of parents attending, the Cradle Roll and Nursery will be staffed for all services and will receive children up through age five. Also, for children ages 6 to 10, special services will be conducted in the Junior Church Auditorium.

The Locust Valley Bible Church is located on Marker Road, off of U.S. Alternate 40, just west of Middletown, Maryland. Everyone is cordially invited to attend these services and make them an important part of your Bicentennial Year!

A Fair With A Difference

Fairs are a glut on the summer tourist market this Bicentennial year, but there's one in South Central Pennsylvania that is a little bit different. It is the Middletown Area Early American Arts and Crafts Fair set for June 11, 12, 13, 1976.

What's so special about it? Its sponsoring organization, the Middletown Area Historical Society, is not out to make a buck. The fair, which has been put together, step-by-arduous-step for the past year, will feature only traditional early American arts and crafts. Nothing developed after 1876 will be exhibited or demonstrated, and the ADMISSION IS FREE!

Prime movers of the fair are a group of professional historians and history buffs who want to prick the memories of those who are older and to stimulate the interest of those who are younger. More than 50 craftspeople and artists will show and tell exactly how their various specialties are created. Included in their number are some superstars of the Bicentennial Fair circuit. Several have received national acclaim. For example:

Loren "Red" Hancock, a sand molder, has demonstrated his craft with his miniature foundry for the Smithsonian Institute at their annual festival on the Mall in Washington, D.C. He has also represented the U.S. Government abroad and has toured more than 30 states.

Marylanders concerned over the State's threatened and vanishing natural lands will gain a protector this week with the formation of the Maryland Chapter of The Nature Conservancy. Interim Chairman Peter Black of Royal Oak, Maryland, reports the Chapter's purpose is to preserve natural and ecologically significant lands through private action. Black said Marylanders will now have the means of participating directly in the identification, acquisition and management of natural lands within their state. The Maryland Chapter's inaugural meeting begins on Saturday, April 10th, at 10:00 a.m. in the Educational Building Auditorium of The Church of the Redeemer in Baltimore. Black issued an invitation to all interested Marylanders and to the over 400 Maryland members of The Nature Conservancy's national organization to participate. In the past The Nature Conservancy, a nationwide, non-profit conservation organization led by president Patrick Noonan, has worked directly with individuals, volunteer committees and state agencies in Maryland to preserve such areas as the Battle Creek Cypress Swamp, Finzel Swamp and the Saint Mary's River Park. Black indicated the need for a broader base of volunteer support in Maryland and noted the State's diverse coastal, bay, Piedmont, and Appalachian regions all contain a heritage of natural lands of value to Marylanders now as well as future generations. In outlining the plans for the Maryland Chapter, Black stated that initial efforts would focus on attracting land donors. This effort will be augmented through fund raising and purchase of land and land easements. Black indicated some of the land purchased by the Conservancy would be retained and managed by staff and chapter volunteers. In other instances, land purchased would be transferred at cost to other organizations who have the capacity to manage the land in accordance with criteria used by the Conservancy. A major advantage of forming a state chapter, according to Black, is the chapter can look to the National headquarters for assistance and support in unraveling complicated procedures often associated with the acquisition of land. Black noted The Nature Conservancy has established a reputation for moving swiftly and competently in assisting chapters to place natural lands in the public's trust.

Farmers and Homeowners Facing Garlic Invasion

Crop farmers in the Mid-Atlantic area who plan to sell their wheat on the cash gain market this summer and homeowners who take pride in their lawns often are made aware at this season of a pair of pungent enemies which they face in common — wild garlic and its close cousin, wild onion. Since wild garlic is far more widespread in Maryland than wild onion and since the control measures are identical, they are often both lumped under the garlic heading.

Whether causing a problem in small grains or lawns, wild garlic is best controlled by "ecology manipulation," declares Dr. James V. Parochetti, Extension weed control specialist at the University of Maryland in College Park. This infers stimulating rapid and luxuriant growth of grain or grass by adequate and timely fertilization; maintaining the recommended pH level by lime applications when necessary; proper mowing height in the case of lawns, and seasonal control of diseases and insects. Most of the things said about controlling garlic in lawns also apply to livestock pastures, Dr. Parochetti commented. It's now too late to lime or fertilize grain fields and lawns for the current growing season and a little early for mowing and insect or disease control, he added.

But you can still do something to at least slow down the production of garlic seed-producing bulbets while you map plans for a full-scale "ecology manipulation" control program for 1977. And the sooner you get at it, the better. That something is chemical control by spraying wild garlic in both grainfields and lawns with a low-volatile ester, liquid formulation of 2,4-D. If this is not readily available, you can use a liquid amine formulation of 2,4-D, but it is not nearly as effective. Be sure to follow application rates prescribed on the label. And try to do your spraying on a sunny day when daytime temperatures exceeding 50 degrees F. (10 degrees C.)

can be expected for 5 to 7 days, including the day of treatment. Dr. John R. Hall, Extension turf management specialist at the University of Maryland, advises homeowners to be sure the spray solution includes a detergent or surfactant in order to help it stick to the slippery wild garlic and onion leaves, thus increasing its effectiveness. When spraying pastures, remove livestock for 7 days following treatment. Remember that 2,4-D will kill or severely injure most legumes, with alfalfa and alsike clover being the most susceptible. Dr. Parochetti reminded farmers that spraying doesn't offer a complete cure, but it can help considerably to reduce the wild garlic problem. He observed that 2,4-D should be applied to wheat each spring, when the crop is 4 to 8 inches high — after the plants have tillered, but before they "joint" or form nodes on the stem. Although some injury to wheat may sometimes occur from application of 2,4-D — especially after the plants have "jointed" — the Maryland specialist agreed that this risk is less than the chance of drastic market price discounts from a severe infestation of wild garlic.

Summer Sports Camp At Mount

Three sports camps will be held at Mount Saint Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Maryland this coming summer for students interested in Boy's or Girl's Basketball or Track and Field instruction. The Tenth Annual Blue Ridge Basketball Camp for Boys will be held at three different weekly sessions during the summer: Session One — June 27 to July 2; Session Two — August 1 to August 6; and Session Three — August 8 to August 13. Tuition for each weekly session is $100.00.

The primary purpose of the camp for boys 9 and up, is to help the young player develop the fundamental skills necessary for his improvement. It is felt that a thorough knowledge of the fundamentals and improved individual skills will help the young player to confidently meet the ever-growing competition. Boys are grouped according to age and ability so that no one will feel out of place. There is a spot for any boy interested in improving his basketball skills.

The camp directors are Coach Jim Phelan, head basketball coach at Mount Saint Mary's College, and Coach Marty Benkovic, basketball coach at Steelton High School, Steelton, Pa. Outstanding Basketball Coaches from Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Connecticut High Schools will complete the permanent staff.

Special guest coaches will augment the staff, such as Marshall Emery of the U.S. Olympic Team, Fred Carter of Philadelphia '76ers fame, Jack McKeeney of the Milwaukee Bucks and Tom Young of Rutgers University. To be held from July 25 — July 30 is the Fourth Annual Blue Ridge Basketball Camp for Girls. The tuition for this week of basketball instruction for girls 9 through high school is $100.00.

The purpose of this camp is to teach each girl new skills in the fundamentals of sound basketball. It is felt that a thorough knowledge of the fundamentals and improved individual skills will help the young girl to meet the competition in an ever-growing sport.

The camp directors will be coaches Jim Phelan and Jim Deegan of the Mount. Coordinator for the camp is Mrs. Carole Bream, basketball coach at Gettysburg High School. The staff will consist of outstanding men and women with years of basketball playing and coaching experience. College coaches will augment the regular staff with daily sessions. All basketball activities for boys and girls will be held on three outdoor and four indoor courts.

Five members of LCW from Elias Lutheran Church attended the Spring Assembly of the Frederick District of the Maryland Lutheran Church Women at Zion Lutheran Church, Middletown, Md. They were Mrs. Margaret McGarry, Mrs. Elizabeth McCleaf, Mrs. Chester Chapman, Mrs. Anna Bushman, and Mrs. Edith Shriver. The theme of the Assembly was: "The Circle of Love Goes Around."

Rev. Singer stated that the role of the missionary used to be to go to a place where there were no Christians and teach Christianity, build churches and convert people to Christianity. Now, the churches formerly staffed by missionaries, are staffed by local people trained in Seminaries, either built in the mission country, or here in greetings from the Host Pastor, Dr. Emmanuel J. Hoover. The message during the morning session was given by Rev. Roger Singer, who is currently the pastor of Salem Lutheran Church in Lititz, Pa. Prior to this, he served the Lutheran Church for twenty years in Shanghai and Hong Kong, America, and the missionaries are assistants to the Presidents of those churches. They also act as a bridge between the churches and the American Mission Boards.

Mrs. Singer told of the differences found in the mission churches, as compared to our American churches, where women seem to play a much more prominent role.

The business session followed a buffet luncheon served by members of the Zion Lutheran Church Women to the 72 members in attendance. Table decorations were oriental in design.

Among the various reports given was a report on the LCW Convention to be held at Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., June 17 — 19, 1976, with the theme of "In Quest of the Spirit." Other dates to remember are May 8th — District LCW Social Concerns Workshop at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Walkersville, Md., and May 26th, Founders' Day at National Lutheran Home in Washington, D.C.

Our Heritage

FROM "CHRONICLES OF EMMITSBURG" EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE dated May 29, 1908.

Anecdotes illustrative of life of former generations. A correspondent from the West in a recent communication to the Chronicle, deplored the passing away of the town pump, but having served its day and generation it has gone, and in its place we have the fountain, a much more sightly and imposing structure. But a great many associations and memories cling to the old pump. Some one has said it was an old custom to dig a well in the square when a town was laid out.

Many families living near the square, obtained their water from the town pump, as the water was more limited than now when we have our fine mountain water in our kitchens and yards.

No one knows the exact date when the well was excavated; it has been suggested the well was first dug and the town built around it, but this cannot be, for the original settlers got water from a spring, long ago filled up, in the cellar of Mr. L. M. Motter's log house, on the street leading to the R. R. Station, this L. M. Motter being the father of the present Mr. L. M. Motter one of our oldest citizens. The well was not a large one being only 25 feet deep and 4 feet in diameter, yet it was never known to go dry.

Before railroads traversed the country six-horse teams carried the produce from Pittsburg to Baltimore. On their return they brought merchandise to the merchants along their route. The town pump furnished water to all these teams. Man and beast alike found refreshment from the excellent water it brought to the surface. Our old teamsters had a song, one stanza of which ran as follows: "We go to a merchant and ask him for a load, he would turn around and tell us its gone on the d-n railroad."

The old pump was the rallying ground for most of the scenes of youthful gatherings of political and other meetings, of town fires and jollifications and generally for the exercise of the fire company of the town.

The boys had an old mill grudgeon into which they drilled a hole filling it with powder; this they ran into the pump where it exploded with a noise of a cannon, splitting the pump and cracking the windows in the neighborhood.

In the great fire in 1863 in our town, the town pump furnished the water supply with which they fought, unsuccessfully, the flames.

It has been said that any one who drank from the town pump would never lose his desire to return to his old home, and this accounts for the yearly pilgrimages to dear old Emmitsburg of many of those who were born here or who ever lived in its vicinity.

ROMANCE AND LEGEND — Poem of a former assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church

Once upon a time there was an old town, and in the centre square of the town stood a well with an old wooden pump. It was called by way of pre-eminence the Old Street

Pump, because it appeared to be the property of the town in particular and everybody in general. It has long ago disappeared, but the town still remains, and, wonderful to relate, has taken in recent years a second growth which promises to far exceed all its previous advance and achievements, so that it will soon be justified in putting on metropolitan airs.

But where is the old street pump? Echo (which like a woman or an Irishman always has an answer ready) says where? Why was not its old stock turned into souvenir walking-sticks and sold for $10 a piece for the benefit of the town? Why indeed?

There is a legend which says that every one who drank from the old street pump, although he might be far away, feels a strong desire to return to Emmitsburg. Perhaps it may be something else that brings him back, but it is attributed to the "Lure of the Pump."

The pump is gone, but the well remains, sealed and covered by the great fountain erected over it which sends its cooling spray high in the air. But the water that it sends forth is not the "real thing" to the boy or girl who once drank from the Old Street Pump.

It may be said of all Emmitsburgians:

"Where e'er they be,
Where e'er their footsteps roam,
The Pump is still a memory
Of "Home, Sweet Home."

Letter to the Editor

I was very surprised to learn that Dick Sprinkle had filed to run again for Mayor. He has been heard by many people to say that he was "fed up" and "wanted out."

I can't understand why he wants to be mayor. He doesn't have the time to do all the necessary things required of a Mayor. There have been numerous times when he should have attended meetings in

Thomas Robertson, near Taneytown, Md., who is a collector of Indian Artifacts in the Monocacy River Valley. Mr. Robertson had a large collection of Artifacts with him, and conducted a "Show and Tell" program. Among the more interesting items were a concave corn grinding stone, an Indian moccasin stone last, a granite stone peace pipe, tomahawks, varieties of arrow heads for bows and lances, to kill everything from birds to bison, and an old 1834 Indianhead Penny. He stated that his biggest find was immediately following Hurricane Agnes, in 1972, when he found as many as 300 arrowheads in one day.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Nancy Grimes.

Frederick, Annapolis and Washington to represent the people of Emmitsburg, and their interests, but because of business commitments sent Councilman Flax instead. Why, he didn't even have time to cut the ribbon for Super Thrift.

We need a Mayor who will fight for our town's needs. We need a Mayor who can guide the Town Council and make sure that everyone works together for the good of all the people.

We need a Mayor who will make sure that Emmitsburg doesn't get lost in the shuffle of "Government Red Tape."

I am a registered voter, Are You?

Dear Sir:
Would you be kind enough to publish this in your letter-to-the-editor column?

Historical Society Holds Meeting

The Emmitsburg Historical Society held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday evening, March 25th, in the meeting room of the Public Library in the new Emmitsburg Community Center, with approximately 35 members present. President Francis Smith presided at the business session.

After the reports of the Secretary and Treasurer, the members reviewed the Constitution and By-Laws as presented by a committee, appointed previously to prepare the same. After discussion, it was felt that several amendments should be made before final adoption, which will take place at a later meeting. Mrs. Mary Hoke, representative to the Social Ministry Committee of the Emmitsburg Council of Churches reported on a preliminary meeting held by that Committee to start plans for the Bicentennial Celebration of the Town on July 3rd and 4th. Mrs. Chata Carr and Mrs. Edith Shriver were appointed by President Smith to represent the Historical Society at its next meeting.

The Society also voted to make the meeting room of the Public Library its permanent meeting place in the future. The Corresponding Secretary, Mr. Floyd Lewis, was directed to write a note of Thanks to Rev. Walter Bower of Trinity United Methodist Church, for the use of its Parish House for our former meeting place, and to enclose a $25.00 donation for use of the same.

Mrs. Linda Meyers, Coordinator for the Emmitsburg adult education program through the Emmitsburg Lifelong Learning Council, spoke on the benefits of being a member of the Council, and invited the Historical Society to join and send a representative of its future Board Meetings. The Society voted to do so, upon the payment of a $5.00 membership fee and Mrs. Frances Bittle was appointed representative.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Kathy Plum, Program Director, who introduced Mr.

Butz Names Advisory Comm.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has appointed eight members to serve on the Advisory Committee on Regulatory Programs to evaluate selected regulations affecting the food industry. The two-year committee will recommend whether certain programs of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) may be improved or eliminated.

Secretary Butz said membership of the committee was selected to represent different food industries, the farming community, consumer interests, the university sector and state governments. He said the committee will work with USDA marketing and consumer program regulatory task forces which already have been meeting to evaluate the benefits and disadvantages of USDA regulations to producers and the public.

Members of the advisory committee are: Jane Armstrong, vice president for consumer affairs, Jewell Food Stores, Melrose Park, Ill.; Harold E. Ford, executive director, Southeastern Poultry and Egg Association, Decatur, Ga.; E. M. Foster, director, Food Research Institute, University of Wisconsin, Madison; J. Marvin Garner, executive vice president, National Pork Producers Council, Des Moines, Iowa; James A. Graham, commissioner of agriculture, North Carolina Department of Agriculture, Raleigh; Richard L. Hall, vice president, Science and Technology, McCormick and Company, Inc., Hunt Valley, Md.; Clinton C. Simonton, dairyman, milk processor and cattle producer, Crossville, Tenn.; and Earl S. Smittcamp, fruit and vegetable producer and chairman of the Federal Farm Credit Board, Clovis, Calif.

The Advisory Committee on Regulatory Programs will report to the secretary of agriculture through the assistant secretary for marketing and consumer services Richard L. Feltner. The executive secretary of the committee will be the administrator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, Donald E. Wilkinson.

Letter From Dept. Trans.

Re: Md. 97 & U.S. 15 Bus Emmitsburg

Dear Mr. Myers:

As a follow-up on my letter to the Baltimore Office dated March 5, 1976, I have received the following estimate for reconstruction of Md. 97 thru Emmitsburg within the existing right of way, including installation of storm drain system, curb and gutter, concrete sidewalk and reconstruction of the roadway which has been given to our Chief Engineer.

At the present time, there is no action on this project. Due to shortage of funds, road work is under a moratorium, also under our present policy requiring funding for construction work this project will have to be included in our 5 year road program and the earliest would be next year.

One other question that was asked and I could not answer was in reference to ownership of a wooden cover over the drainage inlet on U.S. 15 Bus at the Post Office. On June 6, 1966, Permit #A-F-3084-66 was issued to Coulter Construction Company, 2317 Wisconsin Avenue, N.W.,

Washington, D.C., giving permission insofar as the State Roads Commission had the right and power to grant same to construct a 30' depressed curb type entrance; a copy is attached. Please note it stated existing drainage to remain undisturbed.

From the wording of the permit, it is clear curb, gutter and sidewalk was in place prior to 1966 and as it has always been the obligation of the towns to maintain the curb and gutter and sidewalk, I am of the opinion either the Town of Emmitsburg or abutting property owner is responsible for maintenance back of the gutter line.

Due to the underground drainage being a necessity, I am requesting Mr. Raymond Clark, Resident Maintenance Engineer for the State Highway Administration, to contact Mr. Flax to review the present inlet to determine if any improvement can be made without changing the system.

Very truly yours,

Thomas G. Mohler
Highway District Engineer

USDA Tightens Exports

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has directed tightening of departmental procedures to investigate and respond to foreign grain export complaints.

Francis E. Lookingbill, State Executive Director, of the Maryland Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) Office said word recently arriving from Washington, D.C. notes that the USDA Office of Audit (OA) has completed an internal report indicating there should have been more coordination and follow up on foreign complaints between January 1972 and October 1975.

Following the OA report,

Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS), agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), agreed to adopt uniform procedures for handling foreign complaints and FAS will coordinate these activities.

Secretary Butz said OA's report recommended that AMS send "grain division personnel to overseas discharge ports on a trial basis to collect samples on a random basis to aid in evaluating the overall effectiveness and integrity of export inspection and grading procedures."

In verbal response, AMS officials agreed to institute overseas checks on a "trial basis."

The Secretary explained that in response to other audit recommendations, the agencies agreed that:

- FAS's Assistant Administrator for Foreign Market Development will act as the central coordinating point for handling foreign complaints.

- A Standard form, which will be in the hands of agricultural attaches in the near future, will be used by foreign buyers to submit complaints. This form will provide detailed information that would help USDA follow through on the complaints.

Walk for CROP

Going without food, voluntarily, is a discipline few people have cultivated, but increasingly, it is becoming a meaningful part of life for thousands of American citizens who want to know if they can take hunger in order that others may eat. When groups of people fast together the shared experience has memorable value. Deprivation can produce deepened understanding and heightened awareness of need.

The Lenten-Passover-Whitsuntide season in the Judeo-Christian faiths provides a traditional season for fasting, but any time of the year will do. Nor need the fasters be members of a particular faith.

In Frederick, Md., Tracey Miller, a Frederick High School sophomore, challenged her entire class to fast with her for 30 hours. Fourteen responded and they raised $460.00.

The fasting person may give the money saved by not buying food, or may be sponsored by other persons who contribute for each hour the person endures the fast.

The money is turned over to CROP. The Community Hunger Appeal of Church World Service and may be designated for any one of more than a dozen agencies which cooperate with it. CWS sent help to 45 countries last year.

There is a new kind of friendship abroad this Spring in the land. It stretches not just from friend to friend but from county to county, and it's spreading over Maryland, Delaware and D.C. You might call it: "Fast Friendship." It even reaches around the world.

It's hardly the sort of thing that very many well fed Americans have experienced. But more and more people are finding it an exciting and revealing learning experience.

Some of the people at United Church of Christ in Frederick will be learning about it on April 7-8 when they hold a 30-hour Fast to raise funds for world-wide hunger relief. Pastor Richard Batzler is planning the event.

Began in the wake of World War II as the Christian Rural Overseas Program to save lives in Europe, CROP has emerged as the leading inter-faith group for "helping people help people" in this country as well as overseas. The Nat'l CROP Office in Elkhart, Ind. coordinates 23 Regional and State CROP Offices which span the Nation.

There are many versions of CROP fasting, from reduced intake of food to total abstinence from anything except water on the part of an individual or a group. The fast may be carried out at a given place, such as a church or synagogue, for a group, or at home or at work for an individual.

CROP helps by supplying suggestions and providing program helps for those who meet in a group, who bring their sleeping bags and devote hours of time to studying the root causes of hunger and poverty and possible antidotes.

Roger Burtner, regional director of the Mid-Atlantic Area of CROP since 1970, works out of a small office at 30 Westside Avenue in Hagerstown, Md. He has announced the following partial list of CROP Walks and Fasts scheduled for the Spring.

Sept. 29 — Walk Event in Frederick Co., Md., 330 participants, Receipts thru April 17, 1975 $6,484.60.

November 17 — Walk Event in Carroll Co., Md. (Taneytown), 55 participants, Receipts thru April 17, 1975 $1,046.75.

Citizens Band Radio's Popularity Rises in Maryland—Especially With Thieves

"Breaker, Breaker, one-nine. Pig Pen, this here's the Rubber Duck...Come on!" So go the lyrics from a popular record which glorifies one of America's newest fads — citizens band (CB) radios.

Literally thousands of these receiver-transmitter units have been purchased in Maryland in the past six months by truck drivers, camper owners, boat owners, all-terrain vehicle drivers, home owners, business owners and many others.

Almost everyone wants a CB radio — everyone, including thieves. In Baltimore city alone, more than 600 units have been reported stolen since January. The cost of a CB unit averages from $130 to $250, which adds up to a sizable chunk of money out of the pockets of consumers and into the pockets of crooks each month.

Here's how a typical "hit" goes: A thief goes to a large public function such as a basketball game, walks through the parking lot until he sees a CB antenna. He spends two and a half minutes opening a locked automobile (if it is not locked, he just makes himself right at home). Once in the car, he uses a bolt cutter and a screw driver to remove the CB unit, taking less time than it took for the owner to make the first payment.

BINGO — he's got the unit, and he's on his way to the next contributor. The thief takes the unit home, removes the serial number — he may insert a phony one — pushes it to a "fence" and makes a fast $50.

How can you, the innocent victim, protect your property? The Insurance Information Institute, an insurance-sponsored public relations and educational organization for all lines of insurance except life and health, says there are several ways.

First, when you buy your unit spend two minutes to take down the brand name, the serial number and date and place of purchase. Keep that information where you store your valuables.

Second, open the back of the unit and inscribe your driver's license number or social security number on the metal part of the unit with an electric engraving tool or any sharp object. But don't stop there. Also inscribe your initials in some secret corner of the unit and write down where you have made the inscription. If the unit is lost or stolen, report to the police facts of the theft, the identifying information, your driver's license or social security number and where you inscribed your initials on the unit.

You must have taken all these precautions to claim your stolen unit if it has been recovered by police. The only way the police are allowed to return it to you is if you are able to identify it properly.

Third, buy a unit that can be taken out of the vehicle. If you plan to go to a basketball game or other public function where you will leave your car unattended for a length of time, take the unit out of the vehicle before you leave home. If you don't leave it at home, at least lock it in the trunk of the car.

Fourth, know who you are buying your unit from. If you buy a previously stolen unit, the police can confiscate it, and, if it can be proven that you knew it was stolen, you could be convicted as an accessory to the crime. If the seller will not give you a sales receipt DO NOT buy the merchandise. Your best bet is to buy from a franchised dealer.

Incidentally, it is against the law to operate a CB radio unless the operator is licensed by the Federal Communications Commission. If you get caught, the penalty could be two years in the federal penitentiary or a $10,000 fine or both.
